Over $83,000 pledged in annual fund drive

Six hundred and eighty-nine university and foundation employees pledged $63,680.84 to the annual United Way/Neighbors Helping Neighbors fund drive. Philip Bailey, honorary chairman of this year's campaign, expressed appreciation to the over 100 group captains who were responsible for personally contacting employees in their work areas. He also commended Mary Smith for her work with the group captains and for effectively carrying out the campaign effort.

Inexpensive rides on county buses

Besides making it possible for all students, faculty and staff members to ride free on city buses, the university now makes it very economical to ride countywide buses as well. You can ride to Morro Bay, for example, for about 21 cents, or Nipomo for about 26 cents — whether you ride twice a day or once a month.

Beginning Fall Quarter, the university increased its subsidy for county buses. It pays 75 percent of the cost of a punch pass good on all Central Coast Area Transit (CCAT) buses. CCAT buses stop on the Cal Poly campus and serve communities from Paso Robles to Nipomo and up the coast as far as San Simeon.

With your Cal Poly ID, you can buy a CCAT Punch Pass for $7.50 at the ASI office, UU 212. The pass, good for $36 worth of rides, normally sells for $30. There's no time limit for using up the pass. CCAT buses run Monday through Friday. Schedules are available at the information desks in the UU and Administration Bldg.

Previously, the university paid 40% of the cost of a monthly pass good for either the North Coast or North County routes. It no longer subsidizes the monthly passes.

Like the SLO Transit free ride program, the CCAT subsidy program is aimed at providing an alternative to driving and at alleviating the parking crunch on campus.

Medicare payroll tax changes begin Jan. 1

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 increases the amount of wages subject to the 1.45% Medicare Payroll Tax to $125,000 (indexed). As a consequence, a greater portion of an individual's income will be subject to the Medicare Payroll Tax.

FICA tax is composed of two parts: Old-Age, Survivor and Disability Insurance (OASDI), and Medicare Hospital Insurance (HI). For wages paid in 1991, the OASDI tax rate is 6.2% for both the employer and the employee for the first $125,000 of wages.

For the first $53,400 of wages, the employer and the employee will each be subjected to a combined tax rate of 7.65%, for a maximum of $4085. For income in excess of $53,400, the Medicare Payroll Tax will increase up to an additional $1038.
