Through correspondence with the Hotel General Manager, it was found that he had increased the rates for the use of the hotel and the breakfast room. This was not done.

The rates on the hotels and rooming houses

are now $2:00 per day, but the young men who are going to stay in the hotel will only be charged $1:50 per day.

By this action, the Hotel General Manager

is devaluing the hotel.

The rates at the hotel have not been increased in the past.

This action has been taken in order to increase the business in the hotel.

In order to secure the best accommodations and meals, the young men who are going to stay in the hotel should be prepared to pay the increased rates.

HER CHANCE AT LADY

The occupants of the parlor car of the train were all wondering about the strange occurrence of two masked men. "There up your hands, everybody," roared the driver. The passengers looked to the rear but only saw the words. "Silence, you thieves," commanded the agent. "You're not going to escape now." One of the men, with a skillful motion, snapped a female passenger of the train, "This is the biggest train robbery I've ever heard of." The two men then disappeared, leaving the passengers stunned.

THE GROUND UPERS

by Frederica McWilliams

Time has been following the crew of Hump-Hog, who are all known to the Poly students as Croco-Coo and Poof. Last week, while the two were out on a mission, they were spotted by a Poly student, who then relayed the news to the Poly community.

Mr. Thompson was reading a book and was intrigued by the story. He turned to his neighbor and said, "Isn't that a good tale? I just finished it recently." Mr. Thompson's neighbor replied, "Yes, it's a good story, but I think you should finish it. I'm not sure if you'll enjoy it."

Mr. Thompson then continued to read the book.

To show Poly friends the course of events, the Poly student went to a young man in his service, and the Poly student related the story of the Poly student.

Schofield Barracks

December 12, 1920

Our morning hours here in the Schofield Barracks are full of excitement and practice and study in the Howitzer Division.

In the afternoon I "work out" with the Major, Hump-Hog, track coach for the 11th Infantry, held a regenerative training camp yesterday. We have a practice range for the Howitzers, and the Major gave us his opinion on every shot. The Major was very careful to teach us to aim accurately in the Howitzers and to understand the limitations of the heavy cannon. I've been learning a lot and I have a lot to practice.

Our evening hours are spent on study and practice in the Howitzer Division. We have a lot of work to do, but I'm enjoying it."
