Dear John...

To Whom It May Concern:

The Co-educational Movement may rest assured for a while with the letter this Fox II carries unless some one in the P.S. Hall says that I have changed my mind in the least about it. John, poly student, I say it at Poly, but there comes a time in a man’s life when he has to take a look at the facts. Money talks, and money vanishes and must be replaced by other assets. This is my time, when my的学生, my pocketbook, is once more fat with the dollars of the campus. I will retain to continue my battle with the Co-educational movement, if providest, they haven’t all married rich wrong-headed students.

I sincerely hope that during my rule at Poly, the conditions of the college have improved. Areal of a Fox II will carry on the banner of freedom from feminine faculty.

In six months, maybe two years, I will be back, providing that the freedom of Poly has been maintained.

Sincerely yours,

Robert E. Kennedy

Voorhis Unit, Poly's Southern Branch, San Dimas, Expands

After having been closed period during the war, the horticulture branch of Cal Poly continued its expansion, which was doubled that of normal years. In the 1946-1947 year, 219 were veterans and the remaining 41 men. Only 11 men returned at the end of the Fall quarter. Students enrollment reached 390.

There were approximately 100 men eligible for admission who applied but were not accepted because of limited facilities. Of the total students enrolled at the beginning of the Fall quarter, 192 single men were housed in four dormitories on the campus, and 18 married students brought their own trailers into a park made available on the campus.

Dean of the Voorhis unit, Harold W. Wilson, was an instructor at the Poly in 1930 and 1931, and was the director of the Bureau of Agricultural Education from 1940 to 1948. Nine instructors and two librarians were added to the staff. In fact, the Voorhis unit was assigned to citrus fruit production and agricultural chemistry, one instructor each was assigned to agriculture, dairy, poultry and rabbit production. The Voorhis unit will enroll at that time.

The Voorhis unit is on 160 acres. Of this 26 acres are suitable to house students. If facilities are sufficient to make widespread offerings in dairy, poultry and rabbit production, we will anticipate that 400 students enrolled at that time.
