Dick Gregory calls for youth commitment

GPA's rise at SF State; accreditation questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Students at San Francisco State College received a lift this past year because they were there to change the system—Gregory raised his voice at this point—that convention woke up a lot of young people.

This generation is the most moral generation that has ever been.

Fifteen thousand hippies and yuppies went to the Democratic convention last year and the establishment got upset because they were there to change the system—Gregory raised his voice at this point—that convention woke up a lot of young people.

News conference adds to Gregory's crusade

"Minnes... come in with your eyes rim... If you don't like it, you don't come in," Gregory is holding a news conference here at the Olive Tree Inn, where he's staying while you dm direct you.

"Dick Gregory?" the creamy blonde responded, curvy in her one-piece uniform. "Oh, yes, I've heard about you. I'm here for the first time."

But there is an Olive Tree confer- ence room (follow the people wearing black berets, carrying tape recorders and Dick Gregory was there answering questions precedent by ... Mr. Gregory..."

Newsmen attending had heard about Gregory's brown hunting cap, pink and white striped shirt, black leather pants, or brown leather jacket, black skin- beard, quick metaphors and smiling comedy."

Newsmen hadn't heard much about "poor white hillbillies" or "our Indian brothers" in connection - in this conference. After telling why "we're playing the people's game," why "peace corps this bill peace corps that won't get it" with sick and hungry people, Gregory ranted about the "conditions of Indi..." his long, cupped fingers waving above a variety of microphones shapes.

"The number one problem is the thing we're doing," Gregory said. "The thing we're doing, the thing I'm doing, the thing everybody is doing, is the thing we're doing."

"We're going to keep it on the road, and we're going to go and try to..."

Gregory explained why he was in Vietnam, right wingers, rac- ism, poverty, and every time he turned back to the Indians, lettuce anecdotes, ingenious shapes.

He said Vietnam was an "in- ternal affair" and we had "no right" getting involved. "We're no more right than if the Russians said, well, the In... in the South Vietnamese."

"We can worry about him get... We're no more right than if the Russians said, well, the Vietnamese are so stupid that..."

"We can worry about him get... If anybody on the face of the earth asks me, I don't know, but I can't..."

"We can worry about him get..."

If one can continue after read... and we're going to do it. The community has too many problems."

If one can continue after read..."

The creamy blonde was still sitting on tables, black folk and poor foreigners were still suffering. Indians were still "lock..."

When the news conference was ended, Gregory thanked news- men and left the community appreciatively. The creamy blonde was still sitting on tables, black folk and poor foreigners were still suffering. Indians were still "lock..."

But Gregory's remarks were in print, on tape, and his physical crusades was on television film.

Letters to the editor

Students question facts in column

Editor:

We are not members of the SDIF or SNAP nor do we consider ourselves part of the Far Left. Constructively speaking, we would appreciate a small chance to present some facts in reply to the garbled insinua- tions which appeared in the October 14 edition of the Mustang Daily.

If Mr. Trichtka is a member of the Mustang Daily staff we would like to know why he was not stated. If he is not a member why the piece appeared as news (1) article and not a letter. But alas! I cannot know and must wait a reply in your next issue before continuing.

No matter what Mr. Trichtka's position is in relation to the Must- ake Daily; many of the facts he used to base his article upon are questionable. Without so much as a hint of where he gained his facts Trichtka charged that 94% of the Senate and 94% of the House of Representatives do not agree with the October 19 Moratorium.

If one can continue after read- ing the "article" one finds out that this "overwhelming major- ity" is of the "people of the peo- ple," AHI? Is this so? To quote an article which ap- peared in our local paper in the October 13th issue of the San Fran- cisco Chronicle, the renowned George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion stated, "A majority of citizens (75%) say they would like to have Con- gress pass the bill proposed by Senator Charles Goodell to with- draw all United States troops from Vietnam by the end of 1970 and turn the fighting over to the South Vietnamese."

Is it the "majority" what the Moratorium Committee demands? Is questioning our country's jus- tice in Vietnam, the people who support the mor- ruitur have decided that we do not belong there and should n...I own our troops from Vietnam on. This opinion was found Mr. Gallup to be held by 7% of the American people. We ask what is the true "voice of the people." A group of Senate and Congressmen, many elected as much as five years ago who just happen to be politically different, or a response national opinion poll taken in the next month.

But it is not necessary a burst with this when Mr. Trichtka assures himself of the 100 senators so openly supporting the Moro- riurn, then for sure the other 96% are openly opposed to it! This certainty is a strange way to go figures on public opinion.

Yes, Mr. Trichtka, serve us. Some of which were done by a plurality and not a majority. Serve us by telling us how, through what strange path, were you able to combine these problems is snid..."

SLO mayor adds title the Grand Marshal

Professor and mayor—this combination went to Mayor Ken Schwartz, who will be grand mar­ shal of this year's Homecoming Parade.

Schwartz, professor of archi­ tecture since 1952, was elected mayor in April. After serving on the city planning commission since 1969. As a planning commissioner, Schwartz was concerned with the future of San Luis Obispo. He is important for us to take stock of our sources. This community has certain talents and qualities that don't have a nice climate and a way of life that is enjoyable and beneficial.

Population, technology, eco- nomics all play a role. They play a role in the community 10-20 years from now? Schwartz's principle aim is to protect and conserve the environment for the next generation.

The tight housing situation is an example, he said. The com­ munity has too many problems. Not too many people move in and leave many problems. We must consider what type of housing the people will want."

"What is the need? Does the community want high rise apart­ ments, family dwellings, or both?"

"We must consider what type..."

Model UN readying to represent U.S.

By John Pitchford

Staff Writer

"Peace," as a spoken concept, begins to be circular, confusing, obtuse.

Plagued into political circuits, it becomes static phrases: "... a workable peace,... a peace we can live with... a peace with honor... a significant peace... a military peace... everyone wants peace..."

"Peace, as approached by Model United Nations is an academic, and practical understanding of world problems and diplomacy. It world peace, pragmatic and possible."

Model United Nations, a campus miniature of the New York based international organisation, exchanges political partnership.

"We're an educational organisation," says Don Koski, Model U.N. chairman, "We are a humanist organisation, to realize the importance of world peace, and we believe that world peace can come through the United Nations."

When Koski, a senior social studies major, talks about his group and its interest in world peace, he spends no time with philosophical, ideological or revolutionary discourse. Model U.N. is a practical, political, educational, and understanding, he says; it is not an emotional world crusade.

The organisation on this campus is a chapter of Model United Nations of the Far West, including colleges in 11 far Western states, Canada and Mexico.

Peter Molnar, a popular history instructor, is Model U.N.'s advisor. Model U.N. holds an "exeutive and worthwhile" annual convention is exciting because it is a mock United Nations assembly. Drawn exactly to diplomatic scales with resolutions, debates and protocols.

Students are elected to represent colleges in the U.N., and all the representatives are expected to study assignments for the April convention in the science building.

The Newman Federation will present a "Ding-a-Ling Day" (or a "Dry TGIF") on Friday. It will be held at the Newman Center for the enjoyment of all with entertainment and games program including hot dogs and live music.

Alpha Zeta will be holding a meeting Oct. 22 in the Science Building Room A-4.

All members and the public are invited to attend. Lee E. Bankoff will show slides depicting his European trip.

The seldom told troll tale

BY DON ELLIS

Once upon a time a troll named Todd and his wife Beverly lived under a couple of bridges. Todd made his living by collecting a toll from those who used the bridges to cross the river. Many of the common folk were so poor, however, that they could only afford to pay him a few pennies. One day Beverly got fed up with Todd's meager earnings. "Todd," she said, "I'm fed up with your meager earnings. Why can't you collect quadrants like normal trolls do? Or dimes, or even nickels instead of just pennies? I mean, common cents can only take you so far."

So Todd grudgingly collected quadrants from the travellers and stored them in a crock under his bed. But Beverly, who was a real ogre, continued to nag him. "Todd," she snarled, "why don't you take your crock down to Security Pacific Bank?"

"What would they want with my crock?" he asked. "I mean take the money down there. It'll be safe, and we'll get interest. Maybe you can even open a joint checking account."

Well, Todd may have been a troll but he was no dope. So he hied himself over to the bank with his crock of quadrants and opened an account. Soon their standard of living rose. They refurnished their dwelling in Early Swamp and began eating more than just stray goats.

Todd, however, began putting on a little extra weight. Then one morning Todd promised to go to the bank and crashed right through the bridges. But that was to be expected. For as everyone knows, if a troll gets a little extra money, he's bound to get too big for his bridges.

Conservative raps moratorium

by Vernon Tritlehia

Last Wednesday's Vietnam Moratorium could not be ignored. Even this conservatively minded campus and this relatively isolated city were witness to conspicuous expressions of the dilemma of Vietnam. We heard, again, the familiar demand that President Nixon make the war "go away" by giving Southeast Asia away to the communists regardless of the demonstrated will of the people there.

It is perhaps more than coincidental that such a simple "solution" to the problem of Vietnam should emanate from demonstrations characterized by child-like naivete and ill-concealed self-righteousness. A charitable conclusion would be that the Vietnam Moratorium was a harmless attempt of an organized minority to relieve its tensions and entertain its illusions.

However, one cannot dismiss as harmless something which brought forth the enthusiastic praise of communists around the world as did the Moratorium. While the events of last Wednesday probably held few surprises for anyone, the net effect can only be detrimental to this country's efforts to end the Vietnam war on honorable terms.

Old Time Flicks

W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy and the Little Rascals will be on campus Sunday, Oct. 20. They will be the guests of the English Club in the form of "Old Time Flicks" and will be shown at both 8:30 p.m. in the Engineering (A.C.) Auditorium for 25 cents admission.

"Happy 21st Birthday, Johnny"

At least, we hope it's happy, Johnny's strung out on "speed," and most people take him for about 35. He's shooting "meth," now, but he started on pills: "downers," "bennies." He has to use a little more each day to maintain the "high" and avoid "crashing." It's as thought he were a car that's raced its motor continuously for a year. No wonder he looks like he's ready for a 50,000 mile overhaul.

You see, on "speed," you don't eat, you don't sleep, you don't feel you have to pay any attention to your health... because you feel so "up" all the time.

So while you're "up" on speed, your body runs down. Johnny raps all the time about how, since he's started "speeding" he's really living. At this rate, he may have lived his whole life before he reaches 22.

"Bring the war home to Chicago." This was the chant of the chain swinging, steel pipe concealed in wielding newspapers members of the SDS as they assaulted the people of Chicago over the Columbus Day weekend.

This contrived riot was whipped up to show support for the eight leftists on trial for conspiracy and to mourn the timely death of the not-so-clever, not-so-clever, Che Guevara. As these 500 or so SDS members from the Eastern states marched down the Loop of downtown Chicago one Richard Elrod stood between them and the men in blue. Elrod was known by most demonstrators, he had settled differences between them and the police many times and was respected by both. He's a bright young man, a State Legislator and a rising star in the Democratic Party ranks.

All of this meant nothing to SDS leader Brian Poguean of Columbia University. With his steel pipe in hand he brought it down hard across Elrod's face and when he hit the ground he kicked him savagely in the back and neck. Elrod now lies paralyzed in the hospital and Poguean is charged with intent to commit murder.

This is the "youthful enthu­siasm" that the liberal element speaks of; this is the end result of street politics; this is not in the American tradition of dissent.

that these men represented a minority of the people in the United States.
Furthermore, who are these people whom you claim are opposed to the Moratorium? Those able to vote—over 18, under 30, over 50, under 50? Who are these people Mr. Tritchka that you conveniently forget to tell us.

To use a favorite tactic of Mr. Tritchka's we won't say that he is wrong, we'll say that you said it without saying it directly. We thought that tactic was limited to the sensationalism of low quality writing.

We take it Mr. Tritchka that you do not like the Fall Offensive. How quick the way you jump meanings. To use the noun "offensive" as an adjective when it was obviously meant to be used as a noun appears to us as not a clever trick used by the sensationalist papers of years past to create an unfavorable idea of a controversial cause. Are you attempting to revive faceless sensationalism? No matter how disgraceful the phrase "Fall Offensive" may become it could never approach the offensiveness of the American murder and aggression in Vietnam.

When Mr. Tritchka is in there proof that the demonstrators, who encouraged the U.S. to stay out of World War II, were sent or even supported by the Russians as you attempt to imply in the fourth paragraph of your article. And furthermore, how, through what scope do you conclude that this "offensive" idea, which rings strongly of Joe McCarthy, could ever be used by the Russians who disapprove of the war. The decent, sober people, both American and Russian, do not support U.S. government.

Reading on through the fifth paragraph, your article becomes completely unbelievable in its unrestrained writing. Ah, but thank you Mr. Tritchka for your limitless humor! Were it not for that one little play on words, we would have been bored. If the college company should give you a large supply of Race-Kris-

Problems outlined by EOP head

The Educational Opportunity Program (EOP), created to aid students from educationally handicapped backgrounds, is giving financial counseling, and tutorial assistance to 35 ethnic minority students here. Problems confronting the administration of EOP were discussed in an interview with Richard Martinez last week. Martinez, a 28-year-old articulate, outspoken Chinese, spoke at length on the goals, conflicts, and semantics which surround the program.

After gaining his master's degree in Spanish from the University of Arizona, Martinez worked in Arizona as field coordinator and supervisor for Service Employment Reeducation (SERR) and a federally funded program of on-the-job training opportunities for low-income people.

Along with his duties as head of EOP, Martinez, in his first year here, doubles as coordinator of the committee to build an Ethnic Studies department.

"The biggest problem facing EOP is that which seems to rear its head in every bureaucracy—money. The actual amount given under the EOP is small, and it is difficult to access. Each student presents a different problem, and each must be treated differently," according to Martinez.

CHINESE PICTURE SET FOR TOMORROW

The movie "King of Swordsman," will be shown tomorrow at 7 and 9:30 p.m., in the Little Theater. Admission is 50 cents. Sponsored by the Film Committee and Poly Chi, the movie has won international acclaim for its depiction of life during the Chinese dynasties.

The film is a tongue-in-cheek rendition of the hero's dilemma: the hero, a young swordsman, must choose between an obesessive vengeance or a gratitude rooted in love. To further compound his dilemma, the Black Dragon—the acknowledged "King of Swordsman," challenges him to a climatic duel.

BUSINESS SOCIETY SPONSORS BARBECUE

Some 800 students and faculty members showed up for the top sirloin steaks last Tuesday in Poly Grove. The occasion was RAM's annual student-faculty barbecue.

On hand to enjoy the feast were club members and faculty members from the business department.

Money for the problem comes from state, federal, and local sources. Several new minority students are slated to receive support in the next quarter, with more the next, and 70 the goal aimed for by spring.

Applicants for the program can apply, but must be referred to the department by high school principals or agencies such as War on Poverty and Head Start.

Motivation presents another road block to the minority student. "It is hard to convince someone who is hungry to go to school for four years instead of getting a job and getting something right away."

Martinez defines a minority person as "one other than white—including black, Mexican, Indian, or Oriental."

Gregory calls for youth commitment

said, "Most schools indoctrinate, they don't educate. I hope that you reform the system; my kids won't be so patient. They won't take over the administration building; they'll be marching where the building was."

Gregory said that the blacks want to break institutionalized racism, not individual racism. "Black folks don't hate white folks," Gregory said, "we hate the white-racist system and its institutions, but we are holding you responsible for these institutions."

"I was forced to live my life in a ghetto, with the rats and the roaches," Gregory flatly stated. "If we are the nigger for dirtying up that little piece of land (the ghetto) that's alright. But what are you," Gregory asked "for dirtying up the rivers, polluting the oceans and the air? If we're the nigger, then you're the super-nigger."

According to Gregory, this system even gave the blacks a riot season, July through August. "During the next riot season I want you young people, you black people too, to do me a favor," Gregory said. "Bring your parents down in front of the TV while the riots are on, turn the sound down and read to them from the Declaration of Independence." Gregory paused and then, shouting out each word, read:

'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government.'

"Thirty years ago blacks had hungry stomachs; now we have a hungry mind," Gregory said. "A hungry stomach works on smell, a hungry mind works on sound, and all of a sudden this country doesn't sound right to us."

A standing ovation accompanied Gregory as he walked out of the gym.

Ratcliffe goes Baroque for capacity audience

The Little Theater became a true way last Thursday during College Hour as Ronald Ratcliffe gave a harpsichord concert of Baroque music.

The house lights were up, bringing the capacity crowd and Ratcliffe closer together as they began their voyage. Fischer's "Prelude in D Major" transformed the harpsichord into a mixture of an organ and a piano, whose rich tones echoed throughout the chamber.

Latecomers were ushered in as Ratcliffe, acting as the guide, waited patiently for them to find their seats before he played Bach's "Italian Concerto," which was almost unbelievable how well a harpsichord can imitate the sounds of a harpsichord or the sounds of a tambourine.

A humorous note was included in the concert with "From the Diary of a Fly." This selection portrayed the life of the pitiful fly and its fight against man and its fateful encounter with him. The piece is quite similar to the "Flight of the Bumble Bee," which was written for the trumpet.

The full range of rich tones was shown in the last number, Scarlatti's Sonata in D major, Longo No. 460. Scarlatti wrote 550 sonatas.

ONE OF GREATEST WINS IN POLY GRID HISTORY

The Mustangs have done it. Playing in the world's smallest outdoor insane asylum—Mustang Stadium, the 13,000-seat blue oval, San Jose State's Midway to the right end for two...and denied Fresno a chance to regain the pigskin. Quarterback Gary Atte, via missed the Simon Fraser pass with a miracle pull, led all rams in the game with 55 rushes in 15 carries.

The Mustangs, rated 17th in the nation by UPI before the game, totaled 323 yards offensively in the contest—the most by a Poly defense this season. The win gave Poly a 4-1 record.

The Mustangs were only penalized three times for 33 yards. It was a big difference over the 121 yards assigned against Poly in the 9-7 win over Simon Fraser. However, a 55-yard interference call against Poly allowed poly quarterback Jim Edmondson to catch a 70-yard scoring strike to flanker John Sexton. That made the score at the time, 17-7. After the Mustangs took the lead 21-17, Fresno had a chance to pull out the game, but the penalty bugaboos struck the Bulldogs. With two minutes left in the game, Poly was flagged into a punting situation on its own 27 yard line. However, a roughing-the-punter penalty nullified half possession for the Mustangs.

What also may have been 'plessing' for Harper was Poly's apparent remedy for the rash of penalties.

"It was the poorest exhibition of football I have ever seen,"

Colt coach Tom Lee expressed "through disappointment" in San Jose State's whitewashing of the Poly eleven, 31-0.

Lee added, "We lost for several reasons: 1) we lost our third starting quarterback, 2) poor blocking, 3) poor tackling. 4) too many penalties."

The Colts had luck starting early, receiving the opening kick off on their first play from scrimmage. They were assessed a 15-yard penalty.

After punting the ball over to the Spartababies, quarterback Gary Tommaso passed to end Tony Frye to set up a first down situation. On the next play, Dale Knott scooted in for the first touchdown from the five-yard line.

San Jose scored again the next time they got the ball, as the Colts were unable to move the ball and had to punt.

Halfback Jim Laassiter rambled around the right end for two yards and a score. The Spartababies were able to get that far by penalties against the Colts in the first quarter, the Spartababies lead, 13-0.
