Student Drowns at Avila; Search for Body Continues

The body of Henry F. Meyer, 22, Cal Poly student who drowned at Avila late Sunday afternoon, has not been recovered as of late Sunday night. Meyer was one of a party of seven men who capsized in a small boat about 100 yards offshore from the Avila breakwater as they were returning to a recorded power boat after hunting for salmon near the Avila groyne, where they had been for about 60 miles.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. when the overloaded skiff was swamped by a wave and overturned. About 60 people from the Avila breakwater to shore were present when the boat overturned, but none of them realized the accident and didn't mention it until after the young man's body was recovered.

High School Students To Inspect Poly Lands

The senior class of the San Luis Obispo high school will tour Poly campus March 19 to view the results of the "Field of Science" project. The project was started last fall with plots of perennial, range-planting, fertiliser, pasture, and hayland, watered and fertilised. The lack of rain during the winter has hindered the project somewhat.

They will be guided by the university's farm advisor's office. Stanley K. Hall and Robert E. Dooley, Dairy Manufacturing students, have long been planning this enterprise and when the school purchased four war surplus freezers, their plans were quickly put into action.

Students Promote Campus-Ice Cream Project Store

In keeping with the "Learn by doing" motto of Cal Poly, the Dairy Manufacturing department has instituted its first student project. This project is the long awaited Cal Poly ice cream project.

The students responsible are Stanley K. Hall and Robert E. Dooley, Dairy Manufacturing students. These two students have long been planning this enterprise and when the school purchased four war surplus freezers, their plans were quickly put into action.

The actual sales of this product began during the between-semester vacation. The only flavor they are selling now is vanilla, due to a lack of flavoring material. However, in the near future, Hall and Dooley are planning to have a steady supply of vanilla, strawberry, and chocolate ice cream as well as a weekly special. All requests for other flavors will be considered and if the number is great enough, every effort will be made to supply the demand.

With the trials of a new business out of the way, Hall and Dooley are devoting more time toward expanding this project in order to better serve the wants and needs of Cal Poly.

HOOF PRINTS

By Russ Pi6e

It must be spring. Snowdrifts, snowbanks, snow in the roofs and mantels. The snowboard made a few awards the other day, in which we have come to expect.

Last week's weather caused the greatest uprising since the white man came to this territory. It was enough to drive a man into a mule to rush for the Indians. There were six men who spent eight months trying to get to the heat. Several others were placed in the air, games were played throughout the state, 17 games were played in one afternoon.

If it was snow, we would have a good reason. It has been rumored the three men involved left the room the next day after some smoke was seen, but no one is quite sure why. But as it's only snow, it's raining.

This isn't the first case of disruption to be caused by the Poly, the Poly's actual winter situation. The case of Mr. D. A. formerly of USC is one of the newest additions to the Big Crowns frac­ tured. He worked hard with the group of water-polo men the entire time. No history. Mr. Anderson lost a good deal of his way's the Poly, but he's trying to get the men in shape and that's next season.

But what happens? Coach Dipz Anderson finds out that officially, water-polo is not at all at Cal Poly. You could have looked the fish in his mouth with a sewer­ pipe. He, for the last time, said that men could not receive so much as a water-polo lesson because of the Poly effort. The team, of course, was still invited to try the warm end of the spring. But warm water only meant for a Poly. Just two weeks ago water-polo was recognized as an up and coming sport. It's new official—the first Poly. We have a water-polo team at Poly. That's new official, I think.

It's about time we cleaned up this mess. Whether anyone's feelings might be hurt. Arrange enough, all the people on the board, but one are handed like students—PID majore at that. Of course there were all football players but you might hold that against them. I took this you can? Someone is slipping at the Poly, that's only an accident—changes, the represent­ atives from such sources. Maybe there would be a wider distribution of these resources than ever. Maybe the board could set up a definite rule on the amount of time a player must get in during the year. Then John Wright would have to do it, keep a time clock on the side for the men to punch in and out. Nice idea?

But enough of this small stuff. Let's tackle something big like the A.P. I could come right out and say that they can't win. But I can say that they hate the kind of basket­ ball that is played on the coast, but this might not be the truth. I play with Peasont Sullivan, who said in the Examiner: "The Rocket team was even-though the Golden Mountains." I agree with him, but I think it is the A.P. I still think they're down in the West Coast. For what? I don't know.

Before the boys of the PCC were dealt in the All-American selection, nothing stood in their way. When last we heard, Mr. Chief of Washington, and Har­ mon of UC are among, someone will have eye and ear trouble.

But before they put me and my win as a win away, it looks like the Bob Job and crew will bring the long awaited laurel to Poly this season. The Poly team in individual points by Nichols of Washington, and Han­ derson of UC and Bob Job of Washington. They won a placing at the Ranch rodeo, PCC can selection was... neither roped and tied in the 20's that was not quite good enough. The team did a good job in all, and considering the terrific odds through numbers alone in competing riders, it was the best Poly could do. It was a good showing and deserve your congratulations.

LEARN SELF DEFENSE

Dave Riding, Boxing Coach and the Poly's right hand man, will be in the gym every day from 5 to 9 p.m., to instruct both beginners and advanced men in boxing. The instructions for this Monday.

Paiwol, states it will give him a chance to look over next year's riders, and with the opportunity to hold a smoker some time this fall.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Editor dear:

A section of the Engineering Council chairmen says,

"To promote and put into effect a definite code of ethical behavior for the members of our profession, requires that these future professional men with their moral, religious, and social ideals set forth in our constitution, yet only one state out of the forty-eight has passed civil-rights laws, and one block of states is ready to try another civil war because the President made a speech for civil liberties."

Our previous letter is jaded, but in the absence of only this institution but also a direct and unforgivable weakness on the part of a few of the faculty members and a great many students, our position is defended by our religious newspapers that the college, as an institution, is thinking, we are still laboring under the Machiavellian philosophy of life and death, and the same forces that hold back the".

"It seems to me that until we can all take an active part in the fight against wrong we are going to be worse. Our generation has seen too much, and I believe in the future that we can make a better world.

"File Thirteen . . ."

After many months of living in Camp Pol, there are some situations that occur which are not as amusing as they first appear. Some of these situations arise from the fact that the students themselves are not entirely innocent. Many of them have, even when faced with an obvious violation of the rules, chosen to ignore them. The following is a typical example of such behavior.

"The book, 'Three By Eight...'"

Robert Reak is an elegant man of society with one green eye and one brown one. He is tall, well-dressed, and has a charming smile. Last week, he was seen in the vicinity of Greenie's, a local bar known for its friendly service and lively atmosphere. On closer inspection, it became clear that he was drinking heavily. His behavior became increasingly erratic as the night wore on, and he soon became quite rowdy.

The next day, the usual students were quick to point out his behavior, and a discussion ensued about the importance of responsible drinking. It was agreed that while moderation is key, excessive alcohol consumption can have serious consequences.

New Organizations

Two rather distinctive clubs made a bid for the interest of the student body this past week. One was the anti-MacArthur character, and the other was the garage sale club. Although the former has been gaining strength, the latter has not been as successful in attracting new members. The garage sale club is a group of students who don't think too kindly of the General's efforts in time of war or peace.

The international group is trying to arouse the members of the student body to greater political participation on the Poly campus to get together to discuss problems of current interest to them as citizens of a country andend of the world. El Mustang is in favor of both groups and invites group editorials from members of either club for publication of their ideas.
Mustang Roundup To Feature
New Short Stories

Art Gandy, editor of the Mustang Roundup, Cal Poly’s humor magazine, has announced that publication of this month’s issue has been delayed, due to the week’s vacation at the end of the quarter. Gandy has stated that he is confident that the magazine will be on sale by the end of the month.

He added that the Roundup will feature a number of snazzy, witty short stories in addition to the regular collection of jokes and cartoons. Some of the stories are “The Life of Walter Witty,” by Harry Chubbuck, and “Out of the Ark.” The latter story features Reg Jespersen, one of the nation’s Bon ripo and Harold Winslow, noted most valuable player on the Cal Poly football team this past season. Gandy said that the magazine also will feature a center page spread focused on Cal Poly’s motto, “Learn by doing.”

Gandy stated that the Mustang Roundup will be on sale in the Corral, and will also be available from student salesmen in the near future.

Salinas Alumni
Hear McPhee

A regional meeting of the Poly alumni members in the Salinas area was held at the Salinas Inn on the evening of March 18. About 17 alumni members and their wives were present to hear President Julian A. McPhee talk on recent progress of the college.

Included among those who made the trip from Salinas were: President McPhee and Mrs. McPhee, John Harris, president of the alumni association, Ed Jorgenson, Harold P. Davidson, C.O. McCorkle, Carl O. Beck, Alden Turner, secretary-treasurer of the association, Vernon Mescham, Robert Kennedy, John Jones, and the Three Dukes, Kevin Hawkins, Stan Raymond, and Skip Costa.

These regional meetings are being planned in hopes of reactivating the alumni association. The meeting also featured a center page cartoon on Cal Poly’s motto, “Learn by doing.”

National Coverage

“Out country Gal on a college campus” Cal Poly’s popular Poly Roundup is taking shape at a good pace, the advertising department reported today. Pictures of the Queen of queens, our very own “first lady,” Pat Walker, in action among the various enterprises and projects throughout the campus, shot photos of various industrial and agricultural activities are being sent to us across the nation.

To give the newer students an idea of the scope of operations and the work being done in all fields, and 30 magazines throughout the country, 50 magazines covering industrial fields, and 50 magazines of general interest, including those in the sciences and humanities, have been sent pictures of Queen Pat Walker, a general release on Poly Royal, and a copy of last year’s pictorial.

Chesterfield-KPIK Giveaway Stunt Renewed

The Chesterfield tie-in deal with Cal Poly's favorite radio program, "Dancetime," heard nightly 10-12 on KPIK has been renewed after the recent brief vacation.

Several new dorm representatives have been appointed to give out cigarettes to those who qualify. Among them are: Chase Hall, John Patterson in room 3, and in Deuel Dorm there is Dean Allen in room 41. These men are stationed with Chesterfields and are ready to distribute them. All the "Dancetime" listeners have to do is call KPIK, (S.L.O. 3171) or drop a postcard to Hugh Haring, head jockey and request a Perry Como or Jo Stafford record. When the record is played on the show, he should immediately drop his homework or other interruptions and head for the dorm agent. This procedure will give him a pack of Chesterfields.

New angles are being planned for this publicity program, which frankly is intended to introduce Chesterfields to more of the student smokers. So listen to "Dancetime" and get those requests in, but they must be played before the deal is complete.

If your dorm is not equipped with hot and cold running agents, come to El Mustang and they'll put you in touch with the overall campus representative who will give you any last you have coming and might even appoint you dorm agent with all the extras this commercial morsel brings.
