Face Lifting To Give Welding Shop Added New Look

The welding shop is to be refigured and a new addition to the shop will be constructed in the near future, according to Richard C. Wiley, welding department head.

The new addition, which is to be built on the north side of the building, will include a tool room, stock room, and wash room. The present tool, stock, and wash rooms are to be rased and a number of students moving shop equipment from them in preparation for the new shop.

An entirely new welding and Sprint, P. O. C. C. and a C. C. machine is being installed. The booths, located in two rows, will have a bank of machines at each end, each having the latest type of welder.

Other plans, Wiley said, include enlarging the office area, and adding a sales area, and the installation of a compressed air system to air the machines in the shop.

The project will install much needed equipment for student labor almost entirely.

According to Wiley the shop with its new equipment will be the best and the latest in the welding laboratory in the state.

Livestock Judges Convene on Campus For Three Day 'School' Session

The story on how to produce better steaks and other meat products is being plotted this week at a livestock judges conference held at Cal Poly using Pely stock. This week is the west's top blue ribbon judges at fairs which Printing Students Given Responsible Summer Positions

Proof that students attending Cal Poly are finding excellent summer jobs was shown recently when Guy Thomas, student of Cal Poly's "school for county printers" was hired by the Merchandise Linotype Company as an assistant in Sacramento.

Thomas left the San Francisco plant of the Merchandise Linotype Company last Monday. His itinerary will be the erection of Linotype machines in Salem, Portland, Eugene, and Seattle.

Harry Porter, manager of the Cal Poly Printing Services, sent a letter to a student asking them to write a letter to "Efficiency, printing departments usually need students for three or four more like Guy, we could use him."

Joe Blotek, another student of printing, has found a bookstore summer job. He is employed by the "Bookman" as a pressman and printer.

Remaining El Rodeo Employees

Those students who have not yet received their El Rodeo will be mailed at the earliest possible time. Approximately 150 students have not yet received their El Rodeo and are demanding them. Some of these students are still at school and are pointing out that they should receive their El Rodeo before they receive the balance due.

According to the editor of the year book, about 400 books remain in the bookstore. In addition, there are a few extra books for those who have not yet ordered them. For any new student who may desire one, the college is sending them, and if they notify them that they would like one, it will be sent to them upon receipt of the balance due.

Division Of Instrucion Meets On Campuses

The State Division of Instruction met on Monday for a meeting of division, met on the Poly campus, and on Tuesday at various other locations. A tour of the campus was arranged for the students of various departments and bureaus, and a number of education were represented in the three day conference.

Registration Forms Long Overdue

There are still a few sets of registration cards that have not been turned in to the registrar's office. Students are not officially registered until the forms are completed. Veterans not officially registered are requested to fill their veterans checks.

Music Men Elect For Next Year

The executive board of the music department elected Kenneth Taylor, Poly, the University of California, as chairman of the board for the coming academic year. Taylor, a student of Poly, is expected to be in attendance at the last meeting held on Tuesday, May 29, the last meeting held at Poly, and will assume his duties at the first meeting of the new academic year.

$11,000 Posted; Lower Accident Rate?

Ed. Note—The editors of El Mustang again take liberty to discuss a bill of legislation. This time we look at the new Financial Responsibility law which now affects California motorists. As usual we 'editorialize' our arguments.

CON

California drivers, already acquainted with the complexities of getting licenses, are in for another hard lesson. Even though their drivers' license book is stuffed upon their pocketbook, a new Financial Responsibility law has been enacted in California. This legislation requires individuals who are involved in an accident to deposit sufficient security to satisfy any judgement that may result from the accident.

This law is designed to lower the terrifying high accident rate and to encourage all drivers to be more careful. The new law will be open to loopholes. For instance, two automobiles crashed near a garage. After carefully cleaning up the broken glass, both drivers, knowing they were only going to be given a warning, shook hands and walked off congratulating themselves.

The law was rather unique. It required all drivers who killed someone in an accident to give $11,000. This was a fairly large sum, but with the sudden rise in prices, it has been enacted in California. This legislation requires individuals who are involved in an accident to deposit sufficient security to satisfy any judgement that may result from the accident.

In order to retain his operator's license, a driver must be able to determine a sufficient amount. This amount is quite uncertain, and it is difficult to determine accurately.

There are not many drivers who will voluntarily pay this amount. Therefore, the law will not be effective. However, the law will be a deterrent to drivers who are careless or reckless. It will also serve as a warning to those drivers who are careless or reckless.

Now under this new law the situation clears up a little. The law is not perfect, but it is a step in the right direction. However, it is not enough. More legislation is needed to reduce the accident rate.

This is a chemical combination that contains silicon, oxygen, and carbon. It is formed from the reaction of silicon dioxide and carbon monoxide. The result is a complex compound.

According to the law, the accused driver must give $11,000 to the person he has injured. The person injured may then file a lawsuit against the driver, and the driver must pay the damages. If the driver is found guilty, he must pay the damages plus court costs.

The law is not perfect, but it is a step in the right direction. However, it is not enough. More legislation is needed to reduce the accident rate.

MUSTANG 1949 Diamond Hopes Soar; League Favorites Lose to Pro Ranks

A recent press release from 25CA headquarters in San Diego gave this reporter reason to believe that the Cal Poly Mustangs will again win the conference title. The Mustangs have been favored to win the conference for the past three years.

But the 1949 Mustangs have a different approach to the season. "We've had our ups and downs," said Coach "Chuck" Pavelko. "But we've been practicing hard and I think we have a good team this year."

The Mustangs will be led by senior outfielder Dan Anderson, who hit .341 last season. Anderson is expected to be one of the top hitters in the conference.

Other returning starters include catcher Bob Kennedy, who hit .296 last season, and pitcher Bob Hanson, who compiled a 9-3 record.

The Mustangs will also benefit from the addition of several key transfers, including outfielder Joe Brown, who hit .359 at California State College, and first baseman Bill Hanson, who hit .326 at San Francisco College.

The Mustangs open their season against the University of California at Los Angeles on February 17. The game will be played at 7:30 p.m. at the LA Coliseum.

Guidance Center Open

A complete guidance service is available for service here on the campus, according to O. B. Ner­ren, director of the Cal Poly guidance center. Aptitude tests, interest inventories and other scientific measurements are given to determine the abilities of the students.

In addition, the guidance center is located in the Coy Building. Students are urged to make an appointment with the guidance counselor in the Coy Building for more information. All matters are kept strictly confidential.
