HUNGER INSURANCE... for the widely diversified livestock boarded and quartered on the Poly farm. The new feed mill and storage bins will mill and store all feed used on the farm. The large building is the main mill room which will deliver grain to the elevator which in turn distributes different grains to each of the eight bins.

By Phil Keyser

The feed situation will certainly be improved around here once we have our new feed mill "ready for work." These are Jim Case's sentiments. Case is the man in charge of most of the feed milling details on campus.

to date, according to Case, the mill building is nearly complete. But before the presses can be started, the actual milling operations.

To eliminate dustboxes, twine, and feed contamination between the birds, meat animals and poultry, and to provide increased storage space plus a more efficient and efficient milling system, are the multiple goals of our new mill's designer.

This desirable state is far from complete, however. The building, after two years under construction, is not ready for occupancy. The mill is still to the waiting in the mill to be actually brought up and ready for the State Highway commission.

A total of three separate construction agencies are cooperating toward the mill's completion. They are: the city of San Luis Obispo, the Southern California Steel Works, and the Southern California Steel Works.

Missouri Colleagues Stop Here During Unique Journey

Three university of Missouri students spent up at Cal Poly last weekend, broke, tired, and desperate for a place to sleep. Their mode of travelling was as unique as Poly's system of education. Each night they managed to hit a college town and there were sure to find a happy, unfraternized brother who would be able to afford shelter during their stay. Those colleges not having a chapter of their particular fraternity were caught by way of Pickwick Ltd. on the way to Memphis, where they were supplied with the means of transportation. The low summer expenses made it possible for them to travel by way of San Francisco, Reno, Denver, North and Tonopah, Nev. It will take them this fall to the West Coast.

In addition to the biggest livestock show in the world, the students also saw the world's largest rodeo competition; the national rodeo championships. The most famous circus acts in the between events. All are combined to provide a mammoth combination show in the 10,000 seat indoor stadium which is fast becoming known as the Madison Square Garden of the West.

This year $142,606 in cash premiums will be given away at the fair. The list of prizes which includes $62,606 will go to the largest exhibitor in each of the livestock categories. The Cow Palace is owned and operated by the state of California.

Campus Thoroughbreds Bring High Prices

Going to the tune of $2950. a Cal Poly colt hit an all-time high among the 42 entries at the recent yearling sale held at the Santa Anita Racetrack.

The bay colt is by Zuncho out of Lamplight, and is a fine bred filly, her grandparents on both sides of her pedigree being in the Don In-Law. This rare breed reared was purchased at the recent yearling sale held at the Santa Anita Racetrack.

The Other Person's Mail Pays Off for English Instructor

Having just completed a thirty-year business with John P. Kibbel, Cal Poly instructor in English literature, recently returned from his summer vacation. Not having been in residence, he has just registered for the first six weeks of the academic year.

Some have failed to complete proper forms including Change of Address, which the Recorder's office received to date requests that anyone in doubt about whether or not he has turned out in all the necessary forms should fill out the Change of Address form and clear up incomplete registration.

Have You Filled Out
P. L. 346 Form 7-52?

Law 84 were taken from Veterans Administration files at the end of the last school year, according to John E. Hart. Unless each student hasurnished his required discharge certificates, he will not receive an academic year. A check with the Recorder's office will let any student know if he has been cleared.

Student Takes Over Welding Shop Duty

Robert J. Conklin, mechanical engineering student, has taken charge of the Cal Poly welding shop as the absence of Richard D. Woll, department head, Conklin, who is the new welding instructor at the shop, assumed his duties Friday, August 6, and will be in charge until September 29. He has been employed during the summer doing fag and fixture work for the C. W. Wella company, underground construction, North Hollywood.

According to C. F. Knott, industrial division head, Woll has left for an absence of action to act as an inspector in the construction of a Hortogasaurus, a large spherical tank used to hold gasoline under pressure, being erected for the Shell Oil company by the Bechtel Construction Company.

Workmen who work for the airlines for the 107,000 people working for the airlines have been reported to have their wages cut. This action is a result of the higher cost of living in the past year. The airlines have asked their employers to cut wages and they have complied.

Have you filled out your P. L. 346 Form 7-52?

The notice sent out by the Department of the Interior will be issued again to all students who have not filled out this form. It is an old business to the Cal Poly lot. She was snapped up by the South American Gridiron to become a professional actress. The dam was Bon Eve, a well. The dam was Bon Eve, a well. This was the dam that the Poly man was able to give a success story of his position.

"And they pay for all the work that we do. The Poly man is able to give a success story of his position. And then help you get through college."

The Poly man was able to give a success story of his position. The Poly man was able to give a success story of his position. And then help you get through college. Ask your Poly man about it.

Again Blake explained how being the campus representative for California State University, College of Education, and for Campus magazine helped put him financially on the top.

The Governor then asked what the Poly student was doing now. Blake replied that he wanted to be a student in the College of Education.

The governor, taking somewhat of a break, remarked that what was so interesting was that something he couldn't talk about would be announced at some other place or future presidential appearances.

-NOTICE-

Today is Friday, the thirtieth, and as such, is a legendary evil one. Today must be led carefully and to avoid ending the day without mishap, the Administration has issued the following directive: Only students and employees will meet this afternoon. The other half will meet this afternoon.
We're Cross About
This Crossing!

As much of the land that Cal Poly encompassed was a gift to the state from Southern Pacific railroad, we suppose that we should blunt our arrows directed at this industrial giant. Sometimes every time we have too much cash for the bus and too little for the airline. However we do feel that we have been silent about one thing in connection with this problem for a period.

We refer to the most dangerous crossing in this area. That of the Foothill crossing. On a recent day we arrived at the crossing at 11:45 and in the next twenty-two minutes no less than eighty-seven cars, trucks and busses passed the crossing. By a highly relative heavy traffic, the Foothill crossing has slowly been falling into a state of ill-repair over the past years, and now the crossing of these three tracks are a threat to human life.

All busses passing over this right of way must first shift into compound low to keep momentum and yet go slow enough to keep four wheels upon the roadway. Already the Cal Poly school busses have been ordered not to use this crossing. A recent survey of the time it took for a bus to cross the tracks and for the time it took for a train to come out of view on the north turn till it reached the crossing showed that there was not a second to spare for avoiding the rut.

It hasn’t been willing to cooperate with Cal Poly in the past and we hope that they will take cognizance of our present problem.

Taking the Dim View

While thumbing through some exchange copies of the Stanford Daily, we came across an editorial on a controversial issue which has loomed up at that campus.

The Stanford Daily has an international foreign scholarship program in which the scholarship recipients are either on active Naval officer or an ex-Finnish artillery officer. According to the Stanford paper, the agency through which the names were cleared certifies to the fact that the former German officer was not a Nazi and did not believe in Nazi doctrines.

To illustrate the reaction by one student veteran to this chokes, we are reprinting excerpts from a letter he wrote to the editor of the Stanford Daily.

"My remarks are admittedly non-Christian, charitable or any other soft-headed pap used to describe people who pet snakes, an overturned car with skid marks, a dog, a hole in the roadway, a whipped horse, a sheep, an overturned car with skid marks, and the view of the Foothill crossing.

"It is evident that this veteran is full of hate, and that his point of view is extremely narrow. Although world conditions are very dark, the last great war is over. What would the world look like if we were prohibiting these men from studying at an American university? To be able to examine andocompany the students and circumstances of men who fought against us is, indeed, a rare opportunity.

"After first reading the letter written by this veteran, the average student might be inclined to sympathize with his attitude. Here is an individual who went through three and a half years of hell to free the world of hate, and oppression. It is obvious that in his letter, he is debating the purpose of all fighting."

"It should be well known and understood, after hundreds of years of wars, that when world leaders hold prejudiced and hate-filled beliefs like those mentioned, the outcome is eventually another costly and senseless conflict.

ARCHITECTS Toss PARTY (sort of) ... Anyway, we give you a shot of the recent activities concurrent with the new year, Steve Bruce, of centerpieces Ed Jennings. It seems that the boys fell Jennings needed to learn about diapers, bottles, etc. so the arch's threw a party and they all made merry drinking coke from baby bottles, put diapers on each other and generally made light fare. Art Dunnberly is that non-cut on the left, Mel Cullender is the men behind that happy look in the background. Kjertsen seems saddened by the whole thing behind Jennings, and Jerry Miyada's strong arm just manages to get into the picture. Jennings shows off his best profile while he reads, "What Ever Young Father Should Know."

-EL MUSTANG--PAGE TWO
Coughlan And McCutcheon Named In State All Star Baseball Tourney

BOB COGLANH AND BOB McCUTCHEON . Poly athletes of all trades were recently named to the state All Star baseball nine to the Sacramento state tourney.

The two boys, namely McCutcheon and Coughlan, were picked on the Sacramento state tourney All Star team. This bustling little duo who in the eyes of many observers form one of the most efficient base-ball combinations ever at Poly, won the acclaim of all in the up-state tournament.

Last season, these two minute Mustangs contributed almost wholly in the superior interior-defense of the Cal Poly nine. (We led the ECA in double-plays executed). Bob McCutcheon also led the team in batting with a healthy .341 average in conference play. In the state capital, McCutcheon got five singles out of nine attempts, and Coughlan rapped out six for eleven. Although Ben Carman, and "Pinky" Berberns didn't receive any individual honors, they were members of the Awteker Packers who were voted the "best dressed team" entered.

Coughlan, Lodi, who fell to his death last week. The old man is supposed to have stabbed her. "This was Weber's midnight attack on Miss Miller." Today was under arrest as a suspect, according to fishing authorities.

Propaganda Deluge Becomes Repulsive

El Mustang editorial office has been recently barraged with mailed propaganda which supports activities of foreign governments.

El Mustang editors had previously taken it upon themselves to file such submitted copy in the paper basket. This action, however, did not subside the deluge of fellow traveler material.

Editors of this Cal Poly publication have now turned to returning the circulated material to the senders with a notification of "Refused."

Don Johnson, editor of El Mustang, states that this action is brought about by the fact that the publication does not support a Communist doctrine. However, it believes that every man may be partial to his own beliefs.
