Evaluation comes under fire from faculty

Throughout the past few weeks as one of controversy has emerged concerning the various modes of evaluating faculty members, it has become apparent that some have been chosen to have a more important place in the report as others. Thus, the program in itself has been modified and revised in an attempt to improve the system. And yet, there are still some who believe that the system is a threat to their position and feel strongly opposed to its implementation.

Some, like the members of the administration, see the evaluation as a useful tool for identifying areas where improvement is needed. They believe that it is an important way to hold faculty members accountable and ensure that they are providing quality education. Others, however, view the evaluation system as a means of suppressing academic freedom and limiting faculty autonomy. They fear that it could be used to punish or retaliate against those who speak out against institutional policies or practices.

One thing we have to watch out for is a barrier between faculty and students that is not entirely clear. An evaluation system that is too rigid or too subjective can lead to a lack of trust and mutual respect between faculty and students. The system should be designed to encourage open communication and constructive feedback, rather than assigning grades and rankings.

The faculty evaluations came under fire from faculty members. The criticisms centered around the procedures and the criteria used to evaluate faculty members. The faculty members felt that the evaluations were too subjective, with little regard for the context in which the teaching or research was done. They also felt that the evaluations were too focused on the short term, rather than on the long-term achievement of students.

The purpose of a faculty evaluation is to provide a fair and comprehensive assessment of the faculty member's performance. It is important to have a system in place that is not only effective but also fair and transparent. The faculty members agreed that the evaluation system needed to be improved, and they looked forward to working with the administration to develop a more effective system.

Senior pictures slated Monday

Students who will graduate during the week of May 21 have their portraits taken for El Rodeo. The portraits will be taken today in the on-campus studio. There is no charge to students.

Architect elected national president

Roosevelt Awa, a fourth-year student at CALIFORNIA STATE POLYTECHNIC COLLEGE, was elected national president of the American Institute of Architects, Chapters of College Students. Roosevelt Awa was nominated by his chapter at Southern California State College, at the Western Convention of the American Institute of Architects, Chapters of College Students, held at the University of California at Los Angeles, April 27 and 28, 1969. In addition to being a student at the university, he is a member of the American Institute of Architects, Chapters of College Students, and is currently a member of the American Institute of Architects, Chapters of College Students, at Southern California State College.

Anti-tuition resolutions supported by Council

The resolution, sponsored by the student council, was passed by the council in order to address the issue of tuition costs for students at California State Polytechnic College. The resolution calls for the establishment of a tuition review committee to examine the factors contributing to the increase in tuition costs and to recommend solutions to the problem.

Feasting opens Printing Week

The printing week is the annual event held to raise money for the student publications. This year, the event was opened with a feast, which was followed by a series of events throughout the week. The feast was attended by students, faculty, and staff, and it was a great success.

Feasting opens Printing Week

The printing week is the annual event held to raise money for the student publications. This year, the event was opened with a feast, which was followed by a series of events throughout the week. The feast was attended by students, faculty, and staff, and it was a great success.

"Feasting" and any pictures or articles contained within must be substantially altered by the student or faculty publications. Photographers and students are encouraged to sign up for permission to photograph events. A copy of the student publications' specific rules for photographing events is available from the student publications office.

"Feasting" and any pictures or articles contained within must be substantially altered by the student or faculty publications. Photographers and students are encouraged to sign up for permission to photograph events. A copy of the student publications' specific rules for photographing events is available from the student publications office.
Monte Carlo night

Monte Carlo Night will be held this Monday, Jan. 18, in the Ag Eng. 123, with Elder Rudy Silva, Gemologist. sleeve present and a diversity of items to draw for. The dinner is $20 per person and 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. The $30 ticket includes a dinner, a silent auction, and a live auction. The proceeds will go to support the College Work Study program. The silent auction features items such as jewelry, gift cards, and a diamond necklace. The live auction includes items such as a trip to Europe and a diamond ring. All proceeds will go to support the College Work Study program. The event is open to the public and tickets are available online or at the College Work Study office. Casual attire recommended.

Books at high noon

This Monday, Jan. 18, 12:30 p.m., in the Ag Eng. 123, the Ag Eng. 123, the "Aliens must report" event will be held. This event is open to all students interested in learning more about the aliens and their potential impact on our planet. Attendees will have the opportunity to ask questions and engage in discussions with the panelists. This event is free and open to the public. Please RSVP by email to ageng123@gmail.com to reserve your spot.

Art & Architecture

"Diamonds Are a Girl’s Best Friend" event will be held this Friday, Jan. 22, at 7:30 p.m., in the Ag Eng. 123. This event will feature a presentation by a local jewelry designer, followed by a Q&A session. Attendees will have the opportunity to purchase a variety of diamond jewelry pieces from the designer. This event is open to the public and tickets are available online for $50 per person. All proceeds will go to support the College Work Study program.

College of the Desert Spring Break

The College of the Desert will be offering a Spring Break trip to Hawaii this year. The trip will include flights, accommodation, and all meals. The trip will take place from March 7th to March 14th. Interested students should contact the College Work Study office for more information. This trip is open to all students and is a great opportunity to experience a new culture and relax during the Spring Break.

NEWS FROM SHERATON

Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns

Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns are offering special deals for students. Sheraton ID card today! It entitles you to a 10% discount on room rates at nearly all Sheraton hotels. In addition, students who present a Sheraton Student ID Card will receive a free upgrade to a higher floor, a free beverage, and a free breakfast. Sheraton also offers a "Stay Longer, Save More" promotion, which allows students to save money on room rates for stays of three or more nights. Please rush me a free Sheraton Student ID Card (or a free Faculty Guest Card). I understand it entitles me to generous discounts all year long at most Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns.

"Business is for the birds!"

Who says so?

Lots of people do. Some right on your campus. And for reasons, they point an accusing finger at you and say it’s a lack of social commitment.

Social commitment? We wish they could visit our Keaney, N. J. plant, where we make cable and apprentice you on our beautiful telephone company. But we have time for others, other phones, and other social responsibility.

Like the situation in nearby Newark. With drive and business leaders, we began getting ideas. "Let’s teach higher skills to some of the unemployed and under-employed," they said. We agreed. We started.

They could qualify for jobs that are paying less — and help themselves as well.

We sent our pull-out-dad shop, evening. We found volunteer instructors. A community groups screened applicants. Another supplied head nuts. The Boys-Club donated classrooms facilities. Another company gave us more instructions.

Stone 20 volume added. Their income: Self-improvement. Results to date: people at better paying jobs.

And this is only one of dozen of similar projects that are presently going on in factories across the country, where our free jobs are being continued.

"Business is for the birds!"

...and save money

Here with valuable element! Send for our free 16-page booklet "Save Money on Your Phone Bill." You mention this circular and you’ll receive our free booklet on how you can save money on your telephone bill. We know how to do it. You'll save money.

Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns

"Business is for the birds!"

Who says so?
Conservatively Speaking

Bob Brown

After the basketball game Friday night, Leo the Liberal and I had a long conversation regarding poverty in America. He suggested that I add him to my list of interviewees. I agreed and set up an appointment for Monday to meet and discuss his work on poverty.

Leo explained that poverty is a complex issue that affects millions of Americans. He shared that he had been working with the Poverty Corps and had witnessed firsthand the struggles of those living in poverty.

Leo mentioned that there have been many efforts to address poverty, but progress has been slow. He noted that while some programs have helped, many Americans continue to struggle.

Leo added that poverty is not just about money but also about access to education, healthcare, and other basic needs. He emphasized the importance of education in breaking the cycle of poverty.

Leo encouraged me to explore these themes in my reporting and to share the stories of those affected by poverty. He believed that understanding the complexities of poverty would help bring about necessary change.

I thanked Leo for his time and agreed to continue our conversation on Monday. I look forward to learning more about his work and the challenges of poverty in America.
Mat win over Coloradoans delights Hitchcock

Mustang grapplers host top junior college teams

The Mustangs broke down a 2-0 junior college team lead Thursday with a 5-2 victory over the California Junior College Association.

Colby Boys Lead in Final Match

Colby leads the final match 5-2 with 9 points and Spencer 12, and the win brings the Mustangs their first team points for the season.

The Mustangs won both matches tonight with a 49-89 lead with 16:66 remaining.

On Tuesday, the Mustangs will host the Los Angeles State Diablos, who are the words of Ed Jorgensen, the fall instead of spring, Jorgensen.

The California Collegiate Athletic Association games of the day weren't enough to overcome the Los Angeles State Diablos, who are the words of Ed Jorgensen, the fall instead of spring, Jorgensen.

The Mustangs broke down a 2-0 junior college team lead Thursday with a 5-2 victory over the California Junior College Association.

The Mustangs won both matches tonight with a 49-89 lead with 16:66 remaining.

On Tuesday, the Mustangs will host the Los Angeles State Diablos, who are the words of Ed Jorgensen, the fall instead of spring, Jorgensen.