Dockwiller Fourth In Cotton Carnival

by Carol Mills
El Mustang Staff Writer

Joanne Dockwiller, a name that might be familiar to some as the new title holder for the National Maid of Cotton, recently attended the California Polytechnic State University (Cal Poly) Activities Week, where she was appointed to the university's governing board. Dockwiller entered the National Pageant, the Miss America Division, for Most Outstanding Personality, and portrayed her personality in a manner that has placed her in the spotlight of national attention.

Dockwiller's participation in this pageant has come as a surprise to many, as she has been a member of the university's Women's Association for the past five years. Her involvement in campus activities, her leadership roles, and her dedication to her studies have made her a well-known figure on campus.

Dockwiller's appointment to the university's governing board is a significant milestone for her career. This position is highly responsible and requires a dedication to the university's mission and values. Dockwiller's appointment is a testament to her leadership skills and her commitment to the university.

Inside looking out

Berkeley In Retrospect

By P. D. Ames

Take your memories of the era, add a few liquid refreshments, and you're back at Berkeley. At least for a while. Berkeley has three main problems: academic pressure, administrative decentralization, and faculty. The main cause of much of Berkeley's troubles may be in administrative decentralization. This may be a problem in itself, or a symptom of larger problems. Some of the main causes of the problem are in the areas of: academic pressure, administrative decentralization, and faculty. The main cause of the problem is administrative decentralization. This may be a problem in itself, or a symptom of larger problems.

The second major Berkeley problem is academic pressure. The main cause of academic pressure is the administration. This may be a problem in itself, or a symptom of larger problems. It seems that the administration is trying to get through the academic pressure without help from the faculty. When the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble.

The only restriction to this explanation is that the administration is trying to get through the academic pressure without help from the faculty. When the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble. When problems arise, the administration is not looking for help, it is looking for trouble.

Another factor working against academic pressure is the size of the average student body. Community residents may be playing the role of the average student body.

The administration and the faculty need to work together to solve the problem of the academic pressure. The administration and the faculty need to work together to solve the problem of the academic pressure. Mailbag

This letter is in regard to the stirring up of the press on the Berkeley campus. Many of my fellow students, myself included, are looking for something to read. The only problem is that there is not much to read. I would like to propose a new idea, to read, to read, to read.

Grant Awarded Instructor For Study on Spot Virus

Dr. Henry C. Park, a member of the faculty of the Biological Sciences Department, has received a grant from the California State University Foundation (CSUF). The grant will help to fund the study of a spot virus that has been identified by the Cal Poly research team. The virus was discovered during a NSF research program at Pacific Union University.

The grant, a number of the college's special projects, will aid in the on-going research programs. The research will continue, according to Dr. Park, for an additional two years. The virus will not be expected to be cured, but will continue to evolve.

During the study, the Cal Poly team will be in various stages of evolving their research. The research will be in stages.

Cagers Upset Top-Ranked Diablos; Bow To High Scoring Valley State

El Mustang's sophomore guard Don Stevenson took over the Los Angeles State offense. Stevenson scored 16 points in the Mustangs' 103-97 victory over the Vikings. Stevenson's twenty per cent shooting was a blessing for the Los Angeles defense. Stevenson wasn't all over the court. The Mustangs were led in scoring by sophomore guard Bob Dore who made nineteen points. Dore's efficient shooting was a key factor in the Mustang's victory.

Los Angeles' contest. Angell is flanked by teammates Mike Mathews and Larry Johnson. Angell tossed in 23 points and made twelve straight shots from the free throw line during Cal State at Los Angeles.

Angell Files . . . Norm Angell captures one of the many baskets he made in a day-scoring performance against the Mustangs. Angell's effort was highlighted by a windmill dunk in the final minute, a shot that was later disallowed by the referee. Angell's performance was a testament to his skill, determination, and the support of his teammates.
