Next candidate for dean of students post scheduled

Dr. Marvalene Styles Hughes, associate vice president for student affairs at Arizona State University, will be the next candidate interviewed for the dean of student affairs position at Cal Poly. She will meet with the consultative committee and campus officials on Feb. 18 and 19.

An informal reception will be held in the UU Galerie on Tuesday, Feb. 18 from 2:30-3:30 pm. Faculty, staff and students are encouraged to attend the informal receptions to meet and ask questions of each candidate.

Donations of books for the monthly sale are welcome. To donate books, or for additional information, call the library’s Special Collections Dept., ext. 2305.

Princess of Wales to get Cal Poly book

Her Royal Highness, the Princess of Wales, will received a special Cal Poly gift on Wednesday, March 2.

Lady Diana will be dedicating the new American Institute for Foreign Study Center in London, and a copy of the Cal Poly book, "The London Experience: A Collection of Illustrated Memories," will be presented to her.

The book includes selected drawings, paintings, poems and short stories by students and faculty who participated in the annual London Study Program. Initiated in 1984 with 65 students and four faculty, the Cal Poly program now provides a London Study experience for more than 300 students and 18 faculty. The London Study Program is sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts.

Copies of the oversized book are available for $25 at El Corral.

Monthly book sales to be held at library

Not only can you read and check out books at the Kennedy Library, but each month you can buy books there, too.

"Books a la Cart," a sale sponsored by The Library Associates, is held on the third Wednesday of each month from 10 am to 3 pm in the lobby of the Kennedy Library. The sale for February is set for Wednesday, Feb. 17.

Be it a textbook tome, fiction, nonfiction, poetry, prose, or indispensable reference, "Books a la Cart" are bargain priced: from 25 cents (paperback) to 50 cents (hardcover/softcover) — with magazines at 10 cents each. Proceeds will be used to purchase special materials for the library.

6th Women’s Week set for Feb. 22-26

A schedule of 60 programs including lectures by noted speakers and music and art exhibits has been announced for the 1988 celebration of Women’s Week at Cal Poly, beginning Monday, Feb. 22, and continuing through Friday, Feb. 26.

"Women in Struggle: Celebrating Change" is the theme for the annual observance, now in its sixth year at the university.

Planning for the week’s events is being coordinated by a campus-wide committee of members of the university’s student body, faculty, and support staff.

Topics addressed in this year’s celebration will include the involvement of women in politics, the history and current role of women in various foreign countries, growth of female art, sexual harassment, image and self projection, and the AIDS epidemic.

The program will also familiarize participants with several programs including "Model Mugging," a rape defense program, and "MADRE: Women in Nicaragua," a program for mothers who have lost children as a result of war in their country.

Also included will be a slide display by Kathe Kollwitz, a well known graphic artist; a lecture by Sonia Johnson, who will speak about her recent book focusing on the liberation of women; and a concert by singer and songwriter Judy Gorman-Jacobs, and Maiko, featuring jazz, blues, and traditional music.

A complete schedule of events for the Cal Poly Women’s Week celebration is available at the UU Information Desk.
Lecture today marks Black History month

"Crisis in South Africa" will be the topic of a lecture given by Dr. Leonard Jeffries Jr., professor and chairman of the Department of Black Studies at the City College of New York, today (Feb. 11). His presentation will begin at 7 pm in Chumash Auditorium.

According to Jeffries the problem in South Africa isn’t racial segregation but what looms on the nation’s horizon — the out-and-out murder of its black population.

He has stated that South African blacks are facing genocide due to the South African government’s capability to militarily wipe out the black population in order to maintain white supremacy.

The lecture is being planned in conjunction with Cal Poly’s observance of Black History month which will continue through February. The theme of this year’s celebration is “Knowledge Will Set You Free — The African American Struggle: Past, Present, and Future.”

For the past few years, Jeffries has been working for the World Council of Churches in Geneva on the issue of racism. He has been to Africa 40 times, has written several articles about Africa and received numerous fellowships.

The lecture is co-sponsored by the Speakers Forum of the ASI and the Afro-American Student Union. Admission will be $3.50 for students and $4 for the public.

$27,000 gift from Chevron

Chevron has donated $27,000 to Cal Poly’s programs in computer science, management, mechanical engineering and civil engineering.

Checks from the Chevron Information Technology Co. and Chevron U.S.A. Inc. were presented in a recent campus ceremony.

The grants included an $11,000 cash gift to the Computer Science Department and $2,000 for scholarships for four computer science students; a $5,000 cash gift to the Management Department; $1,000 to the management information systems (MIS) concentration within the department’s business administration program, and $2,000 for MIS scholarships; $4,500 for the Mechanical Engineering Department; $1,000 for civil engineering scholarships and $500 for the Civil and Environmental Engineering Department.

Poet Diane Wakoski to speak Feb. 24

Poet Diane Wakoski will discuss “Freedom and Art” at noon on Wednesday, Feb. 24, as part of the Arts and Humanities Series.

The talk, in UU 220, is an element of the year-long, “Freedom and the Constitution” series sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts. The presentation is also a feature of Women’s Week at Cal Poly.

In more than 20 volumes of poetry she has deliberately allowed her “real” origins to remain obscure, refusing to include biographical statements in her books.

She has taught at New York’s New School for Social Research and has given poetry readings and conducted verse-writing workshops.

New Play Festival to feature 2 plays

The Cal Poly Theatre will be the setting for the premiere of a new play by Jo Weinstein, “A Gift From the Heart,” on Thursday, Feb. 18, at 8 pm. Additional performances are set for 8 pm on Feb. 19 and 20.

The play will be the first of a New Play Festival sponsored by the Theatre and Dance Dept. On May 12, the festival will present another new play, “Dog Logic,” by Cal Poly alumnus Tom Strellich.

Currently the dramaturge at the Mill Mountain Playhouse in Roanoke, Va., Weinstein is the author of numerous plays. She was the recipient of the 1987 John Gassner Memorial Playwriting Award for her play, “A Christian Burial.”

Both “A Gift From the Heart” and “Dog Logic” will be directed by Theatre and Dance faculty member Dr. Michael Malkin.

Tickets for all performances are $6 for the public and $5 for students. They are available at the Theatre Ticket Office or at the UU Ticket Office. Both campus ticket offices are open 10 am to 4 pm on weekdays. Reservations can be made by calling ext. 1421.
