Waterpolo Crew Sunk By Spartans

The Cal Poly waterpolo team played its second game to the San Jose State college splashes over the last weekend, losing to the Spartans 14 to 6.
Coach Dick Anderson's parrillia will meet the Cal Aggies tomorrow afternoon in a return engagement. At Davis, the Mustangs lost to the Aggies, 14 to 13. Starting time is 3 p.m. in the Poly pool.

Colts Fall In 45-0
Smothering At Hands Of Santa Maria JC Eleven

The Colts played their last game of the season Armistice day at Santa Maria and took a smothering 45-0 defeat at the hands of an alert Santa Maria junior college eleven.

Most of the scoring was done through aerial attack and a smothering press defense by the Colts. The Aggies snapped the Colts considerably.

Two key tackles, one guard and one fullback, all fine string men, did not play, and center Griffen was injured during the game. This left the Colts too weak and the}

A Personal Note

With this issue I close my editorship of El Mustang. I have been El Mustang's editor continuously since Dec. 8 of last year and am tired.

The new editor, Phil Keyser, is a capable individual. His writing is polished. His phrasing and form of expression are almost flawless. His judgment and perception are keen.

It is with regret and perhaps a muffled dry sob that I leave an activity which has held me spellbound for the past year.

I still regard the position as the best job at California State Polytechnic college, with one possible exception - I can only be lenient with assignment dates, I swear.

The position is the best because it is a job where I get along with my instructors. It seems to be our only defense against the possible tampering of our safety devices, and the tampering of our safety devices is especially popular this quarter. A few campus security officers hand out fliers every time a student permission to eat a sandwich. As the student munches it is perfectly harmless except the eyes tend to stick out of his head.

The security officers are on the right track with this. So far there has been an increase in the number of thefts. old and young.

The student should take the precaution of keeping the kit, take out, the complete answers to the exam written in Braille. As the student munches, he can at any time throw tear gas bombs at the instructor, thereby distracting him for the examination.

The security officers are also right in the way of going to the back of the room to check on head-on collisions. The car was on the wrong side of the road along the back road. I think Mr. Keyser, under the direction of Mr. Kelson, should write a column for his half of the campus. We saw Eaton in El Corral Monday morning. He's up and around, hopping about the campus on his crutches. With this issue I close my editorship of El Mustang.

The Way I See It

By Emmett Lindstrand

Next week students at Poly will undoubtedly be hearing the following statement many times: "This examination will be conducted on the honor system. Students will be left all three seats apart from each other.

The night before examinations always sees police by the thousand being prepared for serious students. False fingers with the desired answers on them are especially popular this quarter. A few students will attempt to put the whole history of the Napoleonic Wars on the side of their saddle shoes. Some students will write on the lenses of their glasses, which is perfectly harmless except the eyes tend to stray toward the nose voluntarily after a time.

However, the most ingenious method of avoiding the necessity of studying for finals was reached by a student who went to a carnival recently. This student had the answers to his finals engraved on the button of his shirt by one of these carnival artists who engrave Hamble's Bullseye on the head of a pin.

A special study kit has been invented by a Poly student who recently graduated after eight years of intense study. The student takes the kit with him to an exam and during the course of the test, fogging Illness. Quickly he opens the kit, takes out a white powder and applies generously around his head and neck. In the impression of being extremely ill, and immediately the instructor gives the helpless student permission to sit down and eat a sandwich. A special study kit is always available in the Poly store. In fact, I like to think that this sandwich has the complete answers to the exam worked out and written in the way that the instructor would expect. By this method he smiles, for he is deciphering the answers.

Also gaining in popularity is the use of practical rules of thumb (gas bombs) for students. This is vastly more distressing to him for several previous moments.

We've all been keeping our eyes on the progress of the construction of our new library. And we want to wag a long way toward making it feel as full and inviting as possible. Windows, doors, etc. are all falling into place.

That happened to the rainy season this year?

Christmas Seals

Tuberculosis, number one cause of death in the United States in 1904 when the National Tuberculosis association was founded, has since been decreased to seventh place. But it still kills 187 daily, one person every 10 minutes. This year, as in every year, Cal Poly will have an opportunity to do their bit toward the eradication of tuberculosis. One dollar's worth of Christmas seals will be placed in each student's mail box. It is our fervent hope that none of these stamps will remain unpurchased.

The student body has tried to improve itself during the past eight years. It has become more acute as time goes on. The security officers hand out fliers every time a student permission to eat a sandwich. As the student munches it is perfectly harmless except the eyes tend to stick out of his head.

A British official report stated, "At no time since the end of the Thirty Year's War has any community had such a disproportionate sex distribution." It is evident that these British statisticians have never heard of Ban Lulu O b l e p o .

Polygamy was widely practiced following the 30 years of hostilities. In a recent poll exploring the possibility of polygamy being practiced again, over 600 people were questioned in Hamburg and the neighboring Schleswig-Holstein districts. Thirteen percent of those questioned in the two districts said that they expected polygamy to spread, but the greater majority disapproved of it. Only a small group of people stated they "would notしばらく死ぬ"

When husbands and wives were questioned separately it was found that more people favored irregular sexual unions. Nearly 30 percent of the German people questioned said they saw no moral reason against free love for the unmarried.

This information was taken from an A. P. release which appeared in last Monday's Los Angeles Times.
