Tempus in a Tempus...

Tumors flared and screams of indigestion rose from large numbers of those affected by the compulsory board and room package plan to be instituted next fall—as evidenced by the results of the opinion poll reported in this paper.

Now, after studying the information released earlier this week, the situation doesn't look quite as bad and certainly not worse, which is some consolation.

The foundation has promised sweeping revision in cafeteria administration policies. The first of these pro­gressive improvements are already under way.

Besides a new cafeteria head, and the importation of a crack nutritionist, a continuing training program for cafeteria personal got under way this week.

Other plans include reorganization of the cafeterias, more attractive menus, full meal and à la carte service, and yes, you guessed it, better food.

If these improvements ARE accomplished, Cal Poly stands to have one of the finest college food services in the nation.

'Package Plan' Raked Over Coals Of Reputation

By Bill Long

Editor This Week

Editor's Note: This column is not meant to prove any­thing, its sole purpose is to present opinions. Persons inter­viewed and the author are at random without knowledge of stand maintained, and are presented in chronological order.

Question this week was, "What do you think of the new required room and board 'package plan'?

Karl Walts, soph., mathematics—"Tell the administration to take it all off campus. (Kira Note: As if we could)"

Andy Jones, soph., electronics—"If I wanted to eat off campus."

Boo'ai Bailey, Jr., electrical engineering—"Guys who work, and can't eat on schedule, are just going to have to eat out their bill. Thus their budget meals are going to be 'take-out.'"

Richard Cota, Jr., electrical engineering—"No comment, I work for the foundation."

Jim Stagler, graduate, architecture—"If the people occupying the student body to eat that the entire facility and all the equipment should be forced to eat at least 40 cents a meal, and if the people who operate on a shoestring to dig their students from a hole, who work on a shoestring to dig it, too."

Art Wilhelfield, Jr., architecture—"I never eat breakfast in cafeteria, there is no extra money in the cafeteria. I won't eat cafeteria."

Wall Moore, Jr., architecture—"What frightened the man at Patrick's? They're going to get rid of them."

Alexer Hofmanie, Jr., electrical engineering—"I think it's a good deal, it will allow the fellows to handle their personal finances."

Alexander Hafeman, Jr., printing—"I never eat breakfast at cafeteria, why should I pay for food I don't eat."

Dick Clark, Jr., dairy husbandry—"Although I'm married now and don't eat at the campus anymore, I don't think the students would be elighted by the cafeteria. It will build much ill will toward the administration and the foundation."

Buy The Book: Don't Read It

You can buy a book but you don't have to read it. Right? But don't let us with the silly old notion that what you read from the pages of excellent photographs. Take a good look at the prize winning cover itself. Designed and crafted by a Cal Poly student, it is the best, most representative student in years, according to the staff.

The photograph胜包括 both front and back covers. Give excellent views of what the campus looks like now. Five years from now the campus will be different and each removed for the new student building and grows plant.

There is historical value in this book.

Or, if you want to make a gift to the people upstairs, apply the saving missing at the bottom of page 56. There are other imperfections that are unique and interesting. Can you find them?

To continue, find yourself in the picture at the bottom of p. 11. Can you see the famous building on the hill? It is indeed present. Anyone who wishes may address to the caption below the picture.
