Some students lack $$

- In the '67 Ohio State band, for example, 10 members are from middle-class, middle-income families. This is not the case in every band, but it is likely that a higher percentage of students from non-middle-income families are in the bands that have higher percentages of black and Hispanic students.

- The report, prepared by the Ohio State Student Senate, faults the university for not providing adequate financial aid to students from lower-income families.

- The university's lack of financial aid is a major source of concern for many students, especially those from lower-income families. The report calls for the university to provide more financial aid to students from lower-income families.

- The university's response to the report is that it is committed to providing financial aid to all students, regardless of their income level.

- The university's financial aid policies are designed to help all students, regardless of their income level.

Ketchup praises campus C.C.R.

- The Ketchup, the student newspaper, praised the campus C.C.R. for its efforts in making the campus safer for students.

- The Ketchup also praised the C.C.R. for its work in the community, particularly in helping to reduce crime.

- The Ketchup's coverage of the C.C.R. is a good example of the way in which student newspapers can help to hold institutions accountable for their actions.

Senators challenge swine unit move; approve new bulking feeding system

- The senators challenged the move of the swine unit to the new location, but approved the new bulking feeding system.

- The senators were concerned about the cost of the move and the impact it would have on students.

- The senators also expressed concern about the impact of the new system on the university's research programs.

- The senators' decision to approve the new system was a compromise between their concerns about the cost and the need for new equipment.

- The bands will include both college and community groups.

- The festival is a popular event for students and the community at large.

- The festival is sponsored by the college's student activities board.

- The festival will feature music, food, and activities for all ages.

Navy recruiting team visits campus

- The Navy recruiting team visited the campus to recruit students for the navy.

- The team met with students in the campus center and in the gym.

- The team also held an open house in the gym, where students could learn more about the navy.

- The team's visit was part of a national effort to recruit college students for the navy.
with the record enrollment this year, parking problems have become familiar to the student's mind. Because up there on the hill is trying to help the according, however, on account of the building are being built. As a result, we still have our mainный parking lot.

As you may know, "Veitle" is no more. In its place is a barren field, waiting for a coating of asphalt. With the parking situation as prominent as it is, we wonder.

The college offers a tractor driving course in the new department. Why not have them drive their little old tractor over the fallen Veitve, flattening it out enough and removing the last of the valiant trees still standing? It would also be nice to feel that you are getting some use out of your nine dollar parking fee.

Someone needs to be made responsible for the cause of why the parking lot is so expensive. The tractor drivers could also learn by doing. At least that's the way I see it.
