Proposed by: WASC/Academic Senate Teacher Scholar Model Task Force

Date: November 16 2010

Revised: January 11 2011
BACKGROUND:
This essay begins by recognizing that though Cal Poly is a teaching-centered institution, scholarship has taken on a greater importance as the mission of the institution has evolved. The essay finds that Cal Poly faculty and staff appear to engage in a high level of scholarly activity that enhances student learning, according to the results of the 2009 Cal Poly Student and Faculty/Staff Surveys, the Department Head/Chair Survey, and the literature. Progress toward enacting the teacher-scholar model at Cal Poly, however, has been hampered by the lack of: 1) a comprehensive understanding of scholarship, and 2) an accepted working definition of the model.

Cal Poly has traditionally been a teaching-centered institution, but, over the last thirty years, scholarship has gradually taken on a role of greater importance. The University’s mission is tied to that of the CSU, and the system’s mission has changed significantly since the days when faculty scholarship was proscribed in keeping with the strict vision of the 1960 California Master Plan for Higher Education. In 1989, with significant leadership provided by Cal Poly and the Cal Poly President’s Cabinet, the Joint Committee for Review of the Master Plan for Higher Education concluded that research, scholarship, and creative activity are central to the mission of the CSU, and the Educational Code was changed to reflect this conclusion. The Cornerstones Report of 1997 acknowledged this change when it stated that “faculty scholarship, research and creative activity are essential components” of the CSU’s teaching-centered mission (Principle 4). A decade later, the 2007 CSU Provosts’ Statement asserted the economic value of what has come to be known as the “teacher-scholar model,” whereby teaching and scholarship are understood to be mutually reinforcing. The statement identified the model as an important way to keep California’s citizens competitive in a global marketplace based on human capital economies—an important consideration for an institution that has always played a major role in preparing the state’s workforce. In turn, Cal Poly’s current mission statement emphasizes fostering teaching and scholarship.

The literature on student learning supports the value of an increasing emphasis on scholarship within the CSU and at Cal Poly. Student involvement in undergraduate research is a form of active learning, and it has been deemed a high impact practice that enhances student retention and engagement. Though undergraduate research is more common in the sciences, student involvement in faculty scholarship is possible in all disciplines and yields encouraging results. According to the provosts, it increases the frequency of meaningful interactions with faculty and peers; encourages students to spend more time and effort on research, writing, and analytic thinking; and involves them in more collaborative forms of learning.

Scholarship also benefits student learning by helping to maintain faculty and staff enthusiasm. As the CSU Provosts have stated, “When faculty [members] are at the cutting edge of their disciplines, they remain connected with the source that feeds their intellectual curiosity and creative abilities and are able to establish and maintain partnerships with other scholars around the world.” This scholarly currency, in turn, enhances faculty teaching and interactions with students, from freshman through doctoral levels.
