Reflecting the public's interest in promoting the student body and providing a networking opportunity for students, Common Press, the student newspaper of Cal Poly, offers many events, including Financial Aid, the California State Polytechnic College, and the California State Polytechnic College Foundation. The California State Polytechnic College Foundation, incorporated April 23, 1940, is a non-profit corporation that operates auxiliary services at all three of the college's campuses — the San Luis Obispo Campus, the Kellogg Campus at Pomona, and the Voorhees Campus at Suisun. The foundation raises funds through contributions from alumni, friends, and other benefactors. The foundation's income is used to support the college's academic and athletic programs, including scholarships, grants, and fellowships. The foundation is governed by a board of directors elected by the college's alumni association. The board meets regularly to discuss the college's budget and financial affairs. The foundation's financial statements are audited annually by independent accountants and are filed with the California Department of Corporations. The foundation's activities are reported annually to the college's alumni association and other interested parties. The foundation's financial statements are available upon request. Troutner will aid Latin Americans

Arms are open from shore, passport ready, and in the midst of clean­ning his office, William Troutner, animal husbandry instructor is ready for his trip to Guatemala. He is participating in an Aid program, to improve handling and marketing of fresh fruits, vegetables, and oil seed in Guate­mala.

The college has a contract with Aid and an agreement with Guate­mala to perform services ben­eficial to Guatemala agriculture. Collaborating with Troutner, Overseas Program Director, Les Venetiiini will choose personnel from the United States to help with the work. This may include personnel from Cal Poly. Trout­ner will serve as Chief of Party for one year supervising pro­grams to resolve agricultural problems.

Troutner's wife and two daugh­ters, aged 13 and 16 will accom­pany him. "At first the girls did­n't want to go, they didn't want to give up their friends and home for a whole year. They will be at­tending an American school and are now quite enthusiastic about living in a foreign country," Troutner said.

Troutner is very enthusiastic about the trip. He has always been interested in this kind of work and is very happy to have the opportunity to go to Guate­mala.

The Troutner family will re­side in Guatemala City. The cli­mate is much like that of San Luis Obispo, only harder even on an electrical cord. The rainy sea­son begins in April and ends in September, just when the Trout­ners will arrive. The winter months are warm and pleasant.

Guatemala City is a cultural cen­ter and one of the cleanest in Central America.

They will stop at Houston, on the way to visit one of Troutner's daughters. Troutner will fly on to Guatemala on September 5 to start work and find housing for his family. The Guatemala Agri­cultural Cultural Mission will help him and provide the basic furniture.

Library to exhibit faculty art works.

The Summer Committee is plan­ning a Faculty-Staff Art show to be held August 26-28. The purpose of such an art exhibit is to show students that the Cal Poly faculty does more than lecture and give tests.

All type students are encour­aged for the exhibit including paintings, photographs, sculpture, jewelry, weaving, and pottery. All intended students are urged to submit some type of art work.

The art will be on exhibit in the main foyer of the Library. Any faculty member interested in exhibiting his work should request a request form printed in the staff bulletin before August 8 or notify the committee of his interest.

The art show will be held at the Student Activities Office in the Central Library.

The art work will be returned to the Student Activities Office prior to the show, and can be picked up either at the show or the Library office.

Scholarship aid reaches $63,500

Award of scholarships to nine young men to place August 16 to study electronic engraving during the 1966-67 academic year has been announced.

The recipients are George P. Cole of Hamilton High School; James D. Cameron of Los Angeles; Ronald S. Conners of La Ver­nez, John H. Howard of Lind­say, Bernard Jensen of Santa Maria; Carl B. Kepler of Santa Maria; Earl C. Owen of Sonoma; William J. Parnick, Jr. of North Las Vegas, Nevada; David P. Payne of Valley Oak; and William J. Price of Santa Rosa.

Students are eligible for the awards by the college's Scholar­ship Committee on the combined basis of outstanding academic achievement, good citizenship, and demonstrated financial need.

The nine scholarship aid grants to students who have indicated their acceptance of the aid by Cal Poly is now $63,500. Additional scholar­ships are expected to boost the final total of such college grants to nearly $70,000.
Women P.E. teachers register for workshop

Women's physical education teachers from throughout California and the West Coast are among those who have already registered for the seventeenth annual California Physical Education Workshop for Women in Secondary Schools which will take place August 7-10.

Already registered for the two-week-long event, according to information released by the college today, are 283 women. Jointly sponsored by Cal Poly, the California Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, and the State Department of Education, the workshop will feature sessions, demonstrations and seminars on various topics ranging from social dance to fencing, field hockey, and swimming; gymkana and teaching techniques.

According to Miss Phyllis A. Blake of Upland, director of the conference, other sports scheduled for discussion include tennis, golf, track and field, badminton, gymnastics, and basketball.

In addition to the regular participants, the workshop will also have a number of special physical education teachers who will attend to help in leadership of various activities.

Killer's capture

Chairman of the intramural sports committee, John Paul Saret, announced that the Killers, composed of Poly graduates Dose, Mannon, and Kappel, won the first place in intramural volleyball during the 1966-67 season. The Killers defeated the Studs in the final game, winning by a score of 1-0.

The tournament was held in the Norris Gymnasium over a two-week period, with the final game taking place on April 10. The Killers defeated the Studs in the final game, winning by a score of 1-0.

Mosquitoes, rain plague Inquiry '66 travel group

We have crossed the 8,000 mile point on our tour and there won't be too many mosquitoes in the area. The days have been so hot that the mountain air is a relief. It makes it tempting to lay outside in the sun and enjoy the cool mountain breezes.

The weather was perfect for the trip. We woke up in the morning to a light breeze and clear blue skies. It was the perfect day for a hike in the mountains. The view from the top was breathtaking and we spent a few hours taking in the scenery.

We also had a few mishaps during the trip. One day, we got lost on a hike and ended up spending a few extra hours exploring the area. However, we were able to find our way back to the trail and continue with our trip.

Overall, it was a great trip and we are looking forward to more adventures in the future.
