Policy for use of university name: call us ‘Cal Poly’

Cal Poly’s name is used in a variety of forms. To help establish a consistent identity for the university, President Baker has endorsed the following policy for the use of the university name in official material.

It applies in letters, newsletters, brochures, posters, fliers, signs, sound recordings, videotaped programs, research proposals, in both headlines and text — in short, whenever the university’s name is used in university-produced material.

You’ll notice that the policy is in keeping with the new university logo’s emphasis on the name “Cal Poly.” (Incidentally, guidelines for use of the logo are expected to be published soon.)

Questions? Call Bob Anderson or Stan Bernstein at ext. 1511.

• The guiding principle: Use “Cal Poly” — just “Cal Poly” — whenever possible in referring to the university. That applies to formal material as well as informal material.
  • Use the full “California Polytechnic State University” where context, full identification or strict formality requires it, but use it only once, using the short form (Cal Poly) for other references. (The full name is printed on letterhead stationery; that should suffice for a letter.)
  • The first and most prominent reference to the university on a printed piece or in any other medium (the cover of a brochure, the large type on a poster, the opening line in a radio spot, etc.) should say “Cal Poly;” not the full name.
  • Avoid using “San Luis Obispo” as part of the name of the university. Leave it out altogether whenever possible

(Here, too, the printed San Luis Obispo address at the top of the letterhead suffices for letters.)

• Because every printed piece that goes off campus should have a complete identification on it, the university’s full name along with “San Luis Obispo” should be used somewhere. But they should be small, in a visible but unobtrusive position (e.g., lower corner or back cover), and preferably used only once. Try to keep the university name and “San Luis Obispo” on separate lines. A return address with the new university logo serves the purpose well.

• A way to further separate “San Luis Obispo” from the university name is to make it smaller than the university name. But do that only if the two are on separate

CSU trustees OK tougher requirements

The California State University trustees have approved tightened admission requirements.

The new standards mean that freshmen entering in the fall of 1988 must have four years of English, three years of mathematics, one year of U.S. history and government, one year of laboratory science, two years of a foreign language, one year of visual or performing arts, and three years of electives from specified fields of study.

In addition, students must also have a grade point average which places them in the top third of their high school class.

Procedure for MPPP Awards announced

The procedure for awarding Meritorious Performance and Professional Promise Awards (MPPP) to faculty unit employees has been distributed by President Baker to all faculty and librarians. Meritorious Performance and Professional Promise Awards in the amount of $2500 each are to recognize or promote excellence in one or more of the following areas — teaching, professional activity or service. All persons covered by the faculty unit 3 collective bargaining agreement are eligible to apply or nominate unit 3 employees for these awards.

For the 1985-86 academic year the following schedule applies:

Dance master class planned for Friday

Nolan Dennett of the dance faculty at UC Santa Barbara will offer a master class in modern dance technique with an emphasis on performance on Friday, Nov. 22.

Dennett’s appearance from 3 to 5:30 pm in the dance studio of the Crandall Gymnasium Annex is being sponsored by the Orchesis Dance Company, a student organization chartered by the ASI.

Moon Jae Minn Suhr, director of the company, is urging all dancers of intermediate ability to attend. Those participating in the class will learn how to improve their performance, and more specifically, how to dance with somebody else.

Dennett, who specializes in modern dance, improvisation, dance composition, and choreography, most recently was director of the Choreographer’s Showcase at the Lobero Theatre in Santa Barbara, which was sponsored by the Santa Barbara Dance Alliance.

There will be a $5 fee for the class. Further information is available from Mrs. Suhr at ext. 1169, or the Theatre Box Office, at ext. 1421.

Video dance will aid quake victims

A video dance featuring a 24-foot screen will be held on Saturday, Nov. 23, in Chumash Auditorium.

All proceeds will go to the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker group providing relief and reconstruction work for earthquake-torn Mexico City.

A minimum $1 donation is requested for the 8:30 pm dance, which will feature top-40 hits, soul, and rock and roll music.

Refreshments and “Aid To Mexico” T-shirts will also be available.

The Aid To Mexico Committee, which is sponsoring the video dance, is made up of 15 ethnic clubs of the ASI. For more information call the Multi-Cultural Center at ext. 1405.

Comedy show set for Nov. 22

An evening of laughter is in store as three talented comedians take to the stage of the Cal Poly Theatre, for two shows, 8 pm and 10:30 pm, on Friday, Nov. 22.

Scheduled to appear in the “Laugh Asylum Comedy Show” are Bo Smithson, Tim Jones, and Frank Looney, also known as Captain Rowdy. All three have performed stand-up comedy in comedy clubs in both Northern and Southern California, as well as Texas and Washington.

Advance tickets for the Nov. 22 show are priced at $3.50 for students and senior citizens and $4.50 for the general public and are available at the UU Ticket Office. They will be 50 cents more at the door.

The Laugh Asylum Comedy Show is a presentation of the Special Events Committee of ASI.

Spry reception

Ethel Spry is retiring after 23 years. A reception is planned for Thursday, Dec. 5 from 1-3 pm in the UU Galerie.

Xerox awards $220,000 grant to Computer Science

The Xerox Corp. has granted $220,000 worth of computer systems, service and software support to the Computer Science Department.

The grant will provide the Cal Poly department with a new system of high-performance workstations, laser printers and computers for filing and communicating information. It is the department’s second major grant from the corporation in two years.

“The software and hardware involved in this grant will enable Cal Poly for the first time to teach artificial intelligence on a large scale,” said Dean of Engineering Duane Bruley.

Cal Poly is one of 24 U.S., Canadian and British universities to share in the second phase of Xerox’s three-year, $30 million University Grant Program. Last year Cal Poly, as one of 12 universities in the program’s first stage, received a $1.2 million computer grant.

Commencement speakers sought

The Commencement Speaker Screening Committee is soliciting suggestions for names of individuals suitable to be considered for the featured speaker at future commencements.

Any member of the campus community is welcome to make a nomination. Along with the name, submit any known pertinent data such as qualifications, background, speaking ability and other factors which may be helpful in evaluating the nominees.

It is suggested that individuals nominated fall into one or more of the following categories:

✓ A prominent national, state or local figure who has knowledge and concern for higher education.
✓ A member of the California State University Board of Trustees.
✓ A member of Cal Poly's President's Cabinet.
✓ A prominent leader from business, industry or the professions.
✓ A present or former member of the University administration, faculty or staff.
✓ An alumnus of the University who exemplifies the desirable qualities and achievements the University would like for all of its graduates.

The committee has requested that all nominations be submitted prior to Dec. 3. Nominations should be sent to the faculty or student representatives on the committee or to the committee chairman, Don Coats, Associate Dean, Educational Services, 312 Admin.

Unfortunately, two faculty members were not recognized. Peter Kentes, a new member of the Theatre and Dance Department, choreographed the Damon Runyon musical. In addition, Dr. Bill Parker, visiting lecturer from Pacific Lutheran University, played Nicely-Nicely Johnson.

English architect to speak today

An internationally known English architectural educator will speak today (Nov. 21) on "Meaning in Architecture."

Geoffrey Haigh Broadbent, professor and head of the School of Architecture at Portsmouth Polytechnic University, is to speak at 7:30pm in the Gallery on the ground floor of the Architecture and Environmental Design Building. A $1 donation is suggested at the door.

Broadbent's illustrated lecture will explore different ways buildings can have meaning: their effect on people as "signs" as measured by psychological research, their abstract geometric systems, and the way buildings "carry" their meaning.

His appearance is part of the lecture series sponsored by the Architecture Department.

lines. (You can see a good example on the concrete campus entrance signs.)

- In text, the preferred way to indicate the university's location is to use a phrase like "Cal Poly is at San Luis Obispo," when it works in the context, rather than using "Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo" as shorthand to answer the geographical question.
- Never use the abbreviation "SLO" as part of the university name.
- Never use "Cal Poly State University" (even if the freeway signs do) or "Cal Poly University" or any other truncation or abbreviation of the full name other than "Cal Poly."
- Never refer to Cal Poly by its initials — neither "CP" nor "CPSU."
- Never use just "Poly" without the "Cal" when naming the university. (NOTE: That does not rule out combined names for events and programs such as Poly Royal and Poly Reps.)
- Use "the university" with a lower-case "u."
- Use "The (upper-case 'T') California State University," but "the (lower-case 't') California State University system."
- Any commercial use of the university name or symbols must be reviewed by the director of public affairs.

Professor checks quake damage

Dr. Satwant Rihal, professor of architectural engineering and a noted national authority on the behavior of buildings during earthquakes, has just returned from Mexico City after a four-day visit to inspect buildings destroyed by the recent temblors. He inspected the damage with an eye for its implications for California and the Central Coast in particular.

Rihal’s trip was sponsored by the National Science Foundation, which has sponsored much of his recent research. He was accompanied by a UC Berkeley earthquake engineer, sponsored by the World Bank, and in Mexico City talked to members of a UNICEF structural inspection team, among others.
dBASE II/III classes will be offered

The Instructional Support Group (ISG) of Computer User Support is sponsoring two hands-on dBASE II/III class sessions, which will cover dBASE Report Formats, an Introduction to dBASE Programming, and dBASE Programming Techniques.

Course participants should have attended the Introductory and Beginning dBASE classes (levels 1 and 2) or be familiar with using dBASE in an interactive mode (i.e., the commands — create, use, list, browse, edit, print, delete, pack, modify structure, and copy).

These level 3 and 4 courses are scheduled for Friday, Dec. 6 and 13, from 3 - 5 p.m. in CSci 255. Call ISG at, ext. 2516 to reserve a place.

Community minded faculty to meet

Faculty interested in integrating community projects into the curriculum will meet today (Nov. 21) in UU 219 beginning at 11 a.m. Malcolm Wilson and Fred Abitia will make remarks about community service and its role in the curriculum.

Participants are encouraged to bring a sack lunch so that conversation can extend beyond noon. The meeting is open to all interested faculty. Those who cannot attend the meeting can request notification of future meetings by calling Dianne Long, ext. 2957 or 2984.

Elected president

John Paulsen, assistant director of Public Safety in charge of the University Fire Section, was recently elected president of the County of San Luis Obispo Fire Chiefs Association. He takes office on Jan. 1, and will serve a one-year term. He is presently secretary of the association. Paulsen's duties will consist of county-wide coordination of fire related issues and training programs.

Contract canceled

In the Sept. 19 issue of the Report it was announced that the California State University (CSU) had signed a contract with Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA) to obtain discounted air fares for CSU employees flying on official business between certain cities. That contract has been canceled.

Education faculty receive awards

Becca Wachtman, a lecturer in the Education Department, recently received the Marcus Foster Award for outstanding contributions to reading and literacy in California. The Marcus Foster Service Award is the highest honor given by the California Reading Association and Wachtman was presented the award at the general session of the California Reading Association Conference held in Anaheim. At the same meeting Don Maas of the Education Department faculty was presented the Margaret Lynch Area Exemplary Service Award in recognition of an outstanding contribution in the field of reading.
