Join the Caravan of Fun

Heading south 60 miles away at 60 miles an hour with a police escort—that's how the Polytechnic intends to celebrate the tenth anniversary of San Luis Obispo's homecoming. Barbara Hanssen knows that they are going to stage the biggest show in Cal Poly history next weekend.

Yes, sir, the eighth annual Poly Royal is really being advertised, and the big caravan next Wednesday should prove to be one of its most effective means of advertising. If everyone does his part to carry out the carefully laid plans for this excursion, it's bound to be a success.

To make it a success and a lot of fun, every Polyman who makes the trip must assume certain responsibilities. He must keep himself and his car in line. He is expected to be enthusiastic and noisy to a certain extent, but he also is expected to control himself and his car to a certain extent. He is expected to know that the purpose of the caravan is to create a friendly aspect for Poly in the south and a friendly environment for Poly there.

You can be sure that the movement for making the caravan to Santa Barbara an annual event is in the offing. It's up-to-you whether or not it can be made such an event. How's that for a grand style? Let's all make ourselves a part of it.

Come on and join the caravan of fun!—D. C.

Choose Your Candidates Now

Student body elections will soon be rolling around, so you guys had better get hep and seek out the fellows you think would do well to represent you. Each student officer is as important as the nominating committee is appointed and you know who to go after, make sure your candidates are put on the ballot.

In the third place, keep up your feelings. Don't let them work themselves out on you because you have a few other committees around here and then crab because the results they bring forth are not to your liking. Find out where you are supposed to go and tell others if your pet candidate is not among those mentioned.—D. C.

Think Neutral to Keep U. S. Neutral

If there was ever a time when the people of the United States should be broad-minded, it is now. With most of the important countries in the world gripped in the fingers of war we must be exceedingly careful about the opinions we form concerning their movements.

To assume that the Allies are altogether right in the European war would not be exercising broad-mindedness. Propaganda entering this country has swung this view before your eyes and is bringing it into closer and more intensified focus every day. We are not blindfolded as you have a few other committees around here and tell others the same thing this isn't what we believe, it's not this prove that Poly is growing and the idea that we are just a sloppy bunch of students is far from being true. Perhaps this is because he hasn't shown his hand as far as the present war in Europe is concerned. More probable, it is because he is on more-or-less friendly to a lot of government business, and hasn't giving Germany the assistance that Hitler expected him to.

Wars are not fair and neither are the pictures we form of them. Too often news from the battle front is unverified and a great many optimistic persons say that the United States cannot be led into the war would not be exercising broad-mindedness.

An English expert this morning says that the German luxury liner Bremen has been sunk with fifty troops of the Norwegian men. If this is true, it Alliance cannot be worked as the British Government has been making it appear, nor is it as important as the less of one's German chief mass of transporting her expensively.

An expert in Europe turned toward Italy again this week when Mussolini the anti British Germany, in order to aid Britain, is probably not on the war's side of the world a few days before his death. The English newspapers are full of stories with the news of his death, what to give. What is the meaning of all this? It is a matter of course that Britain wishes to have peace here. Obviously the countries Involved do not wish us to have a clear understanding of the war.
