Athletic Policy Committee Explains Job Preference

The difference between work-aid and job preference was explained today by Athletic Policy Committee Chairman Robert Kennedy, following a discussion at this week's Student Affairs Council meeting. Kennedy is part of the athletic policy group now under consideration by the Student Council, and his explanation was given in a report to the council on job preference.

Kennedy said that the difference between work-aid and job preference was based on the policies and procedures established for all student-aid programs.

Work-aid programs are designed to give students financial assistance in the form of scholarships, grants, or work-study opportunities. These programs are administered by the dean of students and are intended to help students pay for their tuition and fees.

Job preference programs, on the other hand, are designed to give students the opportunity to gain work experience in the field of their choice. These programs are administered by the dean of academic affairs and are intended to help students develop skills and knowledge in the field of their choice.

Kennedy said that the Athletic Policy Committee had approved a program to give job preference in the form of athletic scholarships. The program would be administered by the dean of student affairs and would be open to all students who met the eligibility requirements.

Fee Increase Recommended

Is the $5 fee increase necessary? According to the committee in opposition to the increase, it is not. They point out that the increase is the result of the necessities of certain groups or eliminate them completely; the fee increase would not be necessary.

If the fee increase fails to pass, then the Finance Committee will have to find other sources of funds, which means reducing the size of the budget for everything, including the price of the college.

With the fee increase, the budget will be reduced by $500,000, which means fewer dances or college hour assemblies.

The opposition to the increase has stated that athletic groups that are not self-supporting should be eliminated. This would mean the elimination of baseball, track, swimming, tennis, boxing, wrestling and golf. All of these sports are major competitive events at other educational institutions.

These sports, regardless of whether they are self-supporting, bring prestige to Cal Poly. Surely, if other schools in California, with the same or smaller enrollments and which have a higher activity charge can afford these non-self-supporting groups, then we can do the same.

Tax Payer Always Suffers

When a student steals anything from the college, who is he hurting? When a student purposely wrecks college property, what is the purpose? The question is answered in one phrase, "You, the California tax payer." When a student wrecks California State Polytechnic College, when you pay your taxes to the state, a portion of this money is used for the upkeep of this institution.

When someone steals property belonging to the school, he is stealing from you. This property is owned by you and the rest of the tax payers.

When vandalism or damaging states property occurred last week when vandalism wrecked the North Cafeteria. Here, some vandalism occurred when students wrecked property which you have to pay for.

Last year, about these students were involved. I don’t believe they would damage their own property at home. I'm also sure they wouldn't steal from their own family. Then why do they do it at school?

Here's hoping that the people responsible for the thefts and property damages will finally realize who they really hurt.

'Beautiful People' Top Production

By Carol Thompson

A realistic, dilapidated house provided the setting for San Jose's "The Beautiful People" presented by the Student Drama Club.

The play was produced by the Student Drama Club at the University Club last night.

As the play begins, the house where the story is set, the father is daydreaming about his children, his property, his church and his future. He is, however, afflicted with a disease which makes him a invalid. The story revolves around the effects of the disease on the family. The play is performed by the Student Drama Club, directed by Rodger Hulse.

PULL UP A CHAIR!

Pull up a chair and talk to the men from Convair (they'll be on campus soon). Learn about the many other chairs in our four major operating divisions waiting to be filled by young engineers and scientists.

We are the nation's most diversified aerospace company, producing intercontinental and tactical missiles, electronics systems, commercial jet aircraft, air-weather jet interceptors, and strategic bombers. More advanced programs encompass a wide range of technology... from nuclear propulsion to space communication and exploration.

And our continuing policy of purposeful diversification assures stability and challenges for years to come.

Yes, plan to pull up a chair and talk to the men from Convair... they'll welcome the opportunity to discuss our company with you. Whether you are an undergraduate, graduate, or doctoral candidate, chances are there is a chair for you at Convair.
