Lebens named VP for Admin. & Finance

Frank Lebens, who has served as Cal Poly's interim vice president for business affairs since June 1991, has been named permanently to the renamed position of vice president for administration and finance.

He was appointed by President Baker after a nationwide search, and he succeeds James Landreth, who retired in 1991. The appointment was effective April 1.

Cuesta to hold summer session

Cuesta College wants you to know that, in spite of the budget crises, it will hold a summer session as usual this year, from June 21 to July 30. Class schedules will be available April 19 at the Kennedy Library.

Library offers 'amnesty' from fines

The Kennedy Library will be celebrating three events from Saturday, April 17, through Sunday, April 25: Amnesty Week, Library Student Assistant Recognition Week, and National Library Week.

During Amnesty Week, any overdue library materials returned will be exempt from fines. Fees for items that are overdue a day, a week, a month, or a year will all be waived.

Special exhibits in the first-floor lobby will recognize the important contributions of student assistants working in all areas of the Kennedy Library.

KCPR is looking for listener support

Cal Poly radio station KCPR (91.3 FM) will hold its annual fund-raising drive April 28 to May 5, 24 hours a day.

All money collected will be used to upgrade and maintain the station's equipment and musical library.

Pledges begin as low as $1, and, depending on the pledge, supporters receive such items as T-shirts, caps and compact discs. Campus clubs and organizations can pledge for dances hosted by KCPR DJs. The week's activities will include special giveaways.

"Our goal," said station General Manager Ken Kaplan, "is for each Cal Poly student to pledge at least $1."

KCPR, a 2,000-watt station run entirely by student volunteers, is celebrating its 25th anniversary. Your support is needed and appreciated.

Four colleges to host open houses

Four of Cal Poly's six colleges are planning open houses to showcase students' accomplishments and give families, friends and alumni an opportunity to meet the faculty.

The schedule is:
• The College of Agriculture's third annual Poly Agri View, April 24.
• The College of Science and Mathematics, Science and Math Days, April 29-30.
• The College of Architecture and Environmental Design's third annual Open House, April 29 to May 2.
• The College of Liberal Arts' Celebration of Liberal Arts, Saturday, May 1. It will cap the student-sponsored Liberal Arts Week April 26-30.

For a complete list of events or more information, contact the college offices.

Women of color topic of conference

Women of Color: Experiencing America is the theme of a three-day conference to be held April 20-22 on campus.

Cal Poly faculty members, as well as speakers from other universities and organizations, will be on hand to discuss issues such as Chicana feminism, reproductive rights, and African-American women in higher education.

For a schedule of events, call Cal Poly's Center for Women and Ethnic Issues at 756-2600.

Graduate equity grants available

Applications are being accepted for the Graduate Equity Fellowship and Mentor Program, designed to encourage underrepresented students with bachelor's degrees to pursue and complete graduate studies. Grants range up to $4,500 per academic year, according to financial need.

The Graduate Equity Fellowship Program, funded by the CSU and Cal Poly, is administered by the Academic Programs office in collaboration with the Financial Aid office. The application deadline is Monday, May 10. For more information, contact Becky Powell at 756-2328, 8 am to noon.

'Sponsor' improves access to library

A new "Gopher client server" gives the campus faster, easier, computer access to the library's reference sources, including an array of new material not previously available in electronic format.

Called MUSTANG — Multi-User Search Technology and Network Gopher — the system is modeled after one developed at the University of Minnesota, whose mascot is the Gopher.

MUSTANG provides quicker access to the Polycat, UnCover and Melvyl catalogs plus new access to electronic books and journals, Library of Congress records, full-text reference works such as Roget's Thesaurus, Webster's Dictionary and U.S. Telephone Area Codes, and to more than 300 domestic and international library catalogs.

From the library or from any on-campus computer, the faculty, staff and students can now send electronic interlibrary loan requests for books and journal articles, verify library hours, and leave and read suggestions through an automated suggestion box.

Anyone who can access the library on a computer can reach the new system by typing "connect library" at the CALPOLY prompt.

Scholarship available for graduate student

A new scholarship will be awarded to a graduate student interested in public policy, American history, California studies, economics, archival management, or government and who has a 3.0 GPA.

The Glenn and Dorothy Dumke Fellowship is a CSU-systemwide scholarship honoring the late former chancellor, who served from 1962 to 1982.

About $700 will be awarded the first year for research in the Dumke Collection, other collections housed within the CSU Archives at CSU Dominguez Hills, the Center for California Studies at CSU Sacramento, or other special collections within the CSU system.

Applications can be picked up at deans' offices and the Financial Aid office, Adm. 212. Completed applications are due May 3 and should be mailed to: Office of the President, California State University, Sacramento, 6000 J Street, Sacramento, CA 95819-6022.

For more information, call the Financial Aid office at 756-2927.

Bargain books to be sold at library sale

If you're looking for some good books at bargain prices, come to the Kennedy Library's Book Sale scheduled Monday through Wednesday, April 26-28.

The sale will be held on the library's first-floor patio from 10 am to 2 pm.

Items available include hardbacks and large trade paperbacks for 50 cents each, magazines at 10 cents each, and bookends for 25 cents.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to supplement the library's budget. For more information, call the library at 756-2344.
