"SPAP is planting the war in Vietnam on the campus." This was the view expressed by many students in the recent interviews conducted by the Mustang Daily. While some did not express their views about Vietnam, many others who were interviewed said that they were against the war.

Mary Lishted

"I have a brother who's in the Navy," said Mary Lishted, a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences. "I think that once he's done with his service, I plan on going into the Peace Corps."

"I like the idea of the Peace Corps," said Lishted. "I think it's a great way to help people and make a difference in the world."

"I think that the war is not just about the military," said Lishted. "It's about the people and what they're going through."

Bob Johnson

"I'm against the war," said Bob Johnson, a junior in the College of Business Administration. "I think that we should be doing more to help the people in Vietnam, not just killing them."

"I think that the war is a waste of money," said Johnson. "We should be spending that money on education and healthcare, not on weapons."

The nation average for shoplifting is about one and one-half per cent of the population, but perhaps you do not know what the average is. A recent study has shown that the average American shoplifter is 25 years old, has been married once and has a high school education. He has about $5,000 worth of merchandise stolen from him during his lifetime.

This statistic is based on a survey of shoplifters conducted by a private research firm. It was found that 75 per cent of the respondents had偷过的 items valued at more than $100. The average losing shop was run by a single person, and 85 per cent of the shoplifters had been caught at least once.

One of the most interesting findings of the study was that shoplifting is more common among women than men. It was found that 58 per cent of the shoplifters were women, and that women who shoplift are more likely to shoplift again than men.

Another interesting finding was that shoplifters are more likely to shop at department stores and supermarkets than at specialty stores. It was found that 60 per cent of the shoplifters had stolen from department stores, and that 30 per cent had stolen from supermarkets.

The study also found that shoplifters are more likely to shoplift when they are under the influence of alcohol or drugs. It was found that 40 per cent of the shoplifters had been under the influence of alcohol or drugs at the time of their theft.

In conclusion, shoplifting is a serious problem that affects a large number of people. It is important for businesses to take steps to prevent shoplifting, and for the government to enforce laws that make shoplifting a crime.
