English Major Reactivated

An English major geared for teachers will be reactivated this fall at Cal Poly by Dr. Carl Dimmick, dean of the university’s College of Letters, Arts and Sciences. Dr. Philip Gerber, head of the English department, says that the move was made only after a year’s study of the college curriculum and that McPhee has obtained permission from the State College Trustees to reconstitute the major this fall. The English major was withdrawn from the college curriculum three years ago.

When this new English major is launched by Dr. Dimmick, it will be the first English department’s ruling to eliminate the education major as a means to obtain certification for teaching in California.

The new rule requires that the person who wishes to make it as a teacher must have a major in English and must complete the program smoothly and in a way that leads to the English major. Applicants must also pass a series of college entrance exams. The major will be授予 in English, but students may choose to take an additional education major as well.

Hensel Heads Social Science

Hensel acquired his B.S. in history and political science from the University of North Dakota in 1961, his M.A. at the University of Hawaii in 1963, and his doctorate in 1967.

Nearly 300 residents in the Redwood State area, the proposed site of the 1,000-unit development, attended the last planning committee meeting, and not a single complaint was heard about the student-off-campus developments located on the campus.

The complaints ranged from decreased property values, increased traffic on campus, to children’s safety, in so-called “night riding.”

Action Expected July 16 On Proposed Housing

The San Luis Obispo City Planning Commission is scheduled to take action July 16 on the controversial $1 million dollar Bellwood Adams development that will, if accepted by the community, house approximately 1,000 Cal Poly students.

July 4 Fireworks—Fizzle-FLOP!

Tramping to the north end of the baseball field were about 750 people breaking up early July 3 celebrations to explode fireworks in a Celbration of Deep Space in anticipation of pogoing some fireworks and lighting up the landscape with various deres.

Arriving at the scene approximately 5 p.m., the group was divided into small groups, in the set up of whistles, and in scattered groups.

A housewife from Violett Ball drove to the ground in honor of some last childhood memories.

There was only one hit—home run, a hit by the 8-year-old. The league was composed of boys, children, and even a man.

The hit was followed by a series of hits, and a home run was made.

People began to cheer when they saw the home run, and they were quite receptive to the idea.

Finally the small group stood dejectedly in the baseball field.

“armonious relationship between political science, English, and political science is a healthy nation,” said Dr. Edward W. Annis, president of the American Medical Association, during the opening session of the 1963 Western Regional Farm Bureau Conference Wednesday evening at the Little Theater.

Dr. Annis said, “the backbone of America is rural people who think for themselves. Government agencies are spending money hand over foot attempting to propaganda people through media. They should be allowed to legislate for their own good.”

3 Poly Staffers Receive CATA Service Awards

Three members of the Cal Poly staff, who have contributed to the university’s cultural and social life, have been awarded the California Teachers Association’s highest honor.

The awards, presented in recognition of the best educational work of the year, are given to members of the university staff who have made outstanding contributions to the university’s cultural and social life.

The recipients of the awards were:

1. Dr. George Coker, director of the university’s educational television station.
2. Dr. Annis, who graduated from the University of North Dakota in 1961, his M.A. at the University of Hawaii in 1963, and his doctorate in 1967.
3. Dr. McPhee, who graduated from the University of Colorado in 1960.

16th Annual PE Workshop Scheduled Here Aug. 5-16

The 16th annual California workshop in Physical Education and Athletic Coaching will be held here July 5. The workshop is sponsored by the California Association of Physical Education and Recreation, with a staff of over 75.

The workshop will be held concurrently with the men’s workshop. Dr. Pamela L. Bramham of Stanford University will be the keynote speaker.

Dr. Annis will present the keynote address.

Other Institutions in the Men’s program will include:

1. Physical Education, Sacramento City College.
2. Specialized Physical Education, Orange County.
3. Physical Education, Orange County.
4. Physical Education, Orange County.
5. Physical Education, Orange County.

Residents Comment On Coed Living

by Lenny Ward

For the second summer Cal Poly is the scene of a coed living program in Trinity Hall. The dorm has been cut appreciably by a provision under one roof.

The twenty-eight women and resident manager Barbara Smith live on the first floor, and the men, living on the second and third floors with their respective real-duties managers, Paul Dewey and Kim Kost, replied that she didn't find it any different than any other dorm, accurately because she spent the majority of her time in her room

CAROL BETULLA, Eleme-

tary Education major from Los Angeles, slated that she didn't like the idea of being kept out of the area. With almost four times as many men as women, the decision lies with the Rumeos. However, that would not be fair, us long as both undergraduates. However, that would not be fair, as long as both undergraduates were not good protective measure.

Mrs. Juanita Arajian,

Elementary Administration from King City, replaid "I think it's great." She liked the idea of men being able to study at all hours without the distraction of the graduate students who were up and out almost three undergraduate.

However, that would not be fair, as long as both grads and undergrads were housed under one roof, they said.

MRS. JUANITA ABAJIAN,

Elementary Administration from

King City, replied "I think it's great." She liked the idea of any the men living on the first floor, of the lounge area. They suggested that they at least be allowed some sort of burned off of the lounge. They could relax. A few of them, some had their own opinions about coed life.

PRO AND CON

Volleyball Tournament

Headed By 'Friends'

Trinity Hall's intramural volleyball-ball program swears into the third week of action next Tuesday when the Friends of the Library and the Rumeos play for the title. The second game will find the Spikers trying to avenge the loss of the previous night.

The hot and heavy action

last Tuesday against the Rumeos went to the Spikers. But in future games the Spikers and the Rumeos are expected to compete.

The Hustlers rebounded from their defeat at the hands of the Friends and sent the Rumeos down to their third straight defeat. The Hustlers are coached by Gaby McKannay and Mernice

Magnuson, while the Rumeos are led by Barbara Smith and Shelia

Griffin.

MENTO—The undisputed sweetheart of the freshman class is Mrs. Fannie Black, 62 years young. She is majoring in English and minoring in music. Mrs. Black, a widow for two years, is attending college because it is something she always wanted to do.

SAN DIEGO STATE COLLEGE—"I got my father and friends smoking for me," said a SDS nonsmoker who won a new car in a tobacco company contest. The sophomore accounting major sent in 32 entries, each requiring five cigarette wrappers.

UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI—Protesting racial discrimination, the college president and the board of publications passed a resolution which forbids all University publications to "... carry advertisements from enterprises which would deny to some students services which they offer, by their advertising...to all university students."

SACRAMENTO STATE COLLEGE—In an effort to limit high school students in their use of the library, college officials now require student identification of anyone entering the library. High school students must have a letter of intent signed by their instructor and school librarian. College students need only present their ASB cards.

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY—The student book store is replacing its free telephone with a pay phone. The book store manager explained that he received a bill for three long distance calls to Salt Lake City and two to Boston. It seems that the telephone was not on the campus exchange and with direct dialing in effect, all one had to do was to know the proper procedure to dial anywhere in the U.S. The books were found, he added, and sheepishly paid their bills.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE—The English language is pretty tricky, especially to foreign students. Imagine the waitress’s response when Leonel Campos, a graduate psychology student and native of Mexico, pleasantly ordered, "A cup of coffee and three of your Crummy donuts."

The Language Arts Department is compiling the inventory of college facilities to be on submitting an inventory of college facilities to the California Elementary School Administrators Association, sessions for the two-week-long conclaves are being held under the direction of Dr. Walter Schmiewer, head of the college’s Education Department.

According to Dr. Schmiewer, the workshop, which began Monday July 8, will continue through July 19 and will feature workshops, speakers, and panel discussions on varied aspects of communication.

Real Estate Teachers Meet Here July 22-26

The third annual Real Estate Teaching Workshop is to be on campus July 22-26 when the Kellogg campus of Cal Poly will host the conference. The workshops began in 1981 and is sponsored by the student body and is attended by the college faculty.

Real Estate teachers from all parts of the California Real Estate Teachers Association will attend the conference. Scheduled to speak in this year’s event are: Dr. William Vrooman, Sponsor of the Annual Real Estate Workshop and a special inspection of the college’s Education Department.

California Elementary Principals and superintendents are on campus this week and next to take part in the third annual Workshop in Communications for Elementary School Administrators.

Co-sponsored by the college and the Central Coast Section of the California Elementary School Administrators Association, sessions for the five-week-long conclaves are being held under the direction of Dr. Walter Schmiewer, head of the college’s Education Department.

The workshop, which began Monday July 8, will continue through July 19 and will feature workshops, speakers, and panel discussions on varied aspects of communication.

Hobby Garage Open Now For Students

The Hobby Garage is located near the north mountain dorm and is sponsored by the student body for students use. The garage is equipped with wrenches and other tools, two engine hoists, a welder and a battery charger. The garage hours for the summer will be from Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday 8:30 a.m. to noon and Tuesday 2-5 p.m. Work may be done anytime of the day or night. Anyone wishing to use the garage should check a key at the north mountain dorm. The tools he needs. He will be responsible for what he checks out.

Elementary Principals Discuss Communications

Fifteen elementary school principals and superintendents are on campus this week and next to take part in the third annual Workshop in Communications for Elementary School Administrators.

California Agricultural Teachers will be at the college’s Education Department.

No. 24 Brings Speed To ‘Green Machine’

A speedy running back wearing number 24 is Cal Poly’s Jim Ramos, a junior Physical Education major from San Luis Obispo.

Ramos, a junior Physical Education major from San Luis Obispo, was a four year letterman. After high school, Jim chose Cal Poly because it offered a good curriculum in the Physical Education field and it was close to home.

Ramos holds down the left half backfield position on offense and wing back defense. He prefers offense to defense only because he likes to get the ball. He is gifted by a frame that is 6 feet, 2 inches tall, and weighs 185 pounds. At the end of his junior year, he is now prepared for the Green Machine next year.

OffenSive Duty

Ramos was a first team All State football player during the Winter Quarter. During the Summer months he was active in the Intramural handball tournament. During the high school playing days, he became all-state at the backfield position. When he graduated from Rhode Island, he came to Cal Poly to major in Physical Education.

Coach Roy Hughes changed Fred from fullback to guard and asked to knock heads with guys that were much more experienced than he.

But football is not the only sport for which he was best suited as a football player. Fred was active in the Intramural program. He was a member of the second place team in the doubles of the handball tournament. During the basketball season, he played for the team that dumped the CVI powered by the Alphonse brothers.

Ramos was a member of the varsity baseball team as a shortstop. He was a double letter winner, as he lettered in football and baseball in 1962.

During the summer months he remains in shape by practicing in the carpenter’s field, working for his father.

After he receives his degree from Poly, Jim would like to try some years in a high school, he would like to play as much as he can, in double doubles, and then take a few years off from training to get up to par.

Ramos did his high school playing in the Putt Putt Golf Range.

Griddler Leaves Sunday For Ram Training Camp

Leaving July 14 for Chaparral College, the training camp for the Los Angeles Rams, will be former Mustang gridder Fred Whittingham.

At 6 feet, 2 inches and weighing 225 pounds, Whittingham has been signed for defensive and division for the California professional football team.

Fred is now in the process of getting into shape, for when he hits the Rams camp, he will be asked to knock heads with guys that may not come close to doubling his size.

Whittingham was born in Pennsylvania and attended Rhodes Island High School, where he played fullback. During his high school playing days, he became all-state at the backfield position. When he graduated from Rhode Island, he came to Cal Poly to major in Physical Education.

Class Combines Golf, Tennis, Volleyball

The two Physical Education classes offered this quarter are an interesting combination of volleyball, tennis and golf.

Instructor Coach Tom Lee says that the classes are quite popular with foreign students.

The combination of the three individual sports is in its fourth year. Foreign students develop skills they would not ordinarily come in contact with in their native countries.

Classes are unique in that all though they are listed under two registration numbers, 1 and 26, all participants share the same physical education time and much the same as the classes.

There are approximately 30 participants.
