Funds available for proposal development

As part of its effort to stimulate research activity, the Research and Graduate Programs office will consider faculty requests for assigned time for the purpose of completing nonconstructive proposals. The funds for assigned time are designed to give full-time faculty members an opportunity to work on proposals. Please submit written requests indicating the number of WUTs desired, the expected time period, and the purpose for which the request is made. The agency or program for which the proposal is being prepared, and the application deadline, as well as any other information that supports the request, such as preliminary work accomplished either on the proposal or on a related project, should also be included.

The request should be directed to Susan Opava, dean of research and graduate programs, and signed by the respective department head or chair and dean. Requests should be submitted to the Office of Research and Graduate Programs, ext. 6-2754, or Susan Opava, dean of research and graduate programs (ext. 6-1508), at any time during the academic year. Because funds are limited, requests made early in the academic year have a greater likelihood of approval.

Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee reviews all current and proposed projects or activities in which vertebrate animals are used in teaching or research. Guidelines and forms, call or stop by the Newman Catholic Center, Obispo High School, Paso Robles High School, San Luis Obispo High School, or to Susan Opava, dean of research and graduate programs (ext. 6-1508), for referral to the committee.

Guidelines for preparing the proposals can be obtained from either office and at www.calpoly.edu/rgp/forms.html. Invoices for the work performed will be submitted and any work that is supported by federal funds will be audited.

Columbine High survivors to talk in Chumash Oct. 9

Two survivors who helped fellow students to safety during the 1999 shooting at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo., will tell their stories of recovery at 7 p.m. Oct. 9 in Chumash Auditorium. Howard Hoover and Evan Tрус, guests of the Newman Catholic Center, will discuss their experiences. Hoover and Todd told their story to hundreds of students throughout the country in hopes of preventing such tragedies in other schools.

"I am very concerned about the youth in America, and I want to do what I can to improve my experiences and light a spark in people's hearts to make a difference in America," Hoover said.

Swanton Pacific's 1/3-scale steam-powered train is designed to give full-time faculty members more time to prepare proposals. The 3,200-acre Swanton Pacific Ranch serves as an extension of Cal Poly's instructional programs in agriculture, ranching and other disciplines. The trains were used in the 1950 Panama Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco. They are now operated and maintained by Cal Poly's Swanton Pacific Historical Railroad Society, a group composed of approximately 180 volunteers from throughout California. The 1¾-mile rail line, along with the historic railroad, was given to Cal Poly in 1953 by the late Al Smith, Cal Poly alumnus and founder of Orchard Supply Hardware. Smith earned a bachelor's degree in crop science in 1944 and a master's in agricultural education in 1956.

Columbia High survivors talk to Chumash Oct. 9

Two survivors who helped fellow students to safety during the 1999 shooting at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo., will tell their stories of recovery at 7 p.m. Oct. 9 in Chumash Auditorium.

Howard Hoover and Evan Thomas graduated from Columbine High School in June. They are "campaigning for changes in the hearts, minds and especially behavior of every caring American," said Kathy Smith of the Newman Catholic Center, co-sponsor of the event.

Hoover and Todd were considered good students with varied sports and academic interests. Hoover was known as Columbine’s star pitcher on a baseball team competing for the state championship.

During the shooting, both students worked as fast as they could to bring fellow classmates to safety.

When Hoover first heard gunfire, he had no idea what was happening, but pulled the fire alarm to get students out.

Todd was shot while eating lunch in the library. In spite of his injuries, he helped get two students out of harm’s way, carried a handicapped student to safety, and adminstered first aid to keep a student conscious and alive until an ambulance arrived.

Hoover and Todd tell their stories and what they learned to audiences across the country in the hopes of preventing such tragedies in other schools.

“I am very concerned about the youth in America, and I want to do what I can to take my experience and light a spark in people’s hearts to make a difference in America," Hoover said.

Hoover and Todd are also scheduled to speak at 7 p.m. Oct. 11 at Grace Bible Church in Arroyo Grande and at San Luis Obispo’s Foothill High School; Paso Robles High School and St. Joseph’s High School in Santa Maria. The presentations are sponsored by the Newman Catholic Center, the Social Justice Ministry at Old Mission Church, and the Grace Bible Church.

The 3,200-acre Swanton Pacific Ranch serves as an extension of Cal Poly’s instrumental programs in agriculture, forestry and other disciplines. The trains were used in the 1951 Panama Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco. They are now operated and maintained by Cal Poly’s Swanton Pacific Historical Railroad Society, a group composed of approximately 180 volunteers from throughout California.

The trains ran regularly along the historic railroad, which was used to transport cattle and goods.

The 36 donated copies of Opaline Seven-Color Process software will be provided only to students who meet the criteria for participation, said Graphic Communication Professor Penny Osmond.

The software will allow our students with great opportunities for directing research and testing in high-fidelity color printing, so said Osmond.

Graphic Communication Department Head Harvey Levinson said the software will also be demonstrated in seminars and workshops conducted for industry.

Statistics professor named fellow of society

Statistics Professor Allan Rossman has been named a Fellow of the American Statistical Association in recognition of his service to the profession, an honor bestowed on no more than one-third of 1 percent of the association’s membership each year.

Rossman, who joined the faculty in July, was honored by the society for his work in curriculum development and “active learning” at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., where he taught for the past 12 years.

Rossman designed activities to lead students to explore fundamental concepts of statistics, using actual data from medicine, law and sports to emphasize the importance and applicability of statistics to everyday life.

Rossman and Cal Poly Professor Beth Chance have published the activities in a series of books that have been widely adopted in colleges and high schools. ★
