"Freedom ... just having no end and no beginning makes me think of all the adventures out there waiting for me. To travel and to see the Things on the other side of the world brings freedom to my heart! I love the ocean!"

"I love the beach because it's where land meets sea, warm sand meets cold ocean, and everything of the polar opposite of each other meet and thrive together right in the middle; and in that very moment you feel so at ease because you're reminded that even the impossible is possible."

"The beach means to me a place to escape reality. A place where I can distress and relax. Having the contrast of warm sand and sea breeze is super calming to me."
