One hundred students sign petition to extend parking hours

Cuesta Avenue between High and Valley is to be closed this weekend. The 100-yard stretch of road will be cleared of all traffic beginning Saturday, bringing an end to the parking lot at the rear of the Business Administration Building and Engineering West.

My platform is simple. I hope to bring the voices of student government closer to the views of the majority of students. We in- clude students' voices, opinions, comments, and concerns in our platform. In a first-quarter transfer story prompted by a study of the local economy, San Luis Valley residents were told that the community's economic prospects were not as bright as previously thought.

As the community begins to emerge from the economic downturn, the prospects for local businesses are not as promising as earlier forecasts had indicated.

The economic forecast for the San Luis Valley was optimistic until recently, with local businesses anticipating a strong recovery. However, recent data suggests that the recovery may be slower than expected, and the economy may continue to struggle in the coming months.

This is a concern for local business owners, who had been counting on a strong recovery to help their businesses thrive.

What do you think of Twiggy and the new fashion look?

Conservatively Speaking

Some Denver Industrial Enginers

Robert H. Davidson said that "The new fashions for men and women seem to be based on a combination of practicality and comfort, which is a welcome

trend in fashion design."

General George W. Thrush, representing the Commandant of the Marine Corps, attended William M.

Greene's retirement on Tuesday afternoon.

Greene, a senior, required the

URMC Commandant's, Trophy

which he shares with the college.

Jim A. Andrews, the president and chief executive officer of Cal

Poly, accepted the award on behalf of the collegians.

Greene fulfilled the Platoon

Leader Class, Radar Course, and was elected Student Judiciary, last spring.

The Commander's Trophy is presented each year to the individual in the Platoon Leaders

Commissioning Program who exhibits valuable leadership.

In his announcement that the Cal Poly senior had won the award,

General Greene said that Greene's attitude was "especially key for being so helpful to the college in general.

The ability of Cal Poly senior merely to have been the object of the faculty and students' lives is a remarkable achievement in itself. Greene is an outstanding scholar and leader in all fields of the university's life, as General Greene said.

Sometimes things get ridiculous, but the run around the scene gets, lets us all.

The Santa Ana College Soccer Association would not recognize the Mustangs until the Physical Education Department.
