Music fest set tonight

The Spring Concert tonight and tomorrow night in the Little Theater will feature a first for the college—two bands playing on the same program.

On the program which starts at 8 p.m both nights will be the 62-member Symphonic Band and the new 42-piece Concert Band. Admission prices is $1.25 for the general public and 75 cents for students.

Joining in with the larger groups will be a 6-member Dixieland Band and a Percussion Ensemble. The concert will be under the direction of William V. Johnson.

Final newspaper

This is the final edition of Mustang Daily for this school year.

An abbreviated edition of the campus newspaper, Mustang Mustang, will be issued during summer months.

Loren Nicholson, assistant editor for the summer paper, said volunteers to work on the staff should contact him or John Pits Randolph, editor, in Graphic Arts 299.

Radicals are destroyers

Troopers take awards

by Tim Long

Staff Writer

To get into the stadium was a simple procedure. All you had to do was sign your name, put down your affiliation and address and make a statement of your intentions to the man at the gate.

The few spectators, essentially newsmen and parents of the ROTC cadets who were to receive awards, waited for the appearance of the guest of honor. Finally everyone was in place and President Kennedy made his entrance.

Kennedy strode down the line of guests, shaking hands. After he sat down the cadets and the lone Kadette who were to receive awards were brought before the speakers stand. The awards could be grouped into several categories: leadership, scholarship, marksmanship, drill, and sports de corps.

After the awards had been presented, Kennedy stepped up to the microphone and began his speech: "Never in the 17 years that ROTC has been on this campus has there been a question in my mind about its importance on this campus. Today I believe more strongly than ever in the importance of ROTC."

"We are interested in preserving ROTC on this campus," Kennedy stated. "Those who would eliminate ROTC fail to realize that this would in no way reduce the need for officers in our military."

"Elimination of ROTC would mean that future officers would associate only with other future officers while in college. ROTC helps to integrate the military and civilian points of view."

Kennedy called radical students who have turned away from violent protest destroyers of democracy. "Those destroyers of democracy," Kennedy raised his voice in emphasis at this point, "who speak against war and hate are the first ones to use violence to destroy the things that they themselves hate.

If the radicals succeed in their goals, Kennedy warned, "we would be left defenseless when our real enemies landed on our shores."

"The first people to be eliminated by a totalitarian type of government," Kennedy said, "are these revolutionary idealists."

GOP 'brass' speaks

by Ken Hyland

Staff Writer

Republican nobility was seated at the head table last night when the California College Republicans held their Fourth Annual Awards Dinner at the Hotel Inn.

The high-ranking Republican officials were Lieutenant Governor Edward Rienecke, Senator Donald Grayson, State Assemblyman Thomas Mack and Stuart Talcott, State Assemblyman. Chairman Roy Oersten, ASI President and member of the House Republican Caucus, was guest of honor.

After dinner the Lieutenant Governor gave a speech on states rights, victory of the Republican Party, college disorders and the duties of the Lieutenant Governor.

Rienecke voiced a feeling that the federal government was getting too big and too cumbersome to handle so many problems that it had no control over, but he expressed his belief that the state government was in a much better position.

"Executive power is concentrated in a smaller number of people," Rienecke said, "and it is much better suited to do the job.

Another military group, the ROTC Drill Team was a proposed target of a total $760 elimination of their budget. This amendment was defeated unanimously.

Discussion occurred between RAC and Mike Jones, Mustang Daily business manager; George R. M. O's, editor-in-chief; Curt Strong, chairman of Publishers' Board; Paul Banke, author of the guideline amendment and Senator Edward Rienecke. It centered on financial difficulties and procedures to eliminate in the future write-offs of uncollected debts of Mustang Daily and similar problems.
Dangerous precedent

A dangerous precedent was set on this campus Tuesday night. SAC (Student Affairs Council) approved an amendment to Budget Bill 68-8 which gives SEC (Student Executive Cabinet) the power to freeze funds, or all Mustang Daily funds if certain guidelines aren’t adhered to. Paul Banke, right hand man to newly elected ASI President Paul Kresge, authored the amendment in question.

Under questioning, Banke said that SEC only had the power theoretically. An extreme situation would occur in order for SEC to take such measures, he added. However, Mustang Daily questions the right of any group of students to hold the power to arbitrarily suspend the publication of the newspaper.

It was argued Tuesday night that the $2,000 subsidy granted Mustang Daily for next year gives SAC the right to decide who has control over newspaper funds. However, that power has been extended to include all monies that Mustang Daily receives.

SEC says it wants no editorial control over Mustang Daily, but by giving SEC the power to freeze funds they receive editorial control per se.

The danger of Tuesday night’s decision is not to Mustang Daily because it is too late for next year. The danger lies in the fact that other groups may find the same power put over them and they will not be able to fight it, just as we were not able to.

Now that you've read the lead editorial, here's something to think about.

In last Wednesday's, Mustang Daily called for a truce between the paper and the ASI presidency. Although we didn’t support Paul Kresge in his successful ASI presidency bid, we felt it was our duty to congratulate him. We noted, "Maybe he can improve the historically conservative ASI presidency bid, we felt it was our duty to congratulate him."

We met him halfway with the amendment attached to the $2,000 subsidy granted by Students Affairs Council. However, he is alienating the newspaper by this "democratic principle of fiscal responsibility.”

Next year should be quite interesting.

Letters to editor

Nasty pictures on library wall?

Editor:

Please print this letter in the Mustang Daily and refer it to any person who can do something about the following situation: perhaps the person who approves Cal Poly’s art displays. I do a lot of studying in the reference part of the school library. Last week, as I came out of that room on my way home, I was horrified at what I saw. Among the pictures in the art display, this time, are those that are unavoidable and which should cause the students of Cal Poly to be very ashamed of the choices of art which is approved for everyone's viewing.

I attended Fresno State last year, and they had a similar problem. A few pictures were put in the library on display of a pornographic nature: the subjects objected, brought it to the attention of Dr. Ness (President of the college), and the pictures were removed immediately. Can the students of Cal Poly do the same? If you think so, it will only take a moment to object.

Sincerely,
Linda L. Roberts

Kudo to KCPR

Editor:

We, the members of the Baseball Team, wish to let the entire college community know how much we appreciate the efforts of KCPR (campus radio). Due to the chronic lack of spectators at the Mustang diamond, it was difficult to develop enthusiasm. The KCPR interest in Cal Poly baseball has shown us that some people are interested in baseball. They worked hard and did an excellent job of adding completeness to our baseball games.

We have had many comments from visiting teams and interested persons on the fine publicity job and student interest KCPR has developed.

Once again, KCPR staff, thanks for showing an interest in us.

Editor praised

Mustang Daily would like to give special recognition to Ron Buzard as editor of the special Poverty Edition on Wednesday. The credits on page 3 neglected to give him the credit due him for his fine work on the special edition.

Rienecke raps issues

(continued from page 1) said that for too long while he was in Washington he had always had to vote no on most of the "Great Society" programs. Now that the Republicans are in control he can vote "yes" on some good programs and can even start some himself.

He also talked about the disorders on college campuses. Because he was talking to a group that was basically made up of college students, Rienecke based his talk on what the average student could do to discourage riots on college campuses.

When a student goes to look around at another college campus instead of just acting like a tourist, he should strike up a conversation with some of the students at these riot-torn campuses and show them that they can get a good education without destroying the college itself.

He also feels that sometimes the "silent majority" is not always a majority. Too many people are seeing the newspaper reports on these riots and are thinking this is being done by the majority students. Sometimes this will even convince the students themselves that they are in the minority so they go out and join the other side.

Rienecke also joked that whenever the Governor was out of the state everything seemed to go wrong. He mentioned that the Governor must have a crystal ball, and he wished he knew where it was.

He then brought to mind an incident that happened recently when he was at a testimonial dinner given for himself. The people presented the Lieutenant Governor with a California State flag. This was not like the usual state flag, instead of the bear walking across the red line, he was sitting on it and holding his paws over his ears.

The Lieutenant Governor also told the duties and problems. He said there are some 14 different committees that he serves on. But so far during his two months in office, he hasn't found them all. He mentioned that it is his duty to act as acting Governor when Governor Reagan is out of the state.

After the dinner the awards were given to six members of the local CCR club that have done work above and beyond what is expected of the average member.

Students who wish to have their Spring Quarter grades sent to their homes must leave a stamped, self-addressed envelope at the Records Office, Ad- ministration Building, before Feb. 22, according to officials.
Editors' workshop slated

Newspaper editors, from throughout California will gather on campus tomorrow for an all-day workshop on newspaper design and makeup. Howard B. Taylor, nationally-famous makeup authority and editorial director of the Orange County Newspapers, will head the list of participants in the event sponsored by the Journalism Department.

Joining Taylor in a critique of newspaper formats will be James Vestal, photography editor for the Sacramento Union.

Board and the ASI Business Manager in addition to the RFC. This would not take the power of publication control away from the SPB which was originally established to take the control of publications out of the main body of student government. However, the suggestion was not considered.

On the following day, the Publications Policy and Procedures Guidelines Development Committee met and noted the clause is in direct conflict with the policy and guidelines set up for publications on campus.

In the governing paper, the duties and responsibilities of Publishers' Board clearly stated that the board has the power "to approve and administer the budget of the publications receiving ASI financial support including authority to make internal budgetary adjustments."

Originally, the Policy and Guidelines for the Student Publications Program was approved by Dr. Robert E. Kennedy, SAC and the Faculty-Staff Council.

Hicks ends Mustang coaching career

Last weekend marked the end of the coaching career of one of Cal Poly's finest mentors. Head baseball coach Bill Hicks saw final action at the helm of the Mustang team last Saturday when they played their last game at the helm of Cal Poly's finest mentors.

Next year Coach Hicks will increase his class load within the PE department and assist with the new diamond boss, Angel Garfio, with the pitchers and catchers.

"This season we suffered the worst set of injuries that I have seen in 30 years of coaching," related Hicks in reflecting upon the season. "The injured kids hurt our season, but they showed courage beyond the call of duty by playing while they were injured."

Coach Hicks emphasized the point that he was not trying to be critical when asked his opinion of the Mustang Athletic Department. "The students must realize that in order to have a first class program they must be willing to pay money. Cal Poly and students in general have never realized the department's extent of money needs." Hicks cited a few examples to stress the importance of this point. Whereas hotels on away trips used to cost $3.50 per night, these same accommodations now cost $8.50. Meals have increased accordingly, jumping from $2.50 to $3.50 each. The living cost of living has not been considered in the athletic department's budget.

Coach Hicks praised the support his team received from students attending this season's games. "The support we had was good—even better than previous seasons." According to the baseball mentor, this support was generated mainly by KCPP's live broadcasts of the home games. Hicks was also grateful for the "support of other athletics" who turned out to boost his team's spirit.

CCAA members will split into two leagues next year. San Fernando Valley State, Poly Poblano, and UC Rivero Mondono, Cal Poly SLO, and Fuller and I hope it won't diminish next year. The new league, however, will be of no lower caliber."

Coach Hicks presented mixed views in relation to the new baseball park scheduled for Poly. "A new park would be a definite asset to the PE department, however, the school could save a lot of money by renovating our present park. By taking the track out and giving the diamond about 40 more feet, the old park would be very nice." The new ball park is planned to be constructed in the vacant lot owned by the school in the vacant field across from the Yosemite dorms. Such a location would remedy the present backwards-oriented situation of the present Mustang diamond.

"If the new park is built," added Hicks, "then lights should definitely be considered. Such a park—would allow more townspeople to participate by coming to the games after work. A lighted diamond would also prevent student athletes from having to miss classes, and we could play more games during the week. The gate receipts of this new park could possibly help baseball pay for itself."

Harper prepares team for scrimmage

Coach Joe Harper and his football coaching crew will present their spring football team to the student body Saturday evening in the annual intramural games at Mustang Stadium. Kickoff time is set for 8 p.m. Tickets are 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

The pre-season recruits will be divided into a green team and a white team. Harper has placed his number one offensive and defensive teams on the green team, while the second two teams will wear the white.

“We expect a high scoring, wide open game,” remarked Harper in anticipation of the game’s outcome. “We intend to put the ball in the air quite a bit.”

One of Harper’s pre-season objectives was to improve on last season’s passing game. Saturday night will offer the first glimpse of Harper’s aerial tactics.

Last Saturday Cal Poly staged its first spring football coaching cline in conjunction with the weekly Mustang scrimmage. Harper termed the cline a success and plans to make it a yearly event. “Our passing looked much better than it did the week before. I was pleased with the improvement,” Harper related.

Injuries have plagued the Mustang spring football effort and several regular starters will be absent from Saturday’s clash. Linebacker Les Treadwell and defensive stalwart Mike Church are recovering from knee surgery. Dennis Petracek, a 225-pound tackle is recovering from a recent neck operation. He is expected to be ready for fall action.

Letterman Ross Bauer is out with a broken hand and cheekbone, while teammates Jack Green and Elvis Hardy are both suffering from sprained knees. Idaho State transfer Ed Davis, and former freshman standout Paul Ramsay are both recovering from knee surgery and will not participate tomorrow night.

Prior to the game the Mustang Booster Club is sponsoring a barbeque at the Veterans Memorial building beginning with a social hour at 6 p.m. Guest speaker for the event will be John Madden, head coach for the Oakland Raiders and a former Poly all-CCAA tackle. Currently Madden is the youngest head coach in pro football.

Tickets for the barbeque are priced at $5 and will include admission to the game.

Baltimore Colts plan drills at Poly

Chances are if you happen to be strolling through the Cal Poly campus come August you just might bump into some of the brightest sports luminaries of the day.

How about Johnny Unitas, Bubba Smith, Earl Morrall, John MacKey, Dennis Gasheals, Tom Matte or Bobby Boyd? Of course, they're members of the Baltimore Colts, champions of the National Football League. And they'll be on campus this summer to conduct part of their pre-season training program.

Cal Poly Athletic Director Joe Harper met with representatives of the Baltimore organization on Wednesday to iron out last minute details.

Baltimore, one of the perennial powers in the NFL, will be on campus from August 4 through August 14. They will come here after playing an exhibition game at San Diego. While they are quartered on campus they will travel to Oakland to face the Raiders and after breaking camp here will move on to Houston for an exhibition with the Oilers.

Approximately 75 to 80 will be in the Colt entourage. They will be quartered in Tenaya Hall while on campus. Meals will be eaten at a training table in the College Dining Hall.

Workouts will be held in Mustang Stadium and will be open to the public free of charge.

Baltimore will pay the college a cost basis for services and will make a remuneration in the form of a scholarship for Mustang athletes.

A year ago the college attempted to entice the San Francisco 49ers to hold pre-season workouts on campus, but arrangements broke down in the final planning stages.

Intramural basketball

The Intramural Basketball quarter-finals got under way last Monday night as 13 teams participated in the playoff competition for the championship. The first and second place teams in each of the six leagues qualified for the playoffs.

In the games that began at 7 p.m. Fremont (8-0), behind the 33 point performance of Brummers topped Buck Buck (3-2), 86-72. Graf scored 26 points in the losing cause for the Buck Bucks.

Mat Pica Pi defeated the Crops Club, 60-58, in a game protested by the loser. Underwood led all scorers with 22 points for the Crops Club. In other 7 p.m. action, Delta Phi (5-0) whipped the Boleros (4-1), 78-68, with Crandall scoring 24 points for the victors.

Three more games followed the completion of the preceding contests which were marred by a couple of injuries. One player sustained a groin injury in the Bailers 69-46 rout over the Wee Five. Northcraft and Otto paced the Bailers (5-0) with 19 and 17 points respectively, over the Five (4-1). Another ballplayer received a broken ankle during the fourth quarter of a game contested by Muir II.

Third Place (5-0) was way ahead of Muir II (3-2), 60-38, when the accident occurred. Led by Lowe's 24 points, the Studs, (4-1) outlasted Design, 73-67, in the last game of the evening.
