Kresge captures ASI Presidency

The Mustang Daily was dealt some verbal blows by Wayne Parks. Applied Science. Parks wanted to know why the Daily had so many of either the proposed mandatory health fee or the judiciary amendment, two issues on the ASI presidential ballot Tuesday and Wednesday.

Parks also charged that Mustang Daily was taking a one-sided view of the events on campus. He referred specifically to the constant coverage of such groups as Students for New Action Politics, the Black Students Union, and the United Mexican-American students.

Parks also accused the Daily of omitting the return statement of a suspense vote of the ASI presidential ballot Tuesday and Wednesday. The Daily, according to Dean Everett Chandler, has not received a response from the grand jury.

Organizations and clubs on campus from ASI to athletics to dairy cattle judging will be able to challenge their recommended budgets for 1960-70 at the SAC meeting Tuesday.

While many clubs were granted their requests of specific monies, others were not. Representatives from the dissatisfied groups will seek to get cuts from other groups to regain their original subsidy requests. SAC will then have to re-evaluate the budget to achieve a compromise for all groups.

Poll results

California College Republicans are one of the most active, if not the most active, political groups on campus. Their influence in the election of Assemblyman William Ketchem (R-Paso Robles) obviously shows the fruit of their labor.

Their poll, which appears on today's front page, is very interesting and shocking. The results on Dr. Hayakawa and the graduated tuition fee do not surprise us. But, we look with utter dismay at the results on the Ethnic Study programs on college campuses today. Mustang Daily has time and again favored the adoption of such a program on this campus. It is absolutely essential that programs of this type are instituted on college campuses. The minority students and all students at large must be educated. We are glad the essential steps are being made.

Democrats, without question, favor ethnic studies. Over 83 per cent polled favored such a program. On the other hand, only 60 per cent of Republicans asked showed support. The difference is shocking.

Ethnic studies have support from all segments of the population. While two-thirds of the GOP polled favored it, their percentages don't come close to those affiliated with the Democratic Party.

What the poll shows is that a sizable bloc of California voters don't think ethnic studies are worth the time, expense and other burdens being placed on the campus.

Mustang Daily cannot emphasize enough the importance of ethnic studies, especially with the fledgling program here now under way. It must be supported or it will fail.

We will have subscribed from our responsibilities, not as college students or voters, but as human beings.

Traveling Michigan band tunes up for concert here

The University of Michigan Symphony Band, first band ever to be selected by the State Department to represent the United States in the Soviet Union and the Near East as part of our cultural exchange program, will perform in the Men’s Gym at 8 p.m. on Sunday, May 11.

The 110-member band, which has travelled extensively throughout the United States, Egypt, Lebanon, Jordan, Cyprus, Turkey, Greece, Romania, and Pakistan, has elicited the highest praise for its performances from critics, composers, musicians, and audiences everywhere as one of the world’s finest concert bands.

Outstanding Mexican artist display graphic art in library

An exhibition of 57 graphic works by some of the world’s outstanding modern artists will be on display in the Library from May 10 until June 1.

Contemporary Mexican Prints was organized by Roger Crossman, Department of Graphic Art and Design, Pratt Institute, in cooperation with the Instituto Nacional de Bellas Artes, and the Galleria de Arte Mexicano, Mexico City. The exhibit is circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Tracing the developments in Mexican graphic art in this century, the show includes works by 24 artists in a wide variety of media and techniques. Rufino Tamayo has been called Mexico’s leading abstractionist—a title he rejects, calling himself instead a poetic-realist. His strong colors, his contorted, halftone-like images, are taken directly from the Mexican countryside—the rich colors of tropical fruit and vegetation, the red-browns of the earth, Tamayo’s color lithograph, “Figure with a Watermelon” shows this stimulation from native surroundings.

Other artists, working in both the most current and traditional techniques, include Alberto Giacometti, Isidoro Ocampo, and Roberto Denis. In all, this exhibit covers the most significant achievements and artists in contemporary Mexican printmaking.

Hayakawa cops 82 per cent support

Dr. R. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State, was overwhelmingly supported for his action at that school in an opinion poll taken by the California College Republicans during Poly Royal.

Dr. Hayakawa received 82 per cent support from the 200 persons asked. Only 18 per cent voiced opposition.

Among Republicans, he received 90 per cent support for his action at Poly Royal. Among Democrats, 90 per cent agreed with him. And of those tying fiat, 90 per cent thought Dr. Hayakawa has done the right thing.

On the graduated tuition fee proposal, introduced by Assistant Professor Norman Ross (R-Troy), it was supported by an overall 50 per cent.

Among the GOP, 55 per cent favored the plan. However, only 26 per cent of the Democrats supported the proposed fee.

Presently, however, Mustang Daily editor in chief and editor of the Student Catalog report that Managan, assembly speaker, has indefinitely pulled the bill, AB-460, out of committee because of insufficient votes for passage.

The source also speculated that Managan, the chairman of the budget committee, would submit the bill if the University of California Board of Regents approves a similar plan.

On the third question poll, 62.8 per cent of those asked favored sex education in the public schools.

Among the GOP, 60.7 per cent were Republicans, 22 per cent Democrats, and 18 per cent were "other."
'George' is not dying
by Ken Hyland
Staff Writer

Not too long ago a picture such as the "The Killing of Sister George" would have little or no chance of being made, let alone the chance of it being shown at a local theater. This weekend it will be showing at the Fremont Theater in downtown San Luis Obispo.

This film deals with a very timely subject, that of homosexuality, and in this case, lesbianism. Besides this aspect of the main character, the film also deals with her inability to cope with the life that she has built around herself, the life that others have built around her, and her recourse into alcoholism.

The homosexuality in "Sister George" does not take a major role in the theme of the movie, but it does seem to appear as one part in her downfall as an actress. For it is because of some jealousy on the part of another lesbian in the management section of the studio in which "George" works that is partially responsible for her being "killed," or rather, written out of the television series that she almost made her own character.

As in daily life, "Sister George" has all the typical ups and downs that everyday people go through, for "George's" success does not go to her head. Most actresses that achieve the success that "George" does in the film move into a large and very well-furnished mansion, but not "George," for this is not in her character. She stays in the same humble flat that she and her lesbian protege lived in even before the television show brought her such wide-spread acclaim that she enjoys.

Some of these ups and downs occur at the same time, as in the instance when she is asked to perform her final scene of her TV show, for it is her last fling in the spotlight and she cannot bear the feeling that she is a has-been.

The story of an actress that has been stabbed in the back and left to bleed to death on the roadside, as the bandwagon that she started rolling goes its own way. This is a movie that all should see while it is here in town for its brief stay.

The organisation sang songs, provided music with an improvised band and presented a humorous skit concerning how pioneers gauged distances in earlier times. Providing entertainment for the gathered Boy Scouts, has been an annual function for members of the fraternity.

Ollvero stated that the fraternity is tentatively planning a blood drive in conjunction with a similar group in Santa Barbara later this year. They also have continued to work with projects concerning Poly Grove, here on campus.

The film deals with its contents and the campus fraternity's objective was to provide relief from the tension of the day and to raise the spirits of the boys, at the campfire held Saturday evening from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

According to Fred Olvero, president of Alpha Phi Omega, the organisation sang songs, provided music with an improvised band and presented a humorous skit concerning how pioneers gauged distances in earlier times. Educators get break from "To Sir" flick

Rudyard Kipling's classic novel "To Sir, With Love" is being shown at the Sunset Drive-In tonight and tomorrow. The two top films display Kipling at his best. "To Sir, With Love" is an unforgettable film. It should be exceptionally entertaining for college students, because it concerns relations between students and teachers. Prospective teachers should be especially interested in "To Sir, With Love." If they still desire to be our nation's educators after seeing what they might be stuck with as far as pupils are concerned, more power to them.

But regardless of whether or not you plan to be an educator, "To Sir, With Love" is an excellent film to see, for all ages. The fine performances of all the actors and actresses, England's Lots is terrific, together with the excellent plot, contribute to making this film a top effort.

"Black Rage" explains psychology viewpoint

by Mary Hurff

Staff Writer

"It is the first book to examine Negro rage from a psychological viewpoint. This was the critique made by Gloria Smith of the Counseling Center when she reviewed Black Rage at the Books at High Noon luncheon Tuesday.

The authors of the book are William H. Grier and Price M. Cobb, both assistant professors of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, and psychologists in private practice.

Mrs. Smith referred to the book in her which states that the authors "are black psychologists who, from their own lives as black men in America, bring unique understanding of the angering in the black man's breast and the big history of white racism that put it there.

According to Mrs. Smith, Negro rage, the book's message, is a grim one. The purpose of the author's presentation is to avoid a sense of despair in the reader's mind. Despite the fact that the book ends on a note of pessimism, Mrs. Smith feels it should be read by as many people as possible to increase their understanding of the black man.

In the foreword United States Senator Fred R. Harris says, "I can only hope his message is heeded. The message is simple... that despite the passage of five civil rights bills since 1957, despite the evasion of legal supports for segregated institutions, both public and private, it is still no easy thing to be a black person in America."

HOPING TO WIN...are the four team members of the 440-yard relay team that will represent Cal Poly at the West Coast Relays today in Fresno. Ruben Smith, Jim Edmundson, Lee DeWinter, and Manuel Murell ran a fast 41.3 in their last appearance.

Poly obstrains Fresno's hopes for CCAA crown

Cal Poly closes out its home baseball season this weekend against a Fresno State nine that is campaigning for a CCAA championship. The Mustangs are not in the role of the "spoiler," as they seek to derail the Bulldogs against the West Coast. Fresno State leads the CCAA with a 22-11 overall record, while Fresno State leads the league with a 17-12 mark. Last year Cal Poly defeated the Bulldogs, 7-2, in the first of three games. However, the Fresno State nine countered to win the two final contests by 12-11 and 5-4 margins.

Presently the Bulldogs own a 9-5 mark and stand one game behind league leader Valley State. Fresno took two of three games from Cal Poly last weekend to remain in contention for the conference crown. The Mustangs are 6-0 and tied for third in the league action.

The Bulldogs are one game away from having Coach Pete Beiden, reach a milestone in the baseball coaching world. That is winning 600 games. Beiden, completing his final season at the helm of the Fresno baseball machine after 22 years, has won 599 games and lost 264. His charges will be determined as they step onto the Mustang field.

Purcell grateful for support

"Our No.1 goal is to perform well," stated Coach Richard Purcell as he explained the position of the cinder squad and coaching staff concerning school support. "In recent articles in Mustang Daily, some of the track team expressed disappointments for the support they receive from the student body. Lack of adequate funds for equipment, road trips, meals, and uniforms, were among the hardships the spikes mentioned. Coach Purcell hopes that the student body would not misunderstand the statements and think the track team was not thankful for the support they do receive.

As Purcell put it, "We want to do the best job we possibly can. We would like to have as few conflicts as possible with the student government. We would like to feel it is behind us in our efforts to produce a winning team. We certainly don't want to cause any antagonisms."

Purcell went on to say that many of the problems that disappointed the team members could not be helped. "We have the largest track team on the West Coast which means our expenses are greater. We have to be large because we can't afford the money in the form of scholarships to recruit the big name athletes. We have to recruit many athletes in the hopes that some of them will develop into the kind of men we need."

"We could trim the size of the team, but we don't feel this is what the student body wants. With a team the size of ours, we can compete against and win against the schools with more money to spend on scholarships for outstanding athletes. Also our large size gives more individuals a chance to participate in the sport, and the coaches feel this is important to the program."

"We realize that our team is not the only team here that has the same type problems. We certainly don't want to give the impression that we don't appreciate the support we received from the student body and the administration."

Women’s track meet slated for Cal Poly

How many of you guys are getting tired of watching the same girls walk, by the dining hall or on their way to classes? Why not get a change of scenery and attend the annual women’s track meet to be held May 17th on the Mustang oval? The meet is the fifth invitational contest sponsored by CAAPERS, and is under the direction of the Women’s physical education department.

The meet will begin at 1:30, with three divisions included in the day’s competition. College, high schools, and junior high schools from throughout central and southern California will combine to compete. Presently there are 18 entries in the afternoon contest.

Events include competition in long jumps, discus, high jump, shot put, long jump, softball throw, 440-yd sprint, 880-yd sprint, 800-yd dash, 100-yd dash, 220-yd hurdles, and 88-meter hurdles. Ribbon awards will be issued to the outstanding girls in each event.

Cal Poly Pomona swept last year’s collegiate competition with 43 points. To out-distance the Mustangs, squad that finished second with 89. Pomona wrapped-up third place by gathering 20 points in the day’s activities.

High school trophies went to Lompoc high school, San Luis Obispo high school, and Arroyo Grande. Lompoc won the 87-team points, while MLO followed with 81, and Arroyo Grande finished with five.
