Coach Harper here next week; eyes recruiting.

Editor meets president, takes tour of FBO home.

Supreme Court to study capital punishment law.

Role of arts at college discussed at confab.

President's committee edits new college manual.

City reviews plan for college stadium.
An epitaph of the hippie movement has been written by a noted psychiatrist, who told the American Medical Association that the first generation of the counterculture has forsaken its own values.

Dr. Graham B. Blaine, chief of psychiatry and psychology was not so kind.

"I'm Dr. Blaine, chief of psychiatry and psychology, in a grim and desperate mood, from the University of California, at the very center of the action."

Doctors are known not just for their scholarship but for their ability to render a diagnosis, and in the case of Dr. Blaine, it seems that he was also a student of a discipline he calls "psychology." His views are clouded by his own personal experiences, but he claims to have discovered the cause of this newfound phenomenon: the "hippies." He says that there are two types of people in this world: those who are not hippies and those who are. Those who are, he claims, are all the same. They all drink too much, they all wear the same clothes, and they all think the same way. In short, they are all hippies.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with them," Dr. Blaine says, "I think they're just a little crazy."

Dr. Blaine's views are not widely shared, but they do offer a glimpse into the state of mind of those who are trying to make sense of this new phenomenon. The fact that so many people are choosing to follow the lead of these strange beings is a testament to the power of their influence.
Campus cords to serve magazine's college staff

Last October, Northwestern University announced the formation of its student-run weekly newspaper. The announcement, according to a spokesperson for the university, was made to help students gain experience in writing, editing, layout, illustration, and design. The newspaper, The Northwestern, is one of the many student-run publications on college campuses around the country.

The new publication will be run by students and will feature a mix of news and opinion articles. The newspaper will be distributed to students on a weekly basis and will be available online. The editors of the newspaper will be responsible for selecting and editing the content, and the newspaper will have its own distinctive voice and style.

The announcement was met with enthusiasm by many students, who see the newspaper as an opportunity to gain valuable experience in the field of journalism. The newspaper will be run by a team of experienced journalists, and the editors will be able to hire and train new staff members as needed.

The new publication will also feature a variety of special sections, including a features section, a sports section, and a culture section. The newspaper will be distributed to students on a weekly basis and will be available online.

The announcement was met with enthusiasm by many students, who see the newspaper as an opportunity to gain valuable experience in the field of journalism. The newspaper will be run by a team of experienced journalists, and the editors will be able to hire and train new staff members as needed.

The new publication will also feature a variety of special sections, including a features section, a sports section, and a culture section. The newspaper will be distributed to students on a weekly basis and will be available online.
Title up for grabs

Cagers seek win in tonight's game

The Mustangs will get another chance at Cal State L.A. tonight when the two teams meet in the third game of the conference title race. "It is going to be a hard game because of their consistent talent," Chestnut said. "So we have to come out and play the game of our lives against them." Cal State, the defending league champions, will be looking to hold on to first place in the conference and six of Cal's eight league contests remain.

Soccer action set in match tomorrow

The first game of a new season will be held Saturday, Feb. 19 at 7 p.m. for the Mustangs.

The game will feature the American Athletic Conference teams against the Latin American teams. Other teams in the league are from Africa, Asia and Middle Eastern nations.

If you are interested in playing for any of these teams, please contact Coach Tommy Ward, or come Friday at 9 p.m. in the soccer field. The games will be held at Portland State University, with the Mustangs right behind them.

According to Hitchcock, "Portland State will give us challenge. It is going to be rough, but we have enough depth to where we should do fairly well. But we have to be prepared." The Mustangs are the only team in the league that is a favorite there, with the Mustangs possibly winning the championship.

"The league is going to be intense, and we have enough depth to where we should give them a real challenge," Chestnut said.

Rugby team to rise again

Trying to bounce back from a 20-11 loss to the University of Oregon, the Mustangs' rugby team will try to get in the winning column again as they face the Los Angeles Rams. Last week's defeat was the first home setback for the team this season, according to Chestnut, who said, "We are playing in a club league rather than a college league."

Other games in the league are the Long Beach Rams, Old Dominion of Long Beach, Cal State L.A., and Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo. The match with Los Angeles will be played on Friday at 5 p.m. at Balboa Park in Encinitas.