Nominations sought for Diversity Award

Nominations are due May 29 for the annual President's Diversity Award, instituted in 1997 to recognize campus units that have "exhibited commitment to the value of diversity." The award carries with it a $5,000 augmentation to the winning unit's budget for one year. President Baker established the award with the recommendation of the campus Equal Opportunity Advisory Council.

Last year's winner was the program "26 Hours of Science and Technology in Agriculture," Agricultural Education and Communication Professor Bob Flores is the program's advisor. The 1999 winner was the Cal Poly Black Faculty and Staff Association, for its contributions to recruiting and retaining diverse students, teachers and staff members.

Harry Hellenbrand, chair of the University's Diversity Enhancement Committee, echoed what Baker has said about the Diversity Award: "We need to keep the doors open to all groups and individuals, and higher education has an ethical obligation to assure that students continue to benefit through interacting with people from diverse backgrounds and perspectives. Everything we do on our campus -- from teaching to preparing food -- can affect how students learn from and about diversity."

For a nomination form, go to page 3. The form includes information about nomination criteria and procedures. More information is available from the Office of the College of Arts, ext. 6-2706.

Over the years, Frank has played critical statewide leadership roles, including chairmanship of the CMS, charter chairmanship of the CSU Risk Management Authority, and numerous leadership roles within CAIBO, the organization of CSU Chief Administrators/ Business Officers.

Prior to becoming vice president, Frank served Cal Poly as associate vice president for academic resources in the Academic Affairs Division, university budget officer and assistant to the director of personnel relations.

He has received numerous awards, including the Educational Equity Award (1990), the Outstanding Staff Award (1975), and the Outstanding MBA Award (1972). Frank joined Cal Poly after six years of shipboard service as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, for which he received the Navy Commendation Medal.

As he looks forward to well-deserved retirement, Frank has earned the lasting gratitude of the university for his many contributions over nearly three decades of outstanding service. In the meantime, in his final months as vice president for administration and finance, Frank and the division have a program of objectives to be accomplished for which they will receive our unwavering support.

Sincerely,
Warren J. Baker, President

New Web site offers housing information, help

A new Web site, the Faculty Housing Support Resource Center, provides several services specifically for faculty and staff members.

The page includes information on available properties and real estate for sale in San Luis Obispo county, including cooperatives and others offering relaxation assistance.

The Web site also includes information designed to help acquire new faculty and staff members with the campus and the San Luis Obispo community. The service allows faculty, staff and community members to list rental properties.

In addition, the site has links to:

- Real estate agencies, maps, local chambers of commerce, and the average cost of homes sold.
- Information about financial assistance available for prospective as well as current employees interested in buying a home.
- Information on commuter services.
- Local hotel and motel accommodations.

To access the Web page, go to: www.housing.calpoly.edu and click on "Faculty/Staff Housing." 0

Subscriptions available for fresh, organic produce

Now in its second year, the Cal Poly Organic Farm is offering memberships in its Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program, which begins the first week in June. A $300 CSA membership entitles the subscriber to a weekly box of fresh-picked produce for the 18-week summer growing season. Only 40 memberships are available.

Each box of organically grown vegetables may include such favorites as tomatoes, lettuce, cucumber, chile, kale, basil, cucumbers, pepper and corn.

Additional special items such as green onion, arugula and winter squash will be included from time to time. Members can pick up their produce at the farm between 4 and 7 p.m. Monday or Thursday.

University Singers to give 'Home Concert' at Mission

The University Singers will give a performance featuring the music of France at 8 p.m., May 26 in Mission San Luis Obispo de Tolosa.

The concert, titled “Home Concert: 2001: The Music of France,” is planned as a fund-raiser to help the University Singers achieve the vision of the choir on a 12-day performance tour of Paris and northern France.

The program, which features the same music that will be performed in the cathedrals of France, includes “Exsultate justi” by Viadana, “ Jubilato Deo” by Benjamin Britten, “Tu es Petrus” by Gabriel Fauré and “Lux Aeterni” by Edward Elgar. Performers include Mendelssohn, Mozart, and Moses Hogan.

Visiting Filipino choir Chorus Paulinus will make a special appearance under the direction of Frederick de Santos. Almost 60 student singers, 10 alumni, and 20 family members of friends are planning to participate in the tour.

The trip, to begin June 24, will include several days in Paris, where the choir’s first concert will be in the church of St. Séverin.

The tour goes to the Champagne district, with stops in Epernay and Reims, and to Rouen, St. Malo and Mont St. Michel. Concerts in the cathedrals in Orleans and Chartres are also planned.

Music professor Thomas Davies will conduct the group’s concerts in France. Staff member Catherine Harvey will accompany.

Tickets for the Home Concert are $8 for students and senior citizens and $10 for the public and will be sold only at the door.

The event is sponsored by the Music Department, College of Liberal Arts, and Instructionally Related Activities program. For more information, call the Music Department at ext. 246-204.

Musical ‘Chicago’ to play at Cal Poly June 4-6

The award-winning hit musical “Chicago” will play at 8 p.m. June 4-6 in the Cal Poly Musical Theatre.

Based on the 1926 play by celebrity scandal reporter Marilyn Dallas Watkins, “Chicago” is a story of murder, greed, contempt for truth and teetotalism.

“Chicago” has music and lyrics by John Kander and Fred Ebb of “Cabaret” and “Kiss of the Spider Woman” fame and was originally directed, choreographed and co-authored by the late Bob Fosse.

The Broadway revival opened in 1996 and is still running. It won numerous Tony and Critics’ Circle awards, as well as a Grammy for Best Musical CD Album.

“Chicago” is about reductive nightclub dancer Roxie Hart, who finds that the road to fame can be a trail of blood. A cunning lawyer and a bit of “razzle dazzle” turn Hart from a cold-hearted killer into the toast of the town, until other crimes of passion steal the limelight from him.

The Washington Post said, “‘Chicago’ hits the stage like a bolt of lightning.”

Cal Poly music professor Alyson McLaughlin will conduct the show in lectures and performances at 7:30 p.m. in the Cal Poly Center’s Phelps Hall.

Tickets cost $42 and $34, with student discounts available.

Food science students win scholastic contest

A team of food science students won the recent Western Division Institute of Food Technologists’ College Bowl Scholastic Competition.

The competition, hosted for the third consecutive year by Cal Poly, brought together six teams from the WFT’s West Coast region.

During the College Bowl, based on the same principle as matty game shows, the first team to “hit the buzzer” has the opportunity to answer questions ranging from sanitation and food chemistry to microbiology, nutrition and food processing.

Competitors came from UC Davis, Washington State, Utah State, Brigham Young and California Polytechnic Universities. The Cal Poly team will compete in the national competition June 25 in New Orleans.

Nomination for President’s Diversity Award

The President’s Diversity Award is designed to recognize campus units that have exhibited commitment to the value of cultural diversity. Campus units are encouraged to participate.

Nomination Criteria
To be considered for the Diversity Award, a campus unit must have exhibited commitment to the value of cultural diversity in one or more of the following ways:

• Recruitment or retention efforts.
• Improvement of student or employee understanding of the value of a culturally diverse climate.
• University or community service in support of diversity or multiculturalism.
• Scholarly contributions in the area of multiculturalism or diversity.
• Advocacy of diversity.

All of the above areas must support and be consistent with the mission of Cal Poly as an institution of higher education.

A campus unit is broadly defined as any recognized campus entity such as:
1) A university department or program,
2) An auxiliary department or program, or
3) A campus recognized group, club or council.

Nomination procedures
Any faculty member, staff member, student, or campus unit may nominate an eligible campus unit (see above definition) for the Diversity Award. Nominations are made by completing this form. Send the completed nomination form to:

UC Irvine professor to talk on Spanish Civil War

UC Irvine Professor Carolyn Boyd will speak on "The Spanish Civil War and the Politics of Memory, 1939-1979" on May 25 as part of the History Department's lecture series "Violence, History and Memory in the 20th Century."

Boyd's lecture, 11:10-noon in the Business Building Rotunda (Room 213), will focus on the ways that the Franco regime and the transition government that followed attempted to shape the memory of the Spanish Civil War to legitimize the new political order.

"Grave political consequences resulted from the decision at the beginning of the transition to 'forget' rather than insist that those who supported the Franquist dictatorship be held accountable for the violence and repression," Boyd said.

In her talk, Boyd will draw comparisons between the Spanish case and other countries that are experiencing similar transitions to democratic regimes.

Boyd has authored numerous books and articles about 20th century Spain, including "Historia Patria."

For more information, call the History Department at ext. 6-2543.

International Programs to hold orientation

The International Education and Programs office asks the faculty to tell their students about the upcoming CSU Office of International Programs orientation program 8:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Saturday (May 19) in the Cohan Center's Phillips Hall.

International Programs (IP) is the CSU's official systemwide study abroad program, and each year approximately 400 CSU students participate.

Approximately 140 people from several CSU campuses are expected to attend the orientation. The event seeks to:

• Provide practical information.
• Reassure parents.
• Introduce students to the cross-cultural issues they may face abroad.
• Motivate students to learn about their host country.
• Enable students to meet other study-abroad students.
• Give students an opportunity to talk to recent IP alumni.

For more information, call Monica Schechter at ext. 6-5964.

Six children win prizes in 'Wish for Homeless' contest

Cal Poly's Center for Community Volunteerism and Service Learning announced the winners of its first "Wish for the Homeless" contest. Elementary school children were invited to submit essays and drawings that expressed their wish for the homeless.

The contest, part of the annual Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week, is designed to create family dialogue about homelessness.

"The entries were so creative, we were really impressed by the imagination and caring that they showed," said Maya Aandig, coordinator of community volunteerism at the center.

Contest winner Abby Jayne asked people to "go to the store and buy food, toys and stuffed animals and books" for the homeless.

Kayla Gregory said, "I wish that people will give them donations so that they can get the homeless lives back together. I have a lot of wishes but not enough paper to write them down on, but remember to be kind, nice and friendly to the homeless."

Rodeo Team boosters honor supporters

Jack Roddy and Jack Cooke, major contributors to the past, present and future of the Cal Poly Rodeo Team, were recognized for their continued support of the Rodeo Program and Cal Poly.

They were honored at an event kicking off 61 years of Cal Poly rodeo tradition. Because both Roddy and Cooke were in Oklahoma City at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, where they serve on the board of directors, the presentation was made via a two-way teleconference attended locally by 200 rodeo supporters and in Oklahoma City by the Board of Directors of the National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum.

Employees, students win for completing survey

Six employees and five students won prizes for completing and sending in a recent CSU survey.

Employee and grand prize winner Victor Bancart won a certificate for dinner at Vista Grande and tickets to a Performing Arts Center event. Additional employee winners were Gladys Gregory, who received a gift certificate for a message, and Jerry DeMers.

Tom Dixon, Myron Hood and Nellie Regalado, who received tickets to a Cal Poly athletics event.

named after combining the former Business Affairs Division with Facilities Planning, Parking Services and Human Resources and Employment Equity.

A division strategic plan was developed, a streamlined management and organizational structure established, and an innovative "balanced scorecard" assessment system implemented.

With the CSU system's delegation of previously central functions to the campuses, the division took the lead in implementing campus-administered budget management, capital outlay, housing and parking programs.

A new campus Master Plan was developed and an ambitious $207.4 million capital improvement project was awarded, including such landmark projects as the Christopher Cohon Center of the Performing Arts Center, Recreation Center, the Ullidrjon project, the Orfelia College of Business's new building and the Sports Complex.

Many new services were put into place, such as integrated facilities and energy management systems, student vendor pay, new business analysis function, a community policing program, online purchase requisitioning, modernized reprographic services, a campuswide risk management program and emergency operations plan, and automated personnel functions.

The division initiated implementation of the CSU Common Management Systems' fiscal and personnel components.

Over the years, Frank has played critical statewide leadership roles, including chairman of the California College Initiatives, charter chairmanship of the CSU Risk Management Authority, and numerous leaders roles within CAIBO, the organization of CSU Chief Administrators/ Business Officers.

Prior to becoming vice president, Frank served Cal Poly as associate vice president for academic resources in the Academic Affairs Division, university budget officer and assistant to the director of personnel relations.

He has received numerous awards, including the Educational Equity Award (1990), the Outstanding Staff Award (1973), and the Outstanding MBA Award (1972). Frank joined Cal Poly after six years of shipboard service as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, for which he received the Navy Commendation Medal.

As he looks forward to well-deserved retirement, Frank has earned the lasting gratitude of the university for his many contributions over nearly three decades of outstanding service. In the meantime, in his final months as vice president for administration and finance, Frank and the division have a program of objectives to be accomplished for which they will receive our unswerving support.

Sincerely,
Warren J. Baker, President

Lebens to retire end of fall

To the Campus Community:

After 26 years of service to Cal Poly, Frank Lebens, vice president for administration and finance since 1991, is retiring at the end of fall.

His decade of extraordinarily able and effective leadership has been cded with a period of enormous organizational change and daunting budgetary challenges for the university.

As vice president, Frank has served as a key member of the university's senior administration team, helping to develop and implement university policy.

He has provided general management of fiscal services; budget planning and administration; campus support services; facilities planning and operation; maintenance and emergency operations; and human resources management.

He has also provided oversight and served as liaison to campus auxiliary organizations.

Under his leadership:

- The Administration and Finance Division was reorganized and re-

Nominations sought for Diversity Award

Nominations are due May 29 for the annual President's Diversity Award, instituted in 1997-98 to recognize campus units that have "exhibited commitment to the value of diversity." The award carries with it a $5,000 augmentation to the winning unit's budget for the year. President Baker established the award to support the recommendation of the campus Equal Opportunity Advisory Council.

The last year's winner was the program "26 Hours of Science and Technology in Agriculture." Agricultural Education and Communication Professor Bob Flores is the program's advisor. The 1999 winner was the Cal Poly Black Faculty and Staff Association, for its contributions to recruiting and retaining diverse students, teachers and staff members.

Harry Hellenbrand, chair of the University's Diversity Enhancement Committee, echoed what Baker has said about the Diversity Award: "We need to keep the doors open to all groups and individuals, and higher education has an ethical obligation to assure that students continue to benefit from interacting with people from diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

Everything we do on our campus - from teaching to preparing food - can affect how students learn from and about diversity."
