Cal Poly's "Blues n' Boogie Big Band" at Savanna Jazz Club Swing Dance May 1

SAN LUIS OBISPO - The University Jazz Band, also known as the "Blues n' Boogie Big Band" from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo will play blues, boogie-woogie, R&B and swing classics for listening and dancing at the Savanna Jazz Club in San Francisco on Friday, May 1 from 8 p.m. to midnight.

The big band (four trumpets, four trombones, five saxophones, rhythm section, and vocalist) plays many original arrangements made famous by such jazz luminaries as Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Louis Jordan and others.

Cal Poly Music Department Director of Jazz Studies Paul Rinzler leads the group. The band is comprised of the leading jazz musicians from current Cal Poly students.

The Savanna Jazz Club is one of the best places in San Francisco to hear jazz, and is located at 2937 Mission Street, San Francisco, 415-285-3369. Admission is $8 and helps support these student musicians in their jazz studies at Cal Poly.

For more information about the performance, contact Paul Rinzler at 805-756-5792 or prinzler@calpoly.edu.
