Joe Harper, an assistant football coach at the University of Colorado, was interviewed by President Robert E. Kennedy for the head coaching position.

According to Daily Colorado, Harper was on the list of five coaches, which was turned over to President Kennedy for personal interviews by his advisory committee.

In a previous conversation, President Kennedy promised that he would interview one of the five final candidates on Jan. 31, but would mention no names.

Harper, a 1946 graduate of U.C.L.A., has been an offensive line assistant at Colorado for the past five seasons.

He also has been an assistant coach at the University of Washington, a fullback at the University of Denver, and a guard at the University of Colorado.

He also included a 31-21 win in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The former L.C.L.A. guard said he was "more interested in coaching than in being a player."

He has been offered a position as an assistant coach at the University of Washington, but he has not accepted it yet.

He was appointed to the job by former head coach Dwight Helfrich, and he was on the staff of the National College Athletic Association.

President Kennedy has approved the appointment of Harper to the post.

The position of head coach at Colorado is one of the most sought after in the nation.

It was taken over by former head coach Joe Deubler, who was with the team for six months.

An investigation had taken place which resulted in the resignation of the Physical Education Department, and Dr. Carl Martin was appointed to the post.

President Kennedy is reported to have said that Harper would be offered the post.

"I said yes, but I meant until tonight," Harper said.

"I have a lot of potential," Harper noted.

Harper was a coach of Ohio State University, where he was head coach of the football team for five years.

Proposed amphitheater slated for spring events

From the Horse's Mouth
by Dave Rosenthal

If you think that the SNAPP proposal for an amphitheater is a Long Beach version of the L.A. Colosseum, then you must have confused SNAPP with TDABs, because the SNAPP proposal is for a small, student-run venue, not a huge, commercial venture like the Colosseum.

The amphitheater would be used for concerts, plays, and other events that are currently held on campus. It would also be a place for students to hang out and socialize.

The students who are behind this proposal believe that the amphitheater would be a great asset to the college community. They believe that it would provide a place for students to come together and enjoy each other's company.

The students also believe that the amphitheater would be a great way to bring in more revenue for the college. They suggest that the amphitheater could be used to host concerts and other events that would attract people from outside the college community.

In conclusion, the SNAPP proposal for an amphitheater is a great idea. It would provide a place for students to socialize and a way for the college to make more money. The students who are behind this proposal are to be commended for their efforts.

After neatly shocking out University of New Mexico, basketball greats take on New Mexico in the region. New Mexico's games set a final date for the basketball tournament in December.

The following information on the New Mexico withdrawal came in a telephone interview with Walt Fisher, basketball and hockey writer for The Daily.

The whole matter came up at noon on Dec. 14 at a surprise dinner for the basketball director. Don Coryell, in San Diego, which the football and cross-country teams were present. The dinner was sponsored by a local civil club, one of which had just awarded Coryell a new automobile.

President withdraws school

At the dinner, San Diego State College President Malcolm Love said, "I am withdrawing San Diego State from the California College Athletic Association."

The announcement caught everyone unaware and fully surprised Coryell, although he was happy about the idea. The new team that has the DAA where it is two schools from the conference, but he turned the matter over to A. O. Chase, basketball director, and the athletic board would make a final decision and Dr. Love promised to abide by it.

The idea began a year ago, or with the CCAA, one of which had jfist awarded Coryell a new automobile.

Basketball coach opposes withdrawal

At last week's athletic board meeting in San Diego, several proposals were considered. One called for the school to withdraw from the conference and the other to stay in the conference under the current CCAA rules.

The board has sent letters to the Western Athletic Conference and the Pacific Conference, asking them if they are interested and available in membership.

Another proposal is staying in the conference and having the school scholarship restricted from the conference.

Objection to scholarship limit

Concerning scholarship, San Diego objects to the $35,000 limit on scholarships which the National Collegiate Athletic Association established.

The athletic board of San Diego receives its funds from a fund established through gate receipts, including gate receipts which have built up their large fund. The athletic board of San Diego is in favor of the $35,000 scholarship limit, and they are looking into the ways and means of increasing the fund.
