Cal Poly has direct economic benefit of $176 million on SLO

Cal Poly had a direct economic benefit on the city and county of San Luis Obispo of nearly $176 million for the academic year ending June 1990.

The estimate was part of a report prepared by three members of the School of Business faculty who examined "The Economic Impact of Cal Poly on the City and County of San Luis Obispo, California."

The report was prepared by Drs. Panagiotis A. Papakyriazis, head of the Economics Department; M. Zafar Iqbal, Accounting; and Kenneth Riener and Luc Soenen, both Business Administration.

According to Riener, spokesman for the survey team, "the largest single item in the list of benefits is the estimated $92.8 million spent annually by Cal Poly students in and around San Luis Obispo."

The overall sum of direct and indirect economic benefits was nearly $334 million in the 1989-90 academic year.

The indirect impact, says Riener, is the estimate of funds being recirculated through the local economy. "Of each dollar spent locally by Cal Poly faculty, staff, and students, some portion is re-spent locally, the rest spent outside the county."

"This proportion," Riener continues, "varies widely: monies paid for services such as laundry and haircuts are almost totally re-spent locally, while most of the money spent on, say, groceries, is in turn paid to suppliers outside the county. We estimate conservatively that 48 cents on every dollar is re-spent in the county ... ."

Riener points out that for every dollar spent locally by Cal Poly, an additional 90 cents of local sales is generated as that dollar recirculates through the local economy.

The professors found that expenditures were distributed widely across the economy, with the largest amounts spent for housing and transportation, as well as at food stores and restaurants. However, apparel, furniture, and entertainment were also heavily reliant on revenues from the Cal Poly community.

President to address strategic planning

As a part of the university's strategic planning process being initiated this year, President Baker has accepted an invitation by the Academic Planning Committee to speak with the university community on this subject. This will be a key opportunity for the President to address issues of importance to the campus and also to provide a forum for questions by employees.

The date for this open forum is Tuesday, March 5, from 11 am—noon in Chumash 207. It is hoped that many university employees will attend this important session.

McDonald reception

Faculty, staff and students are invited to attend a reception to welcome the new Affirmative Action Director: Anna McDonald on Thursday, Feb. 28, from 10-11 am in Faculty/Staff Dining Room B. McDonald looks forward to meeting faculty, staff and students, and plans to schedule individual meetings with campus departments. The Affirmative Action Office is located in Adm. 401.

Applicants sought for mentor program

Applications are being accepted for the Graduate Equity Fellowship and Mentor Program at Cal Poly.

The program is designed to encourage students with bachelor's degrees who are currently underrepresented at the graduate level to pursue and complete graduate studies.

Grants range up to $5,000 per academic year, according to financial need.

Graduate Fellows will be paired with a faculty mentor who will act as a guide, advisor, and academic resource. Fellows may also be required to work 10 hours per week as a graduate research assistant.

Continuing graduate students maintaining a 3.0 grade point average are also eligible to apply. Underrepresented students are currently defined as individuals with disabilities, women in designated disciplines, blacks, Chicanos, other Hispanics, American Indians, Filipinos, Asians, and Pacific Islanders.

Fellows will be required to carry a minimum of eight graduate-level units per quarter. In addition, they must qualify as California residents and demonstrate a minimum financial need of $1,000.

The Graduate Equity Fellowship Program is funded by The California State University and Cal Poly. The program is administered by the Cal Poly Graduate Studies and Research Office in collaboration with the Financial Aid Office.

The application deadline is May 1. For additional information, contact Marilyn York, ext. 1508.
Professor of public policy to talk Feb. 22

Dr. Peter Navarro, professor of public policy at UC Irvine, will speak on “Managing California Growth in the 1990s.” The lecture will be held in UU 220 11 am on Friday, Feb. 22.

Navarro is known for two major books: “The Policy Game,” and “The Dimming of America: The Real Costs of Electric Utility Regulation.”

In 1989, he received the “Best Article of 1988” award from the International Association of Energy Economics for his publication in Energy Journal.

Part of a series of public events, his lecture is being presented by the San Luis Obispo chapter of the American Society of Public Administrators and Cal Poly’s Center for Practical Politics.

Cal Poly musical groups plan concert

The Cal Poly Women’s Chorus, Men’s Chorus, and Polyphonics will present their annual “Home Concert” on Saturday, Feb. 23, at 8 pm in the sanctuary of the Mt. Carmel Lutheran Church.

The church is located at 1701 Fredericks St. in San Luis Obispo.

A variety of choral styles will be featured in this year’s concert. Conducted by Dr. Thomas Davies, a member of the Music faculty, the choirs will sing music which includes Renaissance madrigals, German part-songs, sacred motets, songs from Broadway, barbershop harmony, and vocal jazz.

Harpist Crystal Ketz, a Cal Poly senior, will accompany the Women’s Chorus and perform a solo number. Susan Azaret Davies, a Music lecturer, will be a featured soloist with the Cal Poly Men’s Chorus.

Tickets for the concert are available at $5.50 for adults and $3.50 for students and golden agers. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Theatre Ticket Office, ext. 1421 or the Cal Poly Choral Operations Center ext. 1548. They will also be available at the door.

‘Fiddler on the Roof’ will open Feb. 28

One of the longest-running musicals in American theatrical history, “Fiddler on the Roof,” will have three performances at the Theatre beginning on Thursday, Feb. 28, at 8 pm.

Subsequent performances of “Fiddler” will be at 8 pm on Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2.

The musical is centered on a winning, lovable, desperately poor dairyman named Tevye who lives in a Russian village in 1905. Michael Bierbaum will be playing Tevye in the production and will sing some of the memorable songs of the musical.

Supporting Bierbaum will be Elisa M. Capriles as Tevye’s wife, Golde; Kristin Kerwin as Yente, the village match-maker; Jill Peterson, Elizabeth Day Lucas, and Amy Louise Pilkington as Tevye’s three marriageable daughters; David Nevell, Doug Meswarb, and David Mialovitch as their three suitors; and others totaling a cast of 34.

In addition to Malkin, who is head of the Theatre and Dance Department, the production staff for “Fiddler” includes Thomas Davies of the Music Department, who is the music director. Julie Chandler is the choreographer, with Margie Valine as co-choreographer. Russ Whaley is designing the set, props, and costumes; Howard Gee is the technical director and lighting designer; Susan Azaret Davies is the production accompanist; and Carolyn Halili is the make-up designer.

Whaley and Gee are members of the Theatre and Dance Department, and Susan Azaret Davies is a music lecturer.

Reserved-seat tickets are $8.50 for the public and $7.50 for senior citizens and those with Cal Poly I.D.

Reservations can be made by calling the Theatre Ticket Office, ext. 1421, between 10 am and 4 pm on weekdays.

Expo ’91 scheduled Feb. 26 in Chumash

To assist students in their search for a Co-op, an internship or a rewarding volunteer opportunity, Cal Poly will host Expo ’91.

Scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 26, in Chumash Auditorium, the expo will begin with an open forum from 9:30 am to 1:30 pm.

The expo is an open job fair that will provide employers with opportunities to meet and discuss job openings with students. Both paid and unpaid jobs are available in the San Luis Obispo area as well as throughout the state and nation.

A number of companies will be scheduling personal interviews for Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday, Feb. 27. Interested students are reminded to dress appropriately and bring resumes.

1990 service awards lunch set for April 9

Tuesday, April 9, has been selected as the date for the annual Service Awards Luncheon. This event, supported by the President’s Office, Personnel and Employees Relations, and the University Club, recognizes staff with 10, 15, 20, 25, and 30+ years of service. This year’s luncheon has been scheduled during the Spring Quarter, instead of during quarter break, so that more faculty can participate.

During March, faculty and staff will receive a flyer giving luncheon details.

If you have not paid your 1991 dues for the University Club and would like to do so, submit $5 for continuing membership or $3 for new staff to Maria Gomez-Jauregui, University Club Treasurer, Adm. 125.
Artist-designer will present lecture today

"Green Architecture — The Juncture of Space and Element" will be the topic of lecture today (Feb. 21) by internationally known artist, landscape designer and educator Barbara Stauffacher Solomon.

Her lecture is scheduled for 11:15 am in the Cal Poly Theatre. The free presentation is part of the School of Architecture and Environmental Design’s Distinguished Visiting Lecturer Series, "Preparing for the 21st Century."

Solomon is the author of a recent book, "Green Architecture and the Agrarian Landscape," which combines her drawings of European landscapes with architecture. She is a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome and has taught at Berkeley, Harvard and Yale.

Endowment set up for Center for Women and Ethnic Issues

Thanks to an initial $3,000 gift from Vicki Farrer of Jobwise Company of San Luis Obispo, an endowment fund has been established for Cal Poly’s new Center for Women and Ethnic Issues.

Earnings from the endowment, after it reaches the $10,000 level, will be used to enhance the center’s activities and specifically support women’s programs.

Willi Coleman, the center’s coordinator, said that Farrer’s gift and her intention to support the endowment was an exciting and timely “shot-in-the-arm” for the center’s staff and advisory board. Coleman noted that the endowment earnings will provide a badly needed permanent source of funding for women’s programming in the years to come.

Cal Poly faculty and staff also may contribute to the endowment fund with tax deductible donations made out to Center for Women and Ethnic Issues Endowment and sent to University Development Services, 116 Heron Hall.

Nomination sought for spirit award

The President’s Volunteer Spirit Award, underwritten by General Motors, is accepting nominations. This award honors two individuals and one group who have performed a valuable, unmet, social need in community service. The service must be strictly volunteer. The award for groups will recognize activities that took place between Feb. 1990 and April 1991. Individual awards will be given for service performed any time during a student’s attendance at Cal Poly.

Faculty members are urged to nominate candidates. Application forms can be picked up in UU 217. Call Chris Zalokar at ext. 2476 for additional information. The application deadline is Feb. 25.

Writer will discuss ‘Public Art’ Feb. 26

World-renowned writer, critic, and expert on Native American culture Jamake Highwater will speak at Cal Poly on Tuesday, Feb. 26, on “Imagination as a Political Force: Public Art.”

Highwater is to speak at 11:15 am in the Theatre. The presentation is part of the School of Architecture and Environmental Design’s Distinguished Lecturer Series, "Preparing for the 21st Century."

Highwater’s more-than-20 novels and non-fiction works have been published in 10 languages. They deal with American popular culture as well as Indian culture.

His books and critical writing have won major awards, as well as praise from Kurt Vonnegut Jr., Studs Terkel, Edward Albee, John Gardner and numerous other writers. He has been called one of the most challenging contemporary writers and one of the most influential critics of contemporary culture.

Adopted as a boy, Highwater doesn’t know the place or date of his birth. He grew up in Southern California.

To honor his achievements as a scholar and writer on Native Americans, the Blackfeet Indians of Alberta, Canada, in 1979 gave him an Indian name meaning Eagle Son.

Workshop planned

The Student Affairs Division Staff Development Committee will be hosting a workshop, "Violence in Dating," on Thursday, Feb. 28. The event is scheduled from 10:30 am - noon in the Cal Poly Theatre. A panel composed of staff, students, and community representatives will provide insights.

Cal Poly will host advisor conference

On Saturday, Feb. 23, 300 resident advisor staff members from 18 colleges and universities throughout northern California will gather in the University Union for Northern Rap, a day-long conference. The annual meeting is sponsored by the California Association of College and University Housing Officers in conjunction with the student affairs staff of the Housing Department.

The conference will feature 36 workshop sessions, a keynote plenary session and a welcoming address by Hazel J. Scott, vice president for student affairs.

Position Vacancies
Dean, School of Architecture and Environmental Design
Applications and nominations are invited for the position of dean, School of Architecture and Environmental Design. The dean is responsible for (1) providing academic leadership and administration of the instructional programs of the School of Architecture and Environmental Design which comprises the departments of Architecture, Architectural Engineering, City and Regional Planning, Construction Management, and Landscape Architecture; (2) coordinating the school’s educational, fiscal, personnel and student activities within the established consultative process and policy guidelines of the university; and (3) participating in the development of universitywide policymaking as a member of the Academic Deans’ Council. The dean reports directly to the Vice President for Academic Affairs.
The dean conducts a continuous evaluation of the effectiveness of the operations of the school and anticipates, develops and institutes, in cooperation with other segments of the university, improvements needed in the instructional program to meet current and future requirements. Also, the dean will be active in seeking supplemental financial support for both new and existing programs.
QUALIFICATIONS: Applicants must hold a terminal degree in one or more of the five disciplines represented in the school. A strong academic background in one of these disciplines as well as practice-based professional and scholarly experience is essential. A license or certification in the appropriate professional field is required. Also required is experience in university or college level instruction and administration which demonstrates ability (1) to advance curriculum development, instruction and scholarly activities; (2) to interact effectively with faculty, alumni, members of the professions and the general public; (3) to develop external support and financial resources; and (4) to recognize the increased multicultural and international character of the curriculum and provide effective leadership in times of rapid demographic change.
Salary is commensurate with the background and experience of the individual selected. Cal Poly offers excellent fringe benefits. All rights associated with this appointment are governed by the Management Personnel Plan adopted by the CSU board of trustees.
Each application should include a current resume; the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three professional references; and a statement, in not more than two pages, of the applicant’s views on academic administration and on the role and responsibilities of the faculty in a School of Architecture and Environmental Design. Applications and nominations will be considered until the position is filled. However, applicants are encouraged to submit applications by April 1, for full consideration. The preferred starting date for the position is Aug. 1. Women and ethnic minorities are encouraged to apply. Applications, nominations, and inquiries should be addressed to: Dr. Robert D. Koob, vice president for academic affairs.
