WASC Team on Campus April 3-5

A team from the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), Cal Poly's regional accrediting agency, will visit campus April 3-5. Accreditation affirms the value of a Cal Poly degree, allows students to be eligible for federally funded financial aid, and ensures that other universities will recognize students' academic credit. Students, staff and faculty are invited to read the summary of the self-study report submitted in preparation for the site visit and to attend an open forum during the visit. For more information, visit the WASC website.

Student Success

Cal Poly Students' Reptile Research Earns Nearly $11,000 in Grants

Two Cal Poly biology grad students have received grants for reptile research. Biological Sciences master's student Kory Heiken received a $500 grant from the Chicago Herpetological Society and a $9,050 from Vandenberg Air Force Base to study rattlesnake relocation there. He'll investigate whether there is any physiological impact on Southern Pacific rattlesnakes (Crotalus oreganus helleri) after they are moved to isolated areas on the base, away from places frequented by humans. And grad student Kyle Weichert was awarded a $500 grant from the Chicago Herpetological Society to study the ability of the Western fence lizard to kill Borrelia burgdorferi, the bacterium that causes Lyme disease. Weichert will study the effects that high testosterone, the steroid hormone corticosterone, and differences between males and females may play in the lizard's ability to develop immunity to Lyme disease.
