Political-comedian plans Friday lecture

Area Student  The former candidate for President who has written two books, appeared in a movie, taught folk music and been a stand-up comedian is coming here. The man who "looks" magazine says "since his wife has taken young whites," Dick Gregory, will speak to the Men's Gym October 15. Gregory's views have won him both praise and criticism. "Loud" says the points that he wishes to make are often hard and unpleasant, but adds that listeners never far away.

"Gregory's approach to the problems of racial injustice is to expose injustice through the use of humor." Walter H. Hunt, state Americanism chairman for the Vets- of-Foreign-Wars Department, said that Gregory is a "radical agitator," and that his approach to current affairs is "bizarre and lackadisical."

Moratorium plans set

Administration offers cooperation

The Vietnam Moratorium demonstrations planned for Wed. Oct. 15, received a degree of support from President Robert Kennedy Friday.

The college's president refused permission for a meeting on the Library lawn, but offered a place in the Amphitheater for the entire demonstration.

Moratorium committee representatives Jerry Daniels, Chris Von Drachenfels and Constance Brown met with Kennedy to request a shutdown of classes between 1 and 2 p.m. tomorrow, the day colleges and communities across the country are setting aside to talk about the war.

Kennedy was asked for the two-hour weekday students time for "an open discussion of the war in Vietnam." He denied the possibility of closing classes, but said the Amphitheater would better serve speakers who hope to "educate" as many students as possible to discuss the war, adding that sound equipment would also be made available.

"I do indeed support the concept that the war should be brought to a speedy conclusion," said Kennedy. "I have expressed it on many occasions."

The moratorium committee announced plans for off-campus activities, beginning with a rally at Mitchell Park, at Santa Rosa and Mission Roads. The 4:40 p.m. Mitchell Park meeting will include campus and community speakers, folk music and discussion on issues related to the war.

The group will leave Mitchell Park at approximately 6 p.m. and join in a candlelight march to Mission Plaza. At the plaza, a memorial service will be held by the clergy, from several denominations. The service will be in honor of all victims of the war, Vietnamese, Americans and other allied peoples.

Following the memorial service, the day's events will conclude with a march to the San Luis Obispo County draft board.

Councilmen disagree as friends

A long friendship, they agree, hasn't been spoiled by the emotionalism of the Vietnam debate, the councilmen said Friday.

"We shouldn't prevent any-" councilman Blake, with "an attitude of national pride" and a reduction of "jealousy" among the councilmen.

"People have pretty much made up their minds on the war," said Miller. "There are people who are now undecided will be affected by the moratorium, but not people of my age. Older people, in sympathy with the military, will be more entrenched against youth."

"The country will change," said Blake, with "an attitude of national pride" and a reduction of "jealousy" among the councilmen.

The rhetoric of friends and colleagues has been overblown, said the Blake. The rhetoric of friends and colleagues has been overblown, said the Blake. The rhetoric of friends and colleagues has been overblown, said the Blake.
Letters to the editor

Moratorium stirs some anger

Editor: Not that Cal Poly students or instructors have any intention of dismantling classes in favor of the Vietnam Moratorium, Oct. 15, but Chancellor Dunke's edict reported in a recent issue of this illustrious newspaper is another reflection of the suppressive administrative policies that are becoming more prevalent in California's higher education. His edict, while not directed at the Viet Nam Moratorium, is a dangerous abridgement of the individual instructor's autonomy. However, from the timing it appears to be another panic move by the establishment to ward off productive, relevant change in our society.

While I won't press your credibility enough to say we are heading toward a police state, where the government does the administration get off with its authority to dictate curricula or faculty, etc., which should be given credit and which shouldn't? I am not going to tell instructors they can't dis­miss a class to free students to go to a bull sale? So just because one class session is dropped, who's forcing political or social causes. I wonder what the students having a chance at expression? From the Wall Street Journal it is reported that the President of Georgetown University in Washington D.C. has scheduled a day-long series of Masses next Wednesday in mem­orandum of the war issue at the University of New Mexico next Wednesday.

References to the draft system:

Many male students viewed with great joy President Nixon's decision to relieve Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey of his army just large enough to protect the homeland than to make the armed forces effective enough to protect the country. We feel that, with the draftable as educated and opinionated as they are in this country, an all-volunteer service is the only way to keep the armed forces effective and keep them from becoming filled with dissonant elements.

Many people will argue that an all-volunteer armed force will not be large enough or effective enough to protect the country. We feel that, with the draftable as educated and opinionated as they are in this country, an all-volunteer service is the only way to keep the armed forces effective and keep them from becoming filled with dissonant elements.

The nation is calling for a change in the draft laws and we at Mustang Daily feel that the removal of Hershey is the best progressive move yet toward such a change.

Thus, we are in favor of the eventual change to an all-volunteer armed force. While the removal of Hershey doesn't bring this into effect, it seems to be a large step in the right direction.

When Hershey takes his new assignment in February he leaves office and we hope that it will be a progressive one, and keep them from becoming filled with dissonant elements.

The nation is calling for a change in the draft laws and we at Mustang Daily feel that the removal of Hershey is the best progressive move yet toward such a change.

We hope that it will be a progressive one, one that will put democracy in our armed forces system.

Architects lecture slated

Carl B. Troedsson, the second in a series of well-known architects in residence here this quarter, will speak in the Air Conditioning Auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14.

Troedsson, obtained his bachelor of architecture degree at Columbia University in 1909 and traveled to Sweden to study at the Royal Institute of Technology in Copenhagen in 1911.

Over the years, he has held such distinguished positions as special professor of Architecture, University of Southern California, visiting professor at the University of Michigan, and research professor at the Institute of Technology, Chalmers, Sweden.

Other speakers who will be in residence here during the next month are Harman Charles Light, Dr. William H. Grant, Earl C. Crump, and Louis M. Nieder.

Farmers organize

The Cal Poly Chapter of California Young Farmers program will serve school and community, as well as provide an enjoyable time for members, according to Ross Haugen, president.

Men interested in joining CYF are urged to attend the next meeting on Tuesday, October 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Agriculture 116.

Dean of Women has varied life

by Nina Zaruto
Staff Writer

"Who is Lorraine Howard?"

Dr. Howard looked up from her paper-filled desk in the Administration building and searched my face. For a silent moment she seemed to be looking for the motive in my question.

The answer was either simple or complicated. The simple answer is listed in the college catalog: "Lorraine Howard, Associate Dean (women)." The complicated answer... well that's my story.

After one brief meeting with Dean Howard, it is easy to see that all 5 feet 10 inches is a busy woman. But then from the looks of her four-page resume the dean has always been busy.

It seems that the Oregon State University amount holds a bachelor of science degree in home economics, master's in education, a Ph.D. in guidance, and psychology and secondary teaching credentials for Oregon and California.

She is presently serving as professor of Chapter 97 of the California State Employees Association.

"It's the first time they have had a woman president," she stated with perhaps a glint of satisfaction in her eye.

Does the Dean of Women think members of her sex are discriminated against?

"Discrimination against women does exist throughout the entire college system, but I'd rather not elaborate," she said.

As for women on this campus, being discriminated against, she admits she has had some women come to her and complain, however she doesn't seem to have an answer for them.

"I hope time will take care of some of it," Dean Howard said.

Then she explained, "Youth wants change right now, older people can wait longer."

The Dean of Women lists her duties as "primarily personal, vocational and educational counseling of both men and women, as well as personnel counseling."

In addition, she prepares, organizes and implements various programs on campus. She sits in as chairman, co-chairman or member of a host of committees on campus. She advises students on senior projects, research projects and seminars. And Dean Howard represents the Dean of Students in at least seven other areas, including housing, activities and food service.

Lorraine Howard's first teaching assignment in Oregon was a class in study methods. And there is a good reason. Throughout the five years from 1959 to 1963, during which Lorraine Howard was studying for her master's and Ph.D. and earning honor rolls, she was a very busy young woman. This creates a tense situation between men and women. The girls' concern with the war is with regard to a peer relationship," explained Dean Howard.

Regarding the complaints young people are voicing towards the educational system, Dean Howard commented that the system lags industry by 20 years. She cited industry's quest for money as the reason for the lag and added that education affects people that aren't interested in money.

And what doesn't Dean Howard think of the Cal Poly women?

"She is a very wholesome young lady."
Constructively speaking

Moratorium: voice of minority
by Vernon Tritleha

Eighty-four percent of the Senate and ninety-six percent of the House do not agree with the October 16th "Moratorium" on the Vietnam war. This would seem to be an overwhelming majority, the real voice of the people, but also, that isn't the way the "peace at any price" national TV news interprets it for us. We, as the "Guardian" would have us do, must look at the tiny, increasing minority to learn what is really happening. Let's take a look at this so called "Moratorium."

What is the Moratorium? Who got it started? What are its objectives?

The Moratorium, as defined by the popular press, is a peaceful demand by the "people" for President Nixon to end the War now and bring all American support home. If the Moratorium of October 16th is not heeded then more active demonstrations will be held one month and two months later. This is the "Pall Offensive," rather offensive I would say.

It isn't completely fair to say that the Moratorium is supported only by the Far Left in American Society, but it is quite fair to say that it is their brain-child and quite their purposes nicely—at home and abroad. If we let our history remind us for the moment how eager Russia was to keep us out of Korea or how they had their demonstrations in this country encouraging us to stay out of World War Two (until, that is, Hitler violated the Berlin-Moscow Pact), we get a better idea who's end are best served by a "get out of Vietnam now" program.

The New Left is quite able to bring this program to the campus here in this country since they have a new image of respectability, lots of money from New York based foundations and articulate though mistaken, spokesman willing to do their bidding: We even have our own

Physics lectures set

First, in a series of informal discussions on physics to be held at 11 a.m. today in Science K-26, Dr. Robert Frost was to speak on "Physics at Cal Poly." Other lectures scheduled are: "Nuclear Physics," Dr. Arthur Rosen, on Tuesday; "Solid State Phenomena," Dr. Hafemdia, Nov. 4; "Elementary Particles," Dr. Cassidy, Nov. 18.

New physics majors will have an opportunity to get acquainted with their instructors and other students at the lectures.

Do you have to give up your identity to make it in a big corporation?

You've heard the stories: One big corporation forbids you to wear anything but white shirts. Another says it wants you to be "creative"—and gives you a 4-pound rule book telling you exactly how to do it. Yet another doesn't want you to buy a more expensive car than your boss because "It wouldn't look right." Is this really happening in American business?

Have companies become so rigid and fossilized that they're scared of people who don't fit the "norm"? Not this company. We are not hung up on trivia like that. We are looking for more people like this—people who aren't afraid to stand up and try themselves out.

We are an equal opportunity employer: All you need to make it with us is a good head on your shoulders.

Morton Frank, publisher of Family Weekly, a weekly supplement, spoke to a large group of interested students Thursday evening in the Little Theater. He was sponsored by the Journalism Department and Sigma Delta Chi in a program scheduled as part of National Newspaper Week. Frank spoke on "Social and Editorial Changes in Newspapers." Under this general heading, the subjects ranged from the job of a supplement to the change in the types of reporting and the results of the underground newspapers.

The long-time journalist began his talk with a description of the purpose and content of Family Weekly. Its basic job is to supplement and complement the daily papers that carry it, so its scope must be very large.

Recruiter to talk

Mr. Richard Nishihara, a representative from the International Voluntary Services, Incorporated, will be recruiting on campus Oct. 23 and 24. Mr. Nishihara would like to talk to interested groups, clubs, or classes before Oct. 23, if possible. If anyone on campus is interested, they should contact the Placement Office.

You're got to be kidding!

People-watching pursued persistently

by John Drexler

The other day I happened to have a minute to myself (a rare occasion) and decided to do some people-watching.

The best place, I've discovered, is yo olde Snack Bar. This is a natural, since off-beat food and off-beat people seem to go together.

Like this one guy—he sat down with a glass of milk, took a few sips and then frowned. He got up and disappeared into the milling mob behind the turnstiles to return minutes later with a doughnut. He ate it, took a few gulps of milk and then groaned, his doughnut gone. He frowned again. He'd evidently now run out of milk.

He left for the stainless steel row once again. While he was gone, a bearded wonder sat down next to our hero's seat and looked around. Beaching the empty cup and half-munched goodie, he assumed it was left over from someones with eyes bigger than their stomach. In short, he popped the tasty treat into his mouth (somewhere in the beard!) and chomped away with a languid look of luxury.

As he chewed, Mr. Milk returned to his roast and again sat down. He reached for his doughnut and stopped short for obvious reasons. He looked puzzled and slightly iritated. He looked under the paper plate, in his notebook, and finally in the table of contents of his chemistry book. No doughnut.

He turned to the bearded wonder to ask if he'd seen his sweet-stuffs, when his eye detected incriminating crumbs of chocolate frosting on Mr. Hair's abundant growth. With cold contempt he asked "Have you seen my doughnut?"

The tall-cool-one opened one eye and looked at the intruder of his gourmet ecstasy. "What man?"

"Have you seen my doughnut?"

"No man, I didn't see your doughnut. What it look like?"

"It had little orange doo-da-da and a hole in... Never mind. Did you eat it?"

"Look, man, how can I tell if it was your doughnut if you can't even tell me what it looked like, I mean, did you ever hear of Sgt. Joe Friday looking for a missing person with no description?"

"Okay, okay, did you eat a doughnut that was sitting on this plate a few minutes ago?"

"What is this, man? A cross-examination? No."

"Then what are those crumbs, on your BEARD?! Our hero exclaimed victoriously.

"It was only half a doughnut."

"Ah! Then you DID eat it?"

"I never said I didn't, man."

A look of utter frustration overcame our victim, and helplessness hung all over him. Just then, a Security office walked in. Our hero jumped to his feet and ran over to him. After a moment of wild gesturing, they returned to the scene of the crime. The Man spoke:

"You eat this guy's doughnut?"

The Beard started to look a bit nervous. He hadn't counted on harassing the heat.

"Uh, no sir, I mean, not a whole one..."

"Are you going to buy him another one?"

"I can't man, or, sir—I'm busted.""

"Okay, then I'm gonna nail you for vagrancy, theft, and overtime parking."

"Hey, wait a minute! I...

"Tell it to the Registrar on your way out...

The Man took the culprit by the scruff of the neck and marched him away, while our victim sat down with a smug look on his face and peered around. Next to him was half a roll just sitting on a plate. He glanced around him and then popped the yummie into his mouth. Just then a bearded fellow rolled up and reached for a plate and stopped short.

Colts improve, but still bow, 14-6

BY TERRY CONNER
Sports Writer

The Poly Colts looked very impressive last Saturday night at Dave Boyd Field in Santa Maria, but dropped their second defeat in the 14th quarter.

Coach Dick Purcell, enthusiastic in his evaluation of the Colts' performance, said, "We eliminated a lot of the mistakes that we had against Costa Mesa. For every point the way the guys played, I think we outplayed them.

Third in four-way meet

Cross country team improves

BY RICH BOECHETTI
Sports Writer

Ten cross country runners dominated the Mustangs placed third in a four-way meet last Saturday.

With the help of Mike Wagoner, nationally-ranked Poly running the event with 39 points, Wagoner, finishing first, was clocked at 28:46.

Cal State Long Beach was second with 42 points and Cal State Los Angeles with 80. Eddie Gadsden paced the locals, finishing fifth with a time of 30:13.

The Mustangs, hampered all season by illnesses and a lack of conditioning, suffered the loss of No. 8 man Greg Tibble, who could have added valuable points to the Mustangs first seven finishers improved their times by an average of 35 seconds.

Purcell vowed, "Long Beach will go down to Poly's wielding the ball and played mostly around the midfield area. The Colts put together a late second quarter drive and were in scoring position when time ran out. It was to be the Colts last real threat in the game.

Hancock quarterback Roger Paschen finally sparked his team to life in the third quarter. Finishing and running back halfback Earl Shelton put the Bulldogs on the scoreboard.

A five-yard pass from Paschen to split end Charles Howard put Hancock on the scoreboard. Mike Quintero added the extra point to give the Bulldogs the lead, 7-0.

The Bulldogs threatened to boast a long Colt defense was able to hold.

In the fourth quarter, halfback Earl Shelton breaks around the right end of the Colt defense and streaked 47 yards for a touchdown.

Why engineering students graduate to Lockheed.

Progress is a matter of degrees. But, that's only the beginning. At Lockheed Missiles and Space Company, we're working on this world... otherworld... and subworld projects. We're working high on space... we've got Agina and other extremely advanced programs to prove it. And, when it comes to ballistic missiles, Polaris and Poseidon show an arc of triumph. We think deeply, too...consider our deep submergence vehicles, for example. And, just to show you our feet are solidly on the ground, we're working on advanced land vehicles. Information? Business, government, and industry get it out of our systems.

Evidently, it showed the kind of game Cal Poly (or Cal Poly as one observer put it) played. The final score was 74-7.

Over all, the Mustangs were penalised 181 yards and didn't play like a team that deserved an 8-1 record.

In its first four games, Poly has been penalised 653 yards for an average of 163.3 a game. The opposition has been penalised only 481 yards.

Looking at Saturday's point total, you'd think coach Joe Harper would have praised flowing from his lips. In simple terms, that wasn't the case.

Harper tells Mustang Daily the mistakes Poly made against Simon Fraser would have spelled defeat against a good team—like Fresno State.

If Fresno State had been the opponent last Saturday night, the score might have been completely different. However, Simon Fraser provided the opposition and had a hard time doing that after Poly's first-play from scrimmage.

After defensive back Manuel Murrell intercepted a Wayne Helm pass on the Simon 35, tailback Joe Acosta, on Poly's opening play, streaked through left tackle for 85 yards and a touchdown.

So Poly raced out to a quick lead with 14:01 left in the first quarter.

For Acosta, a senior from Manteca, it was the first of three touchdowns. He also scored on runs of 12 and 7 yards, respectively.

For the game, he led all ground gainers with 165 yards in 18 carries.

In fact, he edged out sophomore "Joe," who also played tailback, in the rushing statistics. Joe Nipon a junior from Manteca, gained 160 in 17 attempts and scored a touchdown on a 30-yard run. Another Poly standout, kicker specialist Tom Vade II, booted 9 of 10 conversion attempts and a 49-yard field goal on a new Poly record.

Vales told interviewers that Abate should be credited for his block placements on his kicks attempts.

With the aid of two Poly penalties, Simon Fraser broke into the scoring-column in the first quarter on a 1-yard run by quarterback Wayne Helm.

However, Poly did impress one area. Because of the officiating error, the Mustangs were out-passed during the game. It is the running game that led to the 17-7 loss to Boise State.

Can history repeat
COMPILTED BY MD SPORTS
Can history strike twice? MD Sports doesn't know, but here are the facts:
At this time last year, Poly clinched a weak NAIA school, Cal Western, 81-6, and went into the Fresno game with a 3-1 season record.
Last Saturday, the Mustangs beat a NAIA school, Simon Fraser, and will go into this Saturday night's encounter with Fresno with an identical 3-1 mark.
Last year, Fresno defeated Poly, 17-6. Can history strike twice?
