Ousted democrat re-elected

Washington U.S. Representative-elect Adam Clayton Powell Jr. aides have rejected his election victory challenges in a last-ditch effort to block his seating in the House of Representatives. Powell and his aides said they would go to court to block his election if Congress fails to seat him.

Earlier this week Powell was re-elected to the House with 66.9% of the vote and is scheduled to be seated in early April. After Powell lost his seat last year, he challenged the election results and was seated in January.

Today, Powell and his aides said they would seek a court order to prevent his seating if Congress fails to act.

The House seat is the latest in a series of legal challenges Powell has faced since he lost his seat in 1964. Powell, a Democrat, lost his seat last year in a closely contested election, but he challenged the results and was seated in January.

Today, Powell and his aides said they would seek a court order to prevent his seating if Congress fails to act.

Drill teams ready for Arizona test

The BJC's Wood Drill Team and the Cal Poly Drill Team will participate in a series of tests to determine the condition of the drill and to evaluate its performance.

The tests, sponsored by the University of California, are a series of drills designed to make the court more efficient and reduce the number of units that need to be tested. The tests will be held on April 13 and 14.

And for several years, we can expect that the budget will not face any cuts in making its recommendations. The BJC's budget is $60 million and it is expected to be held at $59.5 million.

There will be more emphasis on higher education, and the California Legislature is expected to increase its funding by $5 million to $7 million.
