Cal Poly Celebrating International Women's Day March 11

SAN LUIS OBISPO – Cal Poly Women's Programs and Services will host the International Women's Day Fair on Wednesday, March 11, in the University Union from 11 a.m. to noon. The event will showcase women's economic, political and social achievements and issues. It is free and open to the public.

Various student organizations will present information on a variety of topics, with the hope of inspiring the Cal Poly community to take part in the pursuit of fair treatment for all people.

International Women's Day celebrates women's achievements and struggles around the world. It is dedicated to all women who fight for equal opportunities in society and politics. This year marks the 97th annual International Women's Day. International Women's Day events happen in more than 140 different locations in 18 different countries.
