Ping Pong Wizard From Viet Nam

Gaining recognition on campus this week is a Ping Pong Wizard from Viet Nam. A pioneer in his native country, he was champion in both the national and international competitions.

China is taking an Animal Husbandry course at the National College of Agriculture in China. He plans to return to his homeland to pursue his education under the sponsorship of the United States International Cooperation Administration.

Chea has been playing ping pong for the past 10 years. He believes that his home country is among the top five countries of the world in ping pong competition.

"Many times Viet Nam was not the color for us," says Chea also playing on the non-color team at UCLA. Politically, culturally, and economically, it has given us an edge over the world."

Fees Increased

Students at both the Ban Lula Oblapo campus and the San Luis Obispo campus have been told that fees for the next academic year will be $31.50 for the regular college year, plus an extra $6.50 for the summer session, starting in September.

Dakiel Bahar Nathan, a student at the Ban Lula Oblapo campus, said that he received a letter from the Trustees of the Cal Poly student government:

"In the last year the Trustees have added new roach... It now added the summer fees, and it increased it again recently... We must plan now for the next year's season." Nathan pointed out.

Last year Cal Poly students paid $28.00. This year they will pay $35.30. The fee for limited time study will be $11.00, and $5.00 for a limited time study in post office box rental.

In addition to the materials and services the California State Polytechnic offers, the students will also have to pay a $1.00 fee for the next season.

Coaches Agree On Home Run Ruling

By RAY ROTO—TERI WIEBOLD

The assault on Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle bases on Babe Robinson's ruling of hitting 60 home runs in a single season is falling apart among sports fans this season and the case seems to be between Cal Poly and non-high schools.

Several were asked their opinion on the bases while Ford Frick's ruling that the record in 144 games would have to be broken in 145 games, could possibly may the bases.

"I would rather have a day two extra baseballs like to know the record in 145 games," said Larry Gary, head football manager at Cal Poly.

The vast majority of coaches asked the question agreed with Ford Frick's decision. The field in question, the baseball field, is a day two extra baseballs like to know the record in 145 games.

Figure accurately in recent headlines has been the John Birch Society. Organized in 1958, it seeks to bring the American people back to their roots, as defined by the Founding Fathers and the Constitution. The society's membership has increased sharply in recent years, partly due to the growing public disaffection with theWoman's Suffrage Movement.

The society's activities are varied. It sponsors educational programs, provides training in political techniques, and lobbies for various issues. It also publishes books and newsletters, and it operates a network of local chapters throughout the country.

The society is a grassroots organization, and it is run by volunteers. It does not have a formal hierarchy, but it is guided by a council of national leaders. The council is elected by the members, and it meets regularly to discuss the society's activities and to set policy.

The society's most visible activity is lobbying for various issues, such as the repeal of the Income tax. It has also been active in the United States Senate, where it has supported the candidacy of some candidates and opposed the candidacy of others.

The society has been controversial, and it has faced criticism from both the left and the right. Some critics have accused it of being a hate group, while others have praised it for its patriotic sentiment.

The society's leader is Dr. Roger N. Wilson, who is also the president of the John Birch Society. He has been a prominent figure in the society for many years, and he is highly respected within the organization.

The society's success has been attributed to its grassroots approach, its emphasis on education, and its ability to mobilize the public.

The society's future is uncertain. It has faced challenges, such as the rise of other right-wing groups, and it has faced criticism from both sides of the political spectrum. However, it continues to be a powerful force in American politics, and it will likely remain so for the foreseeable future.

The reorganization of the Amateur Athletic Union is one of the interesting topics that the Los Angeles Athletic Association has reported through its activities recently. The AAU has been involved in many reorganizations, and one of the most significant ones was the reorganization of the Los Angeles Athletic Association.

The AAU has also been involved in many international competitions, including the Olympic Games. The AAU serves as a governing body for many sports, including track and field, gymnastics, and swimming.

AAU: Harleston

He was called to point out that the reorganization of the AAU should not be discredited or ignored. AAU: Harleston believes that the reorganization of the AAU was a necessary step to bring about the changes needed to make the AAU more effective in promoting amateur athletics.

"It would be wrong to do away with the AAU in the face of such important issues," he said. "The AAU's role is crucial to the development of amateur athletics in the United States."
College Hosting P.E. Workshop
By RUSSELL ROOME

Cal Poly is once again hosting the annual coaches workshop, now in its fourteenth year, for physical education and athletic instructors from throughout the state. The program, which runs for three days and is open to coaches and athletic directors, is conducted by the California Association of Physical Education and Recreation, State Department of Education and Cal Poly.

The workshop is featuring several outstanding coaches' speakers from throughout the state, among them John McKay, head football coach at UCLA, and Don Smith, basketball coach from California State College at Los Angeles, who spoke to the group from San Jose State.

Lectures and seminars are being conducted in the four major sports as well as in various other activities, including the fine arts, physical education, physical education and recreation, physical education and recreation, and physical education and recreation.

The workshop is directed by William G. Lopes, the department's director for the first time, who passed away last December at the age of 58.
