Annual County TB Checkup
To Be Held In September

Throw out your chest, Maec!
The anti-tuberculosis van is on the way. Launching the annual two-week countywide T. B. checkup, San Luis Obispo county's Tuberculosis and Health association will station its picture equipment on the campus September 16 to give free medical service from 9 to 11 and 1 to 3 p.m. each day, located next to the medical center.

All new students, all campers, food handlers, employees at the dairy and poultry plants will be required to take the examination. Other students, wives, and families are invited. Dean Vern Meacham announces. Wives and families are asked to come at the 2 o'clock period.

We all know the importance of detecting tuberculosis in its early stage. The sooner noted, the sooner treated, the sooner it's ended. And we ought to be attempting the time to the understanding that it's actually as important as immunization and registration and enrollment schedules.

Part of their regular physical examination, the tuberculosis test will be done on campus.

Administration Shift Moves Wilson To Poly

A new organizational plan for the California State Polytechnic College, with campuses at San Luis Obispo, San Dimas and Pomona, is being put into operation this week. It was announced Tuesday by President Chester McPhee. The new plan is a part of an extensive study of administrative features of all the 10 state colleges made cooperatively by the California State Department of Finance and the State Board of Public Works.

As Architects Meet

As Architects Meet

Architectural students can play an important part in the modernization of the central campus. That was one of the points stressed in a recent meeting of architectural students at the Polytechnic. The meeting was staged to promote interest in the subject, it was stated, and to give the new students an opportunity to meet and talk to the professional people in the field.

The group also discussed mutual education problems, teacher training, and every one of us want our graduates to go into teaching. A maximum amount of professional education is given in the high school. That is to be counted. The call on this campus is high and therefore it was considered reasonable.

War Emergency Topics Discussed As Architects Meet

The part which architecture and architectural students can play in a war-time emergency was one of the topics discussed at a meeting of West Coast architectural schools.

The meeting was attended by the California State Polytechnic College architectural department head, who just returned from the Berkeley meeting.

Attending the meeting were the architectural department heads from Washington State University, Oregon State University, California Institute of Technology, Washington Polytechnic Institute and the University of Oregon; Professor Ralph Priestley, Cal Poly, and Michael J. Chartres, Poly.

The group also discussed mutual curriculum problems, teacher training in the architectural field.

The other educators expressed the opinion that there would be a great number of us who would elect the architectural study as their major.

Having taken most of my meals at old Mother Dan's during the summer, I was naturally caught unprepared for the night that prevailed my this-much eyes as I stumbled into Noggle's beaury for a spot of shore. There before me arrears of anxiety clad female. Figuring that I had happened into a Turkish harem by accident or being of a faint-hearted brain, I immediately bolted for the door but was restrained by the general population of a little more. Quite a little more.

It took considerable effort to restrain sh and quiet my fears, but reason and strength combined to allay my fears. The victims, as I was told, happened to be the visiting FEI

You see, girls, you represent the most imp Or the currently. Oh, we have sport, intran tional sums, and talents, ball and hands. Al Gomes, old man Dita, and various other entertainers. But we have plenty. But we do not fascinate. Just ask any rogueish young Polyites what he misses most and how much. How much? "A dance. Women. Don't ask him during the day. "Women. Don't ask them to get dugged. What's more you would deserve to get slapped.

It's not right to see these affection-starved people getting away with murder by the local police. What they're trying to imagine just can't be imagined.

Let's assume that the home of the Mustangs happened to go co-educational for a brief span. Why prosperity would boom. Women's shops would be expected sources of employment. Senior, old Dan Luis. Men would now seem to start running the Earth. Better yet, they could even try washing them. No more ode to cheap labor perishing the female dancers. A worthwhile dance hall would prove a gold mine for some enterprising soul.

Need Accident Insurance?

Somewhere amid the 60 odd inches of copy occupying the front page of El Mustang this Friday of August 26th is a small story telling of a new insurance policy being offered by the state to Poly students. To some, this might appear to be just another space filler—it was that too. But to others, who realize the trouble to which certain individuals of campus have gone to obtain this premium, the story begins to mean a little more. Quite a little more.

For several years students who have met with campus accidents have complained loud and long about the absence of state coverage. For these people, it was not enough that the state furnished an education, but they also expected insurance against everything from a common cold to a foot injury. Dean of students, Vem Meacham, has worked long and hard to allay my doubta, Thaaa vials, and quiet my fears, but reason and strength combined to allay my fears. For several years students who have met with campus accidents have complained loud and long about the absence of state coverage. For these people, it was not enough that the state furnished an education, but they also expected insurance against everything from a common cold to a football injury. The answer in form of the new low cost policy is now here.

For the small cost of three skins per quarter, or nine rocks per school year, a student can now be insured for all medical expenses up to 500 dollars, whether the accident occurs on or off campus. Another good point, so the story points out, your entitled to as many accidents as you can live through.

Dear of students; Vern Meacham, has worked long and hard to obtain this policy for the students. It is now up to only the students to furnish the rest. Three dollars per quarter. After all, what more could you ask. Insurance against the Selective Service?

Big Grid Turnout Expected Monday

King football will roar his head from behind a blanket of summer activity on the California Poly campus Monday when Leroy Hughes, the Mustang's mentor, welcomes 70 assistants to the first fall practice.

Hughes, looking forward to his first year as head of the Mustang pack, will direct his first practice Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. With a day drill, he will lead the first week, the morning session starting at 7:30 a.m.

Twenty-one varsity lettermen, eightjunior varsity wrappers and fifteen junior college transfers are expected to be among those drawing suits Monday morning.

Hughes feels the Mustang first practice comes none too soon. Cal Poly opens the 1960 season on September 16 in the stadium against conference member Pepperdine college. The Waves started practice one week ago and have had four days before the Mustangs.

Hughes is going along with the idea that as early as it is good any way when speaking of military service and Mustang gridiron, The Mustangs have not been hit too hard yet but Hughes is prepared for the worst.
