Karin Smith, history major, is the U.S. collegiate record-holder in the javelin and placed eighth in the world in the 1984 Summer Olympics.
Dear Alumnus:

This newsletter continues the tradition of providing information about your fellow alumni and updating news of the History Department.

Your former classmates and professors wish to maintain continuity with you. The complexities of a post-industrial society amidst a shrinking globe forces all of us to engage in lifelong learning. We contend that your liberal arts education, with history at the core, sharpened your critical thinking skills and thus prepared you to more effectively cope with rapid change. Have we been correct or incorrect? Does your continuing education confirm or repudiate our contention? This is an important part of the dialogue we would like to sustain between you and the department.

Thank you for returning the questionnaires—providing the information that makes our newsletter possible! Included in this edition is a revised questionnaire to provide information for the next edition which, with your support could be better than ever! Our main concern continues to be to strengthen our commitment of humane learning among the history majors of Cal Poly.

Sincerely,

Don Hensel
Robert Rosenberg
Barton Olsen

"In a technologically advanced society where production of sufficient goods and services can be handled with ease, employment exists primarily for self-development... This concept of work represents a profound shift in our perceptions with implications that reverberate throughout the entire fabric of our society."

LOUIS GIONETTE is another graduate who has reported the value of a liberal arts foundation to his success in private business. He received an MA in history from San Diego State and is now a Safeway manager with responsibility for 177 retail stores. Louis has married, is the father of four, and lives in Severna, Maryland.

DAVE HARRISON is a high school teacher in Carson City, Nevada, and was recognized as an "outstanding teacher" in 1982. He is married, with two children.

ROBERT LEE KELLEY is one of several our graduates who has combined the history BA with an MBA. He is a vice-president in a real estate investment firm in Simi Valley and attributes to his history background "a better understanding of people than is typical in those with a more technically based education. This understanding has certainly contributed by my success."

THOMAS KIER is a businessman with an entertainment public relations firm in Beverly Hills.

KATHERINE M. MILLER has added both BS and MS degrees in nursing to her accomplishments and is employed in the Pediatrics Department, Emory University School of Medicine, Atlanta, Georgia.

DAVE SNYDER remained with Cal Poly and is an admissions officer. With his wife and two children, he lives in Atascadero.

KEVIN WILMA is another alumnus who added an MBA to his credentials and he is employed as a regional manager for the Equitable Life Assurance in Woodinville, Washington. Kevin is married and has two daughters. He reported, "My liberal arts background provided me with an excellent educational base as well as a well rounded attitude toward a changing society."

FACULTY NOTE

TIM BARNES taught in the 1985 London Study Program and published an article on the moral implications of loyalty during the American Revolution, a topic central to one of his research concerns.

NOT ON THE DEAN's LIST

Students enrolled at Cal Poly in the year 1973-1974 had a classmate whose life was about to take a tragic turn, Christopher Boyce. His willingness to become a spy courier for the Soviet Union began shortly after he took employment with TRW, Inc. in 1974. In the book, The Falcon and the Snowman, Boyce is reputed to have chosen Cal Poly primarily because it was close to the falcon reserve on Morro Rock. Boyce had previously withdrawn from L.A. Harbor College and Loyola University. In the movie of his life, which deleted any reference to Cal Poly, Timothy Hutton, playing Boyce, expressed an indifference to his earlier seminary training, and then took employment at TRW, renamed RTX for the movie. Boyce was in your class if you took History 112 from Joe Romney in the fall 1973, History 201 from Herman Voeltz, or History 301 from Jim Fitts, both in the spring quarter, 1974. The Cold War came close to us.
1974 ALUMNI NOTES

Michele Boshion has remained nearby, serving as a Hearst Castle guide and is living in Cambria.

Marith J. Levers is employed as a probation officer in Santa Maria and expresses an appreciation for having to write so many term papers.

Bruce Young is an attorney practicing in Ventura, and observed that in respect to law school preparation, our degree program should require more writing.

FACULTY NOTES

Robert Burton helped to inaugurate the Cal Poly London Study Program during the spring of 1984, a project which included four professors from the university and sixty-eight students. Faculty and students lived in Kensington and met for regular classes at Maria Assumpta Educational Center four days a week. The three-day weekends were devoted to travel within the British Isles. During the fall of 1984 Dr. Burton toured and studied in the People's Republic of China.

Ed Mayo is engaged in research on the manner in which 19th century Americans legitimated technology in their culture. He served as Acting Head of the History Department for six months in 1984.

1975 ALUMNI NOTES

Norma Day is a travel agent in Walnut Creek, and is married with two children.

Shawn Martin is a junior high school history teacher and track coach in Sonoma. He recommended a diversity of skills to help prospective teachers find employment.

Shauna Sullivan is an attorney in Los Osos and had the unique experience of becoming married in Switzerland.

1976 ALUMNI NOTES

George Bentley is an elementary school teacher and lives in Atascadero with his wife and two children. George took his son to an 1820 recreated mountain man rendezvous in Montana (tipi, muzzle loaders, tomahawks).

Clayton Hall is an attorney and senior associate in a San Luis Obispo law firm.

Deborah Palmer is a full-time law school student at the University of Oregon and proudly reported, "I am holding my own with Harvard, Yale, Stanford and Berkeley grade. . . ."

Charles Warner is married and working as a process engineer in an industrial optics firm in St. George, Utah.

Year of Cal Poly Graduation______________

THANK YOU!
Fold on the black marks on the other side of page, staple and apply postage.
FALL 1984 was started off with a BANG when the history majors challenged a faculty-staff team to a softball game. In a tense-ridden pitching duel sparked by fourteen errors, the students squeezed out a 23 to 19 victory. They are still gloating!

2nd baseman Corkins starting a towering double play.

Cheerleader Hallman with a resounding, "Go, go, go!"

All-star candidate Stotzinger to slugger Barnes, "Out of the park!"

Unspire Hensel pondering how to help the faculty.
FACULTY NOTES

BARBARA HALLMAN's book, Italian Cardinals is being published. She has written five book reviews and will offer a new course in fall, 1985 on Renaissance city-states. She sends greetings to her former students and proudly announces that she is now a grandmother of five.

DON GRINDE has returned from a three-year leave and among his latest writings is a chapter on Navajo ecology in a book on environmental history, a subject he is stressing in his research. He also co-authored an article on Indian conflict and accommodation in Oklahoma.

1977 ALUMNI NOTES

GLENDA BROWN HIGHLAND has been employed as a substitute teacher, is married with one child, and lives in Geyserville.

KAY KILMINSTER is working to correct the bureaucratic confusion we've all experienced in the California Department of Motor Vehicles in Sacramento.

JOAN KUHN is helping to administer a computer software company near Chicago. She favorably commented that the History Department should "continue to stress a broad background for versatility within the business community."

TERRY REEVES continues to work as a Hearst Castle tour guide and lives in Morro Bay.

JANICE ZORADI has earned an MA and remains employed at Cal Poly, on the staff of the Computer Science Department. Jan is married and has one child.

1978 ALUMNI NOTES

CAROL SWEEINAM BOLES has been a substitute teacher and employed by the State Franchise Tax Board. She is married and has a son.

ANGELA PRANDINI is a graduate student at the University of Maryland and lives nearby in Hyattsville.

1979 ALUMNI NOTES

LOA GRAINGER is employed in private business in Santa Barbara.

CRAIG JOHNKE is a building contractor in Port Costa.

MICHAEL KARES is a project task leader for Hughes Aircraft in Long Beach. He is married and recommended that the history curriculum continue to allow opportunities for a diversified education.

1980 ALUMNI NOTES

GAIL CROSSMAN is a legal secretary in San Luis Obispo and reported that her research and writing responsibilities are fulfilled to a higher level of competency because of her undergraduate instruction in these skills.

CHRIS PERELLO is a law student at U.C. Davis, after having served in the U.S. Army. He is married and has one child.

MAUREEN ROBERTSON is a 1st Lieutenant in the Marines and served as an air traffic control officer in Okinawa.

1981 ALUMNI NOTES

MARCIA McGEE is married and living in San Luis Obispo. She has traveled extensively (Europe, Mexico, South America and China), and has been a volunteer in anti-nuclear and political activities.

SUSAN VANKEULEN KEVORKIAN is married and working as a loan officer in a Los Gatos bank.

PATRICK ROBERTSON is a sports specialist with the Southern California Municipal Athletic Federation. Pat reports being single and having fun.

FACULTY NOTES

GEORGE COTKIN's interest in American intellectual history has been expressed in a number of articles and papers on topics such as Samuel Gompers and the concept of culture, the socialist popularization of science, and Max Eastman's interpretation of Lenin. He has recently published a number of articles on the American philosopher William James. He has also written book reviews and additionally has prepared commentaries of papers delivered at the Organization of American Historians. He was honored with a merit pay award in 1985 and an N.E.H. Travel to Collections Grant.

JOHN SNETSINGER's research interest, American diplomatic history, has generated several book reviews and an essay in the book, Jewish American Voluntary Organizations. He continues to serve as a critical reader for articles submitted to the journal, Diplomatic History.
1982 ALUMNI NOTES

BLAKE MILLER is teaching junior high social studies in Pismo Beach, and would like a reunion of the 1981-82 History Club.

FACULTY NOTES

MAX RIEDLSPERGER served in the Federal Republic of Germany as Resident Director of the California State at University International Programs at Heidelberg and Tubingen in 1983-84. He will also become the Department Head in September, 1985. Among his additional activities are being a grant recipient to help strengthen the international component of Cal Poly's curriculum and the publishing of a book review. He has just been given one of the three Cal Poly Distinguished Teaching Awards for 1985.

DON HENSEL's commitment to student-controlled discussions of controversial issues has led him to compose a dozen classroom simulations. Since last reporting in the newsletter, he has demonstrated this technique before the annual meetings of the Organization of American Historians and the American Historical Association. It is revealing, for example, how intensively the anguish of the Vietnam War is simulated as 20 year-olds argue the merits of convicting Lt. William Calley of murder.

CURRICULAR CHANGES

A new required course in the general education category reflects the need to increase knowledge of the non-Western world. History 315, Modern World History, will stress the interaction between non-Western cultures and Western industrial imperialism. The involved professors will feature a non-Western region related to their research interests.

Since History 204 will be the only United States history course required for general education credit, its content is undergoing extensive revision. The former concentration in the 20th century will be replaced by the two-century span since the writing of the Constitution. To avoid the superficiality of teaching a 200-year survey course in ten weeks, the faculty is stressing a half dozen themes to be developed within this time frame. Former students can appreciate the workload of virtually all history faculty members as they restructure one course or originate a new course, both for the same catalog edition.

Since the last alumni newsletter, the following courses have been added to departmental offerings: American Foreign Relations, American Labor and Work, American Thought, American Warfare, and Vietnam at Home and Abroad.

TRAVEL

Of the same fifty-three graduates, 23% have visited Europe, 10% have visited Mexico, and another 21% have visited at least one of the following locations: South America, Canada, the Philippines, Australia, Okinawa, South Korea, Japan and China.

CAL POLY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Cal Poly Historical Society, formerly the History Club, has sponsored a variety of activities in the last two years. A 1984 Poly Royal concession stand offered bagels and sold out on both days. This success, reconfirmed as Greg Schulte, the society's former president expressed it, "my belief that historians can be good capitalists." Poly Royal 1985 focused on the society's demonstration of a typical student's dorm room in both 1925 and 1985. The 1984-85 year also featured the society's sponsorship of a campus-wide mock presidential election. The society's president, Jim Kelly, reported that Ronald Reagan defeated Walter Mondale by a two-to-one majority.
We would like to thank the following individuals and company who have contributed to the History Department through the annual giving campaign this past year. We will be using the funds to purchase computer equipment to help modernize our office operations.
