MAY DAY PICNIC

Poly's May Day picnic at Atascosa Beach was what might be termed a surging success. The day was warm and quite an ideal day for a picnic, and, as the May Day committee had guessed well when they picked the spot for their picnic, success was assured from the start.

By ten o'clock the gang had arrived and festivities were under way. Refreshment stands were set up and immediately cut out to sea. The usual talk of baseball and football were not entirely overlooked, but the general hilarity was amazing. At ten o'clock the gang gathered at the home of Mr. Miller and the bell for the first round was rung.

After enjoying the sunshine, for lack of energy to move, the class decided that a swim would finish the day. The party journeyed to Ontario, where they participated in the annual sack race, which was won by the Mills students.

The play was given at the Elmo Theater, Thursday evening. May 22.

MECHANIC VISIT SHOPS

Last week Mr. Knott took his class to the Southern Pacific roundhouse to see the machinery and railroad equipment. The whole affair was done in such a way and much interest was shown.

The students were given a chance to see how the locomotives were maintained and the work of the blacksmiths. The students were interested and proud of the work they were doing.

GUESTS OF ROTARIAN

Boys' Week, through which we have been introduced, was planned by every member of our organization in the city. They took more interest in the boys' week than in the activity of any other club.

It happened that during this time Mr. Good, the principal, was invited to Santa Ana High School for the in-service session, and he was expected at their weekly meeting. He was especially interested in boys' week work, and was invited to attend the meeting. The report was that he was very much interested in the boys' week activities.

Doctor Addresses Assembly

The assembly of April 25 was opened with the same double closed orchestra composed of Earl Earl, saxophone, and Fred Pflueger at the piano. After a few announcements as to the usual school play, Mr. Key introduced Dr. Kirklag, who is a strong booster for Santa Ana High School Polytechnic.

He spoke largely of the opportunities of which we should take advantage, and the possibilities of the future. Another thing he said was that the boys and girls should take the opportunity to be involved in Polytechnic and they regard this as a civic duty.

In all, his talk was very interesting, and he was heard with the utmost respect and consideration.
A VACATION VISIT

Vacation means in some, rest; to others, work; and to many, just a relief from school work. This means that a few were glad to have a taste of home life again, and the rest were satisfied with the Dormitory. However, Eugene Churchill chose to take an educational vacation and seemed to prove that he knew his business. Eugene arrived in Oakland on Friday night and the rest of the week was spent in the University of California campus, which seemed to be in its height of glory with blooming flowers and buds.

Monday, Churchill crossed the bay to San Francisco where he made acquaintance with the different industrial leaders and received permits to visit any of their plants or offices. The rest of the week was spent in the different stations and radio broadcasting centers.

In spite of the disinterest and the queerness of the city, Eugene felt that the experience was one well spent. The only plant visited in San Francisco was the Bush street sub-station of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. This station receives electric power from the Pitt River plant, and the electricity is stepped down to 60 kilo volts and distributed to various cities in the state. It is considered the most up-to-date and modern of the kind. In fact, they even have radio communication to the Pitt River plant, and the switchboard is equipped with lamps to show just what lines are in use. The former eliminates all danger to the operator as the patch he handles is only 34 volts, while the 34-volt motor handles the 110-kilo volt switch.

Another station and plant of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. visited was the one at First and Grove Streets, Oakland. This power plant has two turbine generating sets, with a capacity of 40,000 kilowatts, and the electric power is stepped down to 4,900 volts, while the Pitt River plant is stepped down to 60 kilo volts and distributed to various cities in the state.

The Bush street sub-station is equipped with a former student, who now is a resident of Ventura. He claims that the school looks the same, and that Poly was better during baseball season, as that was his favorite sport while attending here. He is now going to the Southern Branch, University of California. Another visitor was Elmer Griffin, a former student, and now a resident of Ventura.

Arroyo Grande

On April 28, the Poly baseball nine went to Arroyo Grande School. The game was played at Poly field.

The result of the game was 2 to 0 in favor of the Arroyo Grande boys. They had a good aggregation of ball players.

The Poly team played perfect ball in the field. Every man played his position and played it well. When they were at bat they did not fare so well. The Arroyo Grande pitcher held them to two hits. Those were made by Hammond and Reynolds.

The loss of the game can be credited to the lack of hits by the Poly players and to the fact that the Poly coach did not know how to "call." Poly vs. San Luis Hi.

On April 29, Poly had another game with the local high school. This game was won by Poly 8 to 1. The Poly boys made four runs and put forth more effort the score would seem to indicate. The Poly pitcher held the Poly boys. Oldham made three, C. Loomis if, and Reed cf. The Poly boys played a very pretty game—until the eighth inning. Sinclair pitcher was very good but Reynolds, first baseman, made errors by throwing too many balls outside the box. It seemed that everyone went on the same level, making several errors.

Poly vs. Arroyo Grande

On April 30 the Poly nine went to Arroyo Grande to face the Arroyo nine, and to put forth more effort the score would seem to indicate. Sinclair pitched to Reynolds and played a good game. He struck out eight Arroyo batters, Reynolds, 1; off Lee, 0; Struck out by E. Moss. Umpires, W. Weathers, 3; struck out by Sinclair; three base hit, Reynolds, A. hstudillo, 0; bases on balls, H. Patchett, E. Patchett, Martin 2b, Zanolli If.

Summary: Two base hits, Reynolds, 1; off Lee, 0; Struck out by E. Moss. Umpires, W. Weathers, 3; struck out by Sinclair; three base hit, Reynolds, A. hstudillo, 0; bases on balls, H. Patchett, E. Patchett, Martin 2b, Zanolli If.

The Poly team played a pretty game—until the eighth inning. Sinclair pitched perfectly and everyone backed him up. However, at this critical moment, something went wrong. It seemed that everyone went on the same level, making several errors.

Poly's score for this game would have been 0-0. In detail the game was:
