Oct. 6, 2008
Contact: Hunter Francis, SARC

Sustainable Ag Resource Center
Starts Fall Season with Tours, Speakers

SAN LUIS OBISPO -- Cal Poly's Sustainable Agriculture Resource Consortium (SARC) is reaching out on campus and off to increase visibility. The program, part of the College of Agriculture, Food and Environmental Sciences, is working to advance sustainable agriculture across the West. SARC held a tasting tour featuring sustainably farmed Cal Poly wines, cheeses, grapes, strawberries, mushrooms, salads and more in late September at the campus Organic Farm.

It also held its fourth annual fundraising dinner Oct. 2, featuring guest speaker Timothy J. LaSalle, CEO of Rodale Institute. The dinner featured dishes prepared by a host of the area's top chefs on the Central Coast.

Visit the SARC Web site
Read a SLO Tribune story on SARC