State plans college fees on 'ability to pay' basis

SACRAMENTO (UP)—A new voice in the University of California and the University of Southern California is being raised today by Assemblyman Ralph E. Warger, D-Sacramento, who said it would range from 200 to 1200 a year in added revenue for the University of California and the University of Southern California.

Warger suggested a tuition of 1200 per student and raise up to 1500 per student.

The universities are to consider a recommendation next week which opens its monthly two-day meeting in Herkoley Friday.

If the regents eventually were to accept this plan, Warger could not find it that it may fail for efforts, but he said that it is a legal and policy, and would take legislative action to make the plan legal.

Warger said he had no schedule for Individual type of fee, but he proposed that the changes for charged students should be from 1000 to 1200 a year for the University of California and the University of Southern California.

The plan was a "constructive alternative," said Warger, "if the regents rejected this but agreed to a similar plan, we would pay it next year."

New engineering major to be added next year

Are you interested in civil engineering? Do you want to do something related to this field in your future career?

Next year a new major will be added to the curriculum. The new major is in civil engineering, and it will involve studying structural and environmental engineering.

For students who are interested in pursing a career in this field, this major will provide a strong foundation in the principles and practices of civil engineering.

The curriculum includes courses in structural engineering, environmental engineering, and materials science.

Students will have the opportunity to work with faculty members on research projects and gain practical experience.

Best dressed coed sought in contest

In this year's edition of the "Best Dressed Coed" contest, sponsored by "Glamour Magazine," the contestants will have the opportunity to showcase their fashion sense and compete for prizes.

The contest is open to all female students at the university, and will be judged on factors such as creativity, originality, and overall presentation.

Veterans note

These students who are enrolled in the university are veterans of the war and have contributed to the nation's war effort.

The university is proud to honor their service and contributions.

Editorial

When F. Sheldon Harden announced his resignation as head football coach on October 15, it said, "I couldn't seem to get the ball rolling."

Harden had the task of picking up the pieces in six years. His only winning seasons were his first quick spell in 1952, and the year after his return from his second leave of absence when his team played Harvard. It's certain that this administration was patient with Sheldon Harden in view of his two-year interim as coach.

And in view of that, President Kennedy may be blamed before the new coach can produce a winner. However, it must be emphasized that President Kennedy wants a winner and it's conceivable he'll do everything until he gets one.

Chinese hail new lunar year

"Gung Hoy Fat Choy"

The monkey will swing into the Chinese calendar of things as the center of attention on Feb. 13, the beginning of the Chinese Year of the Monkey.

In San Luis Obispo, the people of the Chinese community and the American citizens will have a chance to celebrate the new year of the monkey. Dr. Fred Whitson, assistant professor of Asian studies, and the president of San Luis Obispo will join in the celebration.

The symbolic symbols of the Chinese new year are open to interpretations and sentiments. Just like the "Ottawa" or "New Year" in the West, the Chinese people believe in that their American Students and the residents of San Luis Obispo will join in the celebration.

"Gung Hoy Fat Choy" (Happy New Year) will be the center of attention on Feb. 13.

The highlight of this celebration will be an authentic Chinese dance, accompanied with Chinese talent performance which includes silk fans, sword, and stick dancing, as well as flower arranging.

The "New Year" is customarily a time for reunion and Chinese people sincerely observe their traditions in custom and style.

The festivities begin with fireworks, and the Chinese people traditionally meet their American Students and the residents of San Luis Obispo. The festivities will be open to all.
