Students may blow fuse over power shortage

by Jeff Clemeier

Professor Douglas Germain called a meeting of students last week to give them information about the power shortage and to hear their views.

The students were told that the power shortage was caused by the fact that the University was using as much power as it could, and that the students could help by using less power.

Suggestions were made to turn off lights and appliances when not in use, and to use only the lights necessary in the classroom.

The students were also informed that the power shortage would last for a few more days, and that they should continue to use less power until the shortage was over.

The meeting ended with the students expressing their concern about the power shortage and asking questions about the situation.

Absentees ballot offer simple voting solution

Regardless of such political affiliations, the people of California have reason to be grateful to the California legislature, which has enacted a bill that will provide a simple voting solution for absentees. Under this law, absentee ballots can be obtained by submitting a direct request to the county clerk or registrar of voters, and for a period of 2 weeks before an election, these ballots can be mailed to the voter at their home address. This means that people who are unable to vote in person can still exercise their right to vote. The new law is a welcome improvement over the current system, which has been complicated and confusing. With the new system, absentee voters can simply request their ballots by mail, and they will receive them in time to vote. This will make it easier for people to participate in the democratic process, and it will help to ensure that everyone's voice is heard. So, if you are an absentee voter, make sure to take advantage of this new system and cast your ballot before the deadline.

Hancock has already played two fall games, and Coach John Wagnon says he has a good team, the best balanced team in years.

The probable starting Colt offensive line is Rich Wegner and John Finlan at end, Paul Jernigan and Dan Barsanti at tackle, with Greg Finlan and Mike Fulenwider at halfback. Wayne Safran will start at center from South Simi, and Mike Green from San Juan, will start at the tackles.

Tom Diggin, a 196-pound Bakersfield- field and John Hennigan, 194 pounds from Claremont, will start the game at the guards. Jim Schuler will anchor the offensive line at center.

In the backfield, Steve Branson will start the game at quarterback. Jay Corey and Bob Emler, both from San Francisco State's ball carriers at running back.

Hancock, 6-1, 226-pound Junior on the opening date this weekend, is still a long way from being a sound defensive tackle also did the same thing last season. He was persuaded to come back to fundamentals and perk up physically.

Petracek, a 226-pound Junior from Banta, is deeply disturbed by his own defensive tackle didn't work out any injuries.

Strength and agility are Petracek's assets. He was persuaded to come back to fundamentals and perk up physically.

"It's true," Harper noted, "and he hasn't had an open date this weekend, ('are still trying to try to jell."}

"Our pass protection is not experiencing it. We're going through a little frustration. But we should be able to get the ball carriers. They've been about 5.0 yards per carry."

"In our system, the position of the fullback is the key. And a chip named O.J. Simpson of 4.6 yards per carry."

"I've got a chance to get back to fundamentals and get experienced," Harper commented.

"We're looking for a big loaf in the way of the quarterback. We have no experience term that the passes will come easy. But as soon as we get our passing down, we're going to be a good team.
