They're a Good Investment

Some comments made by members of the Associated Students to the effect that their student body tickets are not worth the money they expend for them. In answer to those comments we offer this brief editorial.

Whether you realize the fact or not, Cal Poly is one of the most truly democratic colleges in the country. Here the student wish is the direct result of our having student funds to run our own affairs.

Without the student body ticket our activities would come to a standstill. We would be a school without an annual; without a newspaper; without a decently equipped football, track, basketball, or baseball field. We would not be a Poly College; we would be a Poly student body.

If you dislike the restrictions on your time, your thinking, your saintly acts, or any other thing, just come right out and give us a chance to make it worth while. It is you who are responsible for our student body tickets. They're a good investment.

War Will Not Be Over Quickly

While campaign speeches fill the air over the United States, the atmosphere of pre-election is full of blue smoking words of student politicians on the Cal Poly campus. This assembly will start the ball rolling for 1940's Associated Students election.

Particular attention should be paid to what some are best fit­ ted for each office since next year is going to be a critical one for Cal Poly. Babhood of the four year plan can develop into a man­ vorous step toward growth for our college, or it can cause a lot of problems.

A tremendous weight is going to be put upon the shoulders of student officers next year. An ever increasing student body calls for more and more exercises of democratic principles. New liberties for student representatives will call for men who are able to put these new liberties to work.

We must weigh the characteristics, experience, and abilities of every man who chooses to vote for you. It will more than repay us to be careful in making our selections for student offices.–D. C.

The Chips That Fly

By Don Carlson

The chips that fly seem to have multiplied, but don't be afraid that there isn't one near you. The fellows thought it was just possible that the chips might fly. They were certainly taken aback when the first one hit them. The fellow just had a few chips in his pocket to prove that a fellow doesn't have to be in debt to others.

Spring Football Practice Enters Final Week After Revealing Promising Men

By Frank Finitin

P H I

— His running and passing while filling that fourth back field is quite a bit of pride to his football fans.

More Brimstones Than Golds

This year's Mustang football team will have a great deal of ability from the line. Perhaps the greatest asset in the four horse race this year is the depth of the talent in the backfield, in their choice of material.

Howie and Don DeRosa substantially the practices is the new material that really are snowing a world of ability who last year played guard is back on the left half spot have practically as — as the out defense has been something ..

Going into the last week of spring practice sessions, Head Coach George Mishey, who not only has put on some fine blocking exhibitions but also has been working quite hard on his offense for next year. He has been passing every practice day to get the boys ready for next year. There is a lot of work to be done and the boys will have to play hard to get the best out of their ability.

Fencing Students Work Out Twice Weekly at Poly Under Doc Bowls

Fencing, the fastest-growing sport, has made its appearance at Cal Poly. Of the lack of equipment, there are only two students learning the art. The only equipment available is a pair of scissors, a sword, and a mask, all owned by Roy Coyle. The student taking fencing is Vincent Triners.

Twice weekly two of the undergraduates attempt to master the mystery of the sword. The fencing gym right in front of the physics building is the scene of the events.

Fencing is not yet one of the better known sports at Poly, and the boys who are learning it have to do so on their own. They have been trained by Roy Coyle, who is the only one in the school that is known to be able to fence.

Rodeo Team Members Compete in Wasco Roundup

Several members of the Poly rodeo team will compete in the Wasco Roundup last Saturday. Vic Turner will take the calf roping event, while fast rider and team roper, Bill Gallagher entered the bareback riding event.

Some of the fellows will ride in the California Rodeo at Santa Maria June 2 when they will go to Buellton to compete in the various events.

Polo is surely one of the most popular of these sports, in all of the sports, tennis is played on an intercollegiate basis just as baseball, football, and basketball.

The point of these savings is this—polo will compete in the Wasco Rodeo, one of the major sports that are played on an intercollegiate basis, but don't know anything but get out and do something

Each student of our own peculiar rig-up and entirely modeling the modem farmer, the son of the famer who was a boy, had a chance to meet the farmers, but this year the leaders were too busy to meet the farmers. The boys who were elected are or are too occupied with their studies to have time to do much farming.

This year, however, more than before, the Polyman in this class have been coming in to town with some interesting stories. In fact, some of their interviews during the day have been something of a feeding story and that the boys are readily obtaining many fine photos of the sport. We didn't know it myself until last week and put it to

A ticket that I'm in the class with a lot of other classes around the school who think if you participate in some major sport you're doomed to be a spectator for the four years of your college life.

George Mishey, Dr. W. E. Bowls, and George Drumm, in my mind deserve a lot of credit for the development of these newer sports.
