Poly Livestock Goes to Cow Palace; President McPhee Will Be at Opening

In the cold, gray dawn of yesterday, ten Cal Poly Meat Animats and their cattle started for the Cow Palace in San Francisco. A snow and sleet storm was raging through the city when they started. The cattle were divided into three pens and loaded. The pens were headed, and kicked and caused some excitement amongst the horses and men of the baggage teams. It was a hard, wet job, and the men did their best to get the cattle packed up and on the road to the general livestock barns.

When all the horses of the stock were loaded, they were able to be taken to the Opera House for the exhibition. The exhibitions will begin at 11:30 A.M., and will continue until 5:30 P.M., when a dinner will be served. The stock will be on exhibition until 7:30 P.M., and will be in the barns until Monday morning.

American Farmer Strives For Poly Degree

By Charles Manahed

Awarded his American Farmer degree, Mr. Crnklaw, owner of the Monterey county hog raising plant, has been hard at work on the various agriculture courses and leader in student activities. Mr. Crnklaw was one of the first large hog raisers in the county, and has been featured on the front page of a local hog show. He has invested $1,500 in his project, which is his largest to date. It has been a great success, and he plans to continue raising hogs in the future.

FACULTY LOWDOWN

Professor Lowdown is the faculty advisor of the agriculture club. He is a well-known figure on campus, and is always available to answer students' questions. He is particularly interested in the students' progress and success.

Humboldt Wins Dull Battle, 7-0

California Poly's annual home-curing football game, marred by a torrent of wind, failed to impress the throng of fans at Poly's stadium. The game, which was played in the face of the wind, ended with the score of 7-0, with Humboldt winning. The Poly defense proved to be a formidable wall for Humboldt as it was the first appearance of the Mustangs in this season. The Poly offense, led by quarterback Soroka, scored the only points of the game when he kicked the ball into the end zone for a touchdown. The Poly defense played a solid game, allowing only seven yards of total offense. The Poly offense, however, failed to capitalize on their opportunities, turning the ball over on downs in the second quarter.

Poly Gridders Who Took a Major Share in Winning Mustang Games

Poly held onto a 7-0 lead throughout the game, as both teams struggled to gain any traction on offense. Poly's defense, led by Soroka, was able to pressure the Mustangs throughout the game, resulting in three conversions and two touchdowns. Poly's offense, on the other hand, struggled to get anything going, turning the ball over on downs in the second quarter. The game ended with Poly holding onto a 7-0 lead.

Poly Holds Army in Line During Game

Alumnus Bill Burritt Serves England’s Cause in Civil Technical Corps

Bill Burritt, a former student of California Polytechnic college, now is on his way to England as a member of the Civil Technical Corps.

The Civil Technical Corps is composed of trained American engineers, architects, and other scientific and technical experts, who volunteered to help Great Britain win the war. The call for aid, made immediately after Pearl Harbor, was answered by a large number of American scientists, engineers, and others.

Burritt, who was graduated from the school in 1941, is one of the first to arrive in England. He will help in the construction of factories, roads, and other vital projects.

Burritt was born in California and attended California Polytechnic College. He is a member of the Civilian Technical Corps and will help defeat Hitler. Further details on his work are expected to be released soon.

Poultry Boys Give Bird To Alumni; All Stuff Selves at Turkey Banquet

Julian A. McPhie, president of California Polytechnic College, hosted a turkey banquet on November 6th. The event was for alumni and friends who have been involved in poultry work.

Jose Luis Santoyo, Saroka, T. Woods, T. Woods, and others gave an interesting talk on poultry work they have been doing. His presentation included a slide show of the poultry students and their projects.

Harry Wineroth, who played one of the roles in the play, gave an interesting, though brief, part in educating people to re-adapt the kind of old lady of the smartly dressed officer.
