Friday concert

Players perfect the rarely performed

The featured soloist, who has performed frequently here as well as throughout Central and Southern California, received a M.M. from the University of Southern California.

The selected ensemble consists of two first Violins, two second Violins, two Violoncellos, one Double Bass, and four French horns.

The program begins with a piece by Henry Cowell, Hybrid and Purgation Time No. 8. Cowell, said Swanson, was "one of America's most unusual and innovative composers. He began computing at an early age, and incorporated unusual ideas such as playing inside the piano by plucking or strumming the strings."

The well-known Mozart piece appears second on the program, followed by Ratcliffe's harpsichord solo, Concierto D mayor for Four Horns and String, by Joseph Haydn, concludes the evening.

The concert Friday night is "dedicated to the performance of unusual or rarely performed music," according to Brubaker. "With the exception of the Musical Jeke by Mozart, a work which is performed regularly, the works presented is more or less a novelty since it is almost never performed."

Ronald V. Ratcliffe will exhibit his skill on the harpsichord during a solo presentation of Mozart's Harpsichord Concerto in D major, K. 173. Kenneth Schwartz is a member of the school Music Department faculty.

Tuesday's noon speaker in the Architecture Patio was Clifton K. Swanson, in a lecture with a demonstration of a model Laser Beam. The contraption, made light between two miniature milk bottles, was pointed through a lens at a receiver, which looks like a microphone. An ordinary record player, connected to the equipment, was turned on. The impulses traveled through the beam of light to the receiver where, wonders of science, it came out clear, 1945 model.

The mayor was (and is) on campus

The mayor was (and is) on campus by Verna Titchka Staff Writer

In the terms of political punning, Mayor Kenneth Schwartz turned something of a corner by reaching his first 100 days in office.

It's unusual when one can sit in a pew, place one's hand on the Bible and say, "I am the mayor of San Luis Obispo." As Mayor, Kenneth Schwartz told of the many demands on his time:

"No, not exactly. I was chairman of the Planning Commission for eight years, so I have worked closely with functionaries of local government. This is my first elected office, however."

Schwartz said there are seven advisory boards within the city government which would scarcely like to have new talent like him.

"On Monday (July 14) the city council approved a $412,000 budget of which $85,000 has been earmarked for the Mission Plaza program," he said. "Preliminary drawings are now being made over by the Municipal Advisory Committee. This design will be worked upon until it meets with approval. The plans will be submitted and visible construction will get underway."

The mayor also spoke of the Youth Corp here. It consists of about 15 high school students who are employed by the city to help, primarily, in clean-up programs such as that in Brereton and San Luis Obispo Creeks.

When asked about student-marshall relations and how they might be improved, the mayor answered:

"There is a natural area of tension here because so many students come from large cities and are used to a lower price scale. It means they will have to do more shopping around for these items they want and their patronism accordingly."

The mayor Schwartz speaks with the experience of one who has lived here since 1952 when he said, "San Luis Obispo offers a friendly atmosphere, a character of a smaller city that will be a great influence on the student living here. There are many areas in which a student can participate with the community in constructive action. He only has to show a willingness."
A universal nationalism

"Why don't we just forget the last nineteen hundred and sixty-nine years," a handsome European youth suggested, "and begin over now with the year one."

His epochal thoughts represented one brand of nationalism—a universal kind of nationalism—American astronauts had aroused with their dusty lunar steps.

There were other expressions of pride—in the form of demagoguery and ill-timed provincialism—but inspired reporters for the most part ignored political sadism.

With two men "dancing on the moon," CBS newsmen Eric Sevareid put it, "everyone felt young."

Men truly did dance on the moon; and jog, bounce, leap, work and speak. This discovery meant perhaps a thousand times more than previous revelations because the cool antics of Armstrong and Aldrin were witnessed by nearly all cultures of human society.

The intrepid beauty of those men on the moon enchanted earth spokesmen, but few were mesmerized to the point of silence. "This event will make us see," said author Ray Bradbury, "that we really are three billion lonely people."

Rev. Ralph Abernathy, Martin Luther King's SCLC successor, was visibly moved as Neil Armstrong stepped down from Eagle's pad.

"I know now," he spoke religiously, as if leading a familiar Negro Spiritual, "I know there's going to be increased pressure on the power structure...to make a better day. There's a better day comin'...because we landed men on the moon."

42 years before Apollo 11—with its splendid crew, Bald Eagle symbol (olive branches in both claws), and celestial television—Charles Lindberg flew. F. Scott FitGerald was a public spokesman then. He wrote:

"People put down their drinks in country clubs and speakeasies and relived forgotten dreams."

Help un-junk the creek

The SLO County Telephone has an exclusive editorial section each Saturday. The section consists of a series of short comments, each signed by "SAM LUIS." Last Saturday, July 19, "SAM LUIS" wrote: "SAM LUIS."

"The student body, or whatever they have at the Free University, is inviting all fellow citizens to come out and help clean up San Luis Creek on Aug. 2. The response will be interesting. Some think the Free U is full of Bolsheviks and hippies but we lean toward the theory that it is sort of an underground Rotary Club."

A check with the Free U indicates that there is indeed going to be a clean-up. Spokesman said the project will commence from the Santa Rosa bridge (near Marsh) at 10:00 a.m. Aug. 2.

The school water bill for the summer months—mid-May to July—will reach $10,000, a marked increase over the $4,800 water bill for the winter months—mid-November to mid-January.

Arthur Young, chief engineer at the campus power plant, explained the spurious increases in the campus water bills are due to the season. To exemplify, March to May 1969, when there was heavy rain, the water bill was $3,965.80. But for the period from May to the present, the billing would run close to $10,000.

The amount of water that is needed/it is always dependent upon the type of land being nurtured. The number of inches that a lawn needs to survive a year is calculated and the lawn is watered accordingly. The ability to hold moisture determines how much it will need to be watered. Rockland must be watered repeatedly; other types may only need watering two or three times a week.

Water usage on campus is registered on two meters. One, an eight-inch main, serves the dormitories, grounds, and most facilities. The other, registers water usage for part of the dairy and poultry unit.

In addition to the big water bill, the campus also has a number of lesser bills. Bills for the second meter run about $400 for the summer months and $120 for water monthly.

The small water main uses three times as much water in the summer months, the eight-inch main only uses twice as much water in the summer.

Regular Home Management-Living experience.

Miss DeeAnn Spradling is the advisor for all of the groups taking the class this summer. She keeps herself busy by visiting the groups daily.

The purpose of the Home Management Living experience is to be able to relate the laboratory and classroom knowledge into a real life situation.

This summer, due to the large number of sophomores in Home Economics majors, the department has set up living arrangements in two apartments along with the regular Home Management House on campus. In one apartment six girls are fulfilling their requirements for the course and in another there are four.

 Blowfish—published in a pool, brightly colored flowers abound, and sounds of the whistle were heard by Mayor Kenneth Shirkwalts, city council members. Elmo Vake, Myron Graham, and their wives, as they were the guest of the girls in the Home Management Department recently.

A Polynesian Festival was the theme for the evening and each of the girls was allotted in Polynesian dress. The evening was planned as a hula with twelve tempting dishes of the Islands for dinner. The evening was full of surprises as the Mayor and the city council found themselves sitting on the floor in true Polynesian fashion.

PASOLINI'S EROTICISM IS SOMEBODY ELSE'S OBSCENITY!

"TEOREMA" is the story of a middle-class family visited by a beautiful young man who proceeds to make love to the mother, father, son, daughter, maid—and then departs.

The Office Catholique International du Cinema awarded its prize to "TEOREMA". Then withdrew it. Pasolini was brought to trial on obscenity charges, and was cleared. The decision was appealed. Another trial is scheduled.

In New York, the controversy continues. Newsweek asks whether Pasolini is dealing with "our pursuit of sexuality is an end in itself" and the Daily News wonders if the film isn't saying that "human sexuality is the last avenue of communications.

Obscene? Erotic? It all depends, doesn't it?
NFL's Colts, top coaches to come

The final plan for the twenty-second annual California Workshop for Physical Education and Athletic Coaching to be held August 4-18 at this campus are nearing completion. The primary goal of the workshop will be to improve the caliber of athletic coaching and the teaching of PE in the secondary schools in this state. The program will consist of 16 courses and seven seminars. Almost every facet of Physical Education will be discussed during these two weeks.

As in previous years, many nationally known sports figures will be on hand to teach the skills of the high school coaches.

Drs. Andros, popular coach of the Oregon State Beavers, will teach the football session. Andros team has finished in a tie for second place in the PAC8 the last two years. He is greatly respected for his coaching ability, and the fine knowledge he has of the game.

The workshop was very fortunate in getting Jack Kramer to appear. Kramer, as everyone knows, is one of the greatest personalities in the history of tennis. During his hey-day as a player, he was ranked number one in the nation for several years. Currently he is an international tennis promoter.

The baseball course will be handled by Al Capares and Bill Wade, both presently working for the L.A. Dodgers. Campa, who is General Manager of the "Bums," got his start in the organisation as a scout. Among his biggest catches: Sandy Koufax, Roberto Clemente, and Tommy Davis. All his book, How to Play Baseball, is generally considered as "the" book on baseball fundamentals. Wade has a long history of being in professional baseball, both as a player and a scout. Along with his scouting duties today, you can also find him throwing batting practice during the Dodger hour.

Chuck Coker will handle the Weight Training division. Coker has completed a record that includes 14 championship track teams, four world record holders, seven NCAA records and nine Olympic medals. He now coaches the powerful Southern California Runners.

The Mustang's own Vaughan Hitchcock, probably the foremost authority on the West Coast when it comes to wrestling, will handle his specialty.

An added bonus will also be given to the participants of the workshop, and they will be able to observe the workouts of the Baltimore Colts, who will be training at Cal Poly during the same period of time.

Jocks against cycles

Editor:
July 12, 1960, Pizza Pantry, Poly frat boys, jocks, all-American types, etc., etc., reach new (ale) plateau in their version through publicity. Sterile little cheerleader types thrive at their immature antics.

The epitome of reactionary prevention was evidenced Saturday night as a gang of Poly "boys" tried their damnest to instigate a fight with members of the Vikings Motorcycle Club. One short scuffle ensued. No credit can be given the all-Americans for preventing an all-out mauling.

All President Kresse can feel is the breeze. "The atmosphere is not right." However, I am not certain he knows from what direction the ill wind blows.

I am new around here and so naturally I ask—Did I witness a typical reception for an unconventional group or individual? If so, there are some mighty small heads running loose on campus.

Grow up muscle heads, pretty boys, and without sticks. Cal Poly, San Luis, and most of all, society, can do without your fruitless aggressiveness.
