Halftime festivities set

Queens, ugly men, prize-winning floats and old time football players will provide pre-game and halftime entertainment at tomorrow's homecoming game against Long Beach. The Mustang band is also slated to play during the intermission.

Highlighting the pre-game show will be the introduction of the 1968 football team, according to Las Vanoni, director of alumni and community affairs. The '68 squad compiled a perfect 9-0 record and will be guests of honor at Saturday's contest.

The halftime show will include a display of floats which take top honors in the homecoming parade earlier in the afternoon. Queen of the day will also take a ride around the old gridiron.

Escorting the queen will be another winner—the ugliest gentelman student.

The halftime and pre-game show is sponsored by the Activities Committee under the direction of John Lucin. Theme of the festivities is along the lines of doing one's own thing.

McDonald's opens next week.

We stop building walls, and start building hamburgers.
And all the other things McDonald's is famous for:
Our crisp, golden french fries. Our triple-thick shakes.

And our new triple-decker meat Big Mac.

We've already built a reputation. Now all we have to do is live up to it.
And make McDonald's your kind of place.
Homecoming explained

Homecoming is a good time for "What Ever Turns You On." Last spring a contest for the selection of a Homecoming theme was sponsored by Homecoming Committee. A prize of $25.00 was to be awarded the club with the winning entry and corresponding emblem or badge.

No entries were submitted. Faced with a chore that traditionally belongs to the student body or campus organizations involved in Homecoming activities, the voting board of Homecoming Committee made a selection from several self-proposed titles.

"What Ever Turns You On" was favored from among: "Age of Scorpio," "A Mustang," "El Gamble Hall," "A Spook Holler." A Witch'n Weekend," "Beowitchin'" "Magical Mystery Tour," "Dawning of a Decade," and "Dawning." The theme selection contest was sponsored to generate interest in and spirit for the Homecoming activities. The prize-money offered as an incentive to procure entries was a hopeless failure.

Mr. L.J. Yannuci, director of Homecoming activities, doesn't feel, however, that this denotes a lack of interest among the student body. He thinks that it just reveals that students here are more serious than ever. If offering prize money didn't stimulate participation it is not because students are apathetic about Homecoming says Yannuci, but because they simply don't have time. This college attracts the student who is serious about getting into his profession and when he isn't studying he wants to relax and not work on extra curricular activities added Yannuci. A Homecoming title or theme is only important in that the activities must be centered around some idea. The theme, like any title, should denote a feeling and "Do Your Own Thing" says "gayety, fun and frolic" but doesn't give any specifics. Homecoming committee expressed the sentiment that they hoped all float entries would be in "good taste with Homecoming." Several participating club presidents, according to Mike Hewsey (Parade) Chairman, feel that the theme was rather difficult to work with. While it does give leeway for creativity, it is too specific to work a float scene around. Approximately twenty floats have been entered in this year's contest and the club sponsoring the winning float will receive $100.00 in prize money. The Dining Hall will be the site of the Sweatshirt Stomp this Friday from 9 p.m. to midnight. The Homecoming Committee will sponsor Statesboro, a group which, according to Manager Dale Freedman, plays a large variety of rock sounds. As well as original compositions, the group has been together one and a half years. Its five members: Conley Anderson, Danny Davidson, Joey Miller, John Dalloni and Rob Carter, were recently joined by Kreedman, previous manager for Yankee Dollar. The group is currently working with Jeff Orr, a writer, in hopes of cutting an album by early 1970, Kreedman said.

When asked to compare Statesboro's music to Yankee Dollar in that it carries a pronounced beat which makes it very good dance-concert material.

Tickets to see Statesboro may be purchased at the door for 50 cents, with a sweatshirt, or 75 cents without. For that special person - you. For your many and varied moods - Exciting, swinging apparel, accessories and jewelry.

When the first Volksvagens come to America, most people thought we were losers.

"Too ugly."

"They look like beetles."

But then people started finding out that we get great gas mileage. Take pints not quarts of oil. And that we came to the United States with factory-trained mechanics and a warehouse full of spare parts.

Some people look like losers anymore. In fact, with our fully automatic and automatic stick shift transmissions, we're one of the strongest teams in the league.

Our buses, campers and trucks have lots of muscle. Our squarebacks, fastbacks and Karmans Ohio's are quick and agile. And if the beetle ever retired, it would be a cinch for the hall of fame.

You might say it's the first time a Cinderella team has become the team to beat.

Residence halls set visiting hours

Visiting hours in campus dormitories, which affect over 1200 campus residents and their overnight guests, have been established for the 1960-61 school year.

There are different visiting hours for individuals' rooms than there are for the lounge and recreation areas. North Mountain dorms have no lounges. Fremont, Muir, Sequoia and Yosemite have 24-hour lounge visiting hours, as long as the visitor is accompanied by a resident.

Bernard Nagengast, resident manager of Palomar, said that all North Mountain dormitories have the same visiting hours.

Their visiting hours are 1-5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1-8 p.m. Sunday. Fremont, Muir, Tenaya, Yosemite and Sequoia dormitories also have these visiting hours.

Trinity dormitory hours for rooms are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, and lounge hours extend from 10 p.m. Friday until 11 p.m. Sunday. Santa Lucia room visiting hours are from 1-8 and 8-11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Lounge visiting hours are from 10 a.m. - 11:30 p.m. weeknights and 10 a.m. - 1:15 a.m. on weekends.

Anybody caught violating lounge visiting hours will be asked to leave. Anybody caught violating room visiting hours will be asked the same and his or her host(es) will be warned again.

The Veterans Administration may authorize and expedite urinalisation of alien veterans eliminating certain requirements.

Halloween horror special

"The Lost World" and "Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" will be presented tonight as a special Halloween feature. Both movies will be presented in the A.C. Auditorium at 7 and 9:30. Admission is 25 cents and all who plan to attend are encouraged to dress in their horrifying worst.

"The Lost World" (1925), starring Wallace Beery and Beulah Bondi, is the first and probably the greatest of the films dealing with prehistoric monsters, according to a Fine Arts Committee spokesman. The trick photographic effects were done by Willis O'Brien who later was responsible for the camera work in "King Kong."

The second feature, "Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," is one of the most important films in camera history, the spokesman said. It was the first attempt at expression of a creative mind through the motion picture medium. In it the audience shares the experiences of a madman and is carried into a world of unreality and escape.

Pumpkin patch frolic unveiled

by EMILY PERRY
Staff Writer.

Once upon a place, there was a kid named Pumpkin. Pumpkin was shelled as a large, round, squash-like mass belonging to the Gourd family. Most families don't describe their offspring in this manner, but the Gourds were particularly fond of humor, since they were of British origin and had some peculiarities in naming their children.

Take Pumpkin for instance. They could've taken plain old Pump and let it be that. But no, because he was their kin they had to specify real particularities and tack "kin" right on the end of his name. Besides, if we assume Webster for the meaning of Pump, we find it is a device or machine that raises, transfers, or compresses fluids by suction or pressure or both. Now if this kid could really do all that, he must have been something. But imagine what they were trying to say when so many who he was just plain fat!

It's a strange thing, but this kid, Pumpkin, whom I'll call "Pump" for short, never developed a complex about his name, yet at times it bothered him. He grew up and went into his chosen career, most of 'witch' he stood in—or stood out in, whichever the case might be. Soon he became known in his part of the country as the "Pump-of-all-trades."

One day an opportunity arose for Pump to work at a job he'd never tried before. The owner of a bar in LA, known as "The Lantern," needed a bartender. And it just so happened that Pump applied for the job and got it. George Hallow, the owner, was impressed with Pump from the start and as time progressed, he became the favorite bartender among the locals. When Hallow realized what was happening, he went straight to Pump and told him that with so much prestige rolling in, it wasn't proper for a prominent bartender to be known as "Pump." Hallow suggested he change his name. So, Pump thought and thought, and though he wanted a new name very badly, he couldn't come up with anything fitting.

A few days later, a tall mean-looking cowboy came into the bar and yelled to Pump, "Hey Jack, gimme a beer." From that moment on, Pump liked it and he was known from then on as "Jack."

Now, when Pump went home for a visit, he informed his family of his new name. They went ahead and honored him saying, "Okay, Pump-of-the-Lanterns, we'll call you Jack-kin. This made Pump very happy, because though his kin mocked him, he knew he was "Jack O'Lanterne" in town.

So, when you go out to buy your Jack-kin for Halloween, think of poor Pump and the humiliation he went through to

Naval flight training set for interested college men

Male students interested in the Naval Officer program will have the opportunity to find out about the program when an aviation information team from the Naval Air Station, Los Alamitos, Calif., visits the campus Nov. 5, 4 and 5.

The expansion of Naval aviation has necessitated the development of several programs offering young men flight training as pilots or as officer aircrew members. Upon successful completion of training, these young men will be rewarded with designations as aviators or as Naval flight officers.

Although the Navy now requires an applicant for any officer program to have a baccalaureate degree, there are several programs available for the student during his last two or three years of college. These programs are available in both the aviation and surface fields. Participation in one of these programs would allow the applicant to receive his commission upon graduation with a baccalaureate degree.

Apathy mars Homecoming event

by DALE KERN
Staff Writer

What does Homecoming mean to you? Seems like a perfectly harmless question, doesn't it? It did to me when I set out, pencil and paper in hand, to find the answer.

What I did get, after asking numerous students, was this discouragingly small handful of answers from a few of the concerned students on campus.

Tom Acosta, sophomore animal husbandry student: "Homecoming means nothing to me here at Poly. I associate it only with being an alumni of some school."

Julie Chilvers, senior home economics student: "I like the excitement of the football game, the school spirit at the bonfire and the parade."

Debbie Gates, sophomore animal husbandry student: "Homecoming is a time for boosting the spirit and morale of the school by showing off the school and students to former students."

Vicki Dungan, junior journalism student: "I don't think that homecoming means too much to the students here at Poly. We put our all out effort into Poly Royal."

After getting a "no comment" answer from most of the students asked, I am inclined to agree that homecoming doesn't mean too much to Poly students.

Unfortunately it seems as if nothing matters too much to some students! Many students aren't aware of most of the activities that take place on campus. If they are aware, most times they usually aren't involved.

The student apathy wouldn't be so bad if it weren't for the fact that it is usually accompanied by indignant shouts of campus domination. The students that show no concern over campus activities are usually the ones that say that there is never anything happening here.

A college is only as good as its students. No one gets excited over a college full of non-committal existers.

Homecoming affords the students a chance to get with it and "Do It" so let's "Do It" this year and show everyone that this campus is worth "Doing It" for.

Five former male students have been selected to reign during this weekend's Homecoming festivities as Outstanding Alumni of the Year.

The men, each selected from a different school on campus, will attend the parade and game tomorrow and will be honored during the Homecoming Alumni Banquet tomorrow evening.

"Initially, names of outstanding alumni are submitted by students, faculty, the administration and alumni at each of the schools. Then each school selects its choice of candidates and submits it to the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association," said Les Vanoncini, director of alumni and community affairs.

The men are selected on the basis of community participation and personal advancement in a chosen field.

This year all five of the outstanding men, whose classes range from 1921 to 1960, are business executives—three are vice presidents, two are presidents.

In 1969 Carl Gill and A.C. Thompson became co-partners in a cattle equipment manufacturer with a capital of $6,400.

Today Thompson and Gill, Inc. of Porterville, has an annual gross sales of $5.9 million.

Carl Gill is a 1921 graduate of this college. While here, he participated in football and track, was captain of the baseball team, a reporter for the Polygazin, vice president of the freshman class, president of the sophomore class and secretary of the Agriculture Association.

Upon graduation Gill married the former Laura Miller. In 1926, he returned to his home town of Porterville. After a stint with various family agricultural jobs, he and Thompson decided to market portable cattle equipment which he operated during irrigation, branding and so on.

From there, the two man company of President Thompson and Vice President Gill has expanded to "the construction of complete feed mills," being produced by 70 employees.

Recently Sinclair participated in the construction of a plastics, communication and automotive engine manufacturing and marketing capabilities.

Benito Sinclair is one of the well-known members of the National Republican State Committee of California. They had three children. In 1957 he graduated from here with a degree in agriculture.

Edward Levin was a member of the National Republican State Committee of California. He is married and has two children, a boy and a girl. He was elected senior vice president for commercial programs at Lockheed Corporation in 1966.

The past was thrown downfield and the coach known as the "Silver Fox" was leaning hard with it.

But he and the ball hit the ground just about the same time. If you had been there and many who will attend the 1969 Homecoming activities were-you might remember how Lefty "Silver Fox" Hughes, who replaced the 1983 Mustang football team to an undefeated and untied season, leaned so hard he fell over with cigarette in hand while deeply engrained in the process of a pum play during the 1983 football season.

Hughes and the entire 1983 football team, that year the top scoring team of the nation's "perfect teams," large or small, will be the honored guests of the 1989 San Luis Obispo Homecoming Week activities to be held here on Nov. 3.

It takes far more than an ordinary team to achieve the heights of the Mustangs' edition.

It takes a campus strong, tighter and tighter as each successive game goes by.

It takes a team coming up at reunions, sending wires, telephoning anxiously and camping at the desks of space-stingy sports editors.

It takes a brace of coaches with titanium nerves—nerves drawn to a thread—then drawn to a hair—then finer and finer, yet not breaking.

It takes a team that doesn't like to get licked and simply won't get licked because they know they're good and are willing to prove it as often as it is demanded of them.

Homecoming concert a failure?

by EMILY PERRY
Staff Writer

The Homecoming concert Wednesday night turned out to be somewhat of a mistake in several ways.

First of all, the performance began Harper's Bizarre, an Ivy-League group of clean-cuts who appeal to a certain audience—primarily poor re-runs of the late 50's-early 60's college crowd. To complicate matters, second billing was given to a long-haired blues-rock group, Bigfoot, who completely turned off this crowd.

This is not to say that one group was better than the other—just that they didn't belong together in a show.

Bigfoot moved with a happy jolly sound. Accomplished musicians, these young men played original compositions which needed an audience who could dig the blues and rhythm in their rock.

Although Harper's Bizarre sang mostly their arrangements of other people's songs, they did some great funky barbershop material, and their salute to the 60's music merits my applause.

In fact, 60's music is outstanding for the BO's-type songs, but when they use that choir-like harmony with popular songs, they somehow lose it.

On the other hand, Harper's Bizarre needed to be staged with groups like The Association, The Lettermen or a goon circus act. Audience mentality is definitely involved when they laugh at corny jokes of the "Kingston Trio era"—jokes so old they can be heard on any 50's folk song album.

'53 alumni to see 'future' sights

Fred Lucksinger was mayor of San Luis Obispo. The Anderson Hotel was "the" place for out-of-town guests. And Cal Poly had the only ROTC mounted drill team in the nation.

It was the year 1958—the year a silver fox led a herd of mighty Mustangs to an undefeated, untied season of football.

This week-end alumni from all over the nation will be coming home to honor that fox, coach Leroy Hughes, and his undefeated team.

For those on the team that return and for other members of the class of 1958-68, things here may seem strange. It was a different campus when they walked 10 miles through the hills to \( \text{Boast of the Coast} \) whipped LA. State 81-0 and coach "Bill var Fox" Hughes led nearly 20 floaters as Grand Marshall of the annual parade.

For those who rolled through town on the Southern Pacific Daylight in those days there was something new, too. As the travelers reached the campus, the train's public address system announced, "You are now passing through the campus of California State Polytechnic College, average 8,000..."

And who was responsible for this delightful publicity? It was the former public relations director and newly appointed assistant to president Julian McPhee—Robert Kennedy.

But things weren't all that different, boys were still boys. Enthusiasm was high that year and the student body almost picked up a tab for $1,200 worth of vandalism which occurred after a game on the University of California at Santa Barbara campus. A couple of men were expelled for siphoning gas from the \( \text{Mustang} \) managing editor's car. And there were numerous contests centering around painting and cleaning dorm rooms.

Student gripes were much the same too. George Hunter, editor-in-chief of the weekly \( \text{Theatre} \) (Continued on page 14.).

See this Chico, and come alive

by JOHN FITZERANDOLPH
Staff Writer

Dear Chico,

Last weekend went like this:
Saturday morning a Graduate heard Errand (GRE) was given in the Administration building. A packet either left and freebies was in charge. The whole thing used more than three hours.

Two rows of desks faced forward; old rows faced the side.
There in the GRE had sent eight dollars to an address in Berkeley and had received computer card permitting them to take the basement testing once. A husser went off after second section of the test; "candidates" were then permitted to read the page and blacken rec ings until the next bus.

In the afternoon, on a quiet, toned street named Casadero, President Robert Kennedy answered his doorbell. Inaido, he used queat:name for "Alternative" magazine for an hour and half.

Kennedy said he is a catalyst in his position: he can't make all friends and no enemies. The Human Moratorium Committee asked him on Oct. 10 for permi-tions to rally beside the Library, that they had previously printed written intentions to do so. It was all written out and planned, Ken-dy said. He nothing refused nor granted permission.

Now, some faculty members are very, believing Kennedy looked under. "We got mad at them other...the wrong things,” he said.

That evening, San Francisco's City Breit granted touriste into street flowers. Beg-girls were chanted for alms.
Dillary sailors stood in up newspapers chanting news and prices. Drugged hipskirted by.

Men dressed as women covered their masked faces with lace. Frielettes stood around corners
in a field on a green Day of the dead — while leathery heads bustled in and out of bars.

The Minerva Greek Cafe was on Eddy Street too, and it was crowded with laughter and drinking. Customers danced and parphrased to a band playing Zorba music. A kind man named Heer, bend a poster of Athens, recommended lamb and Greek noodles to several hungry tourists.

It was foggy Sunday afternoon on the hill by the Ninth Army Division. High over the water and bridge, President Stockade prisoners flashed peace symbol finger at passing cars.

A car stopped. A black arm banded soldier quickly said conditions have improved since the publicity surrounding last spring's prisoner trial.

The soldier said there is more food and free time now, after the public hearing on brutality.
He had been AWOL for 91 days.
He cursed the war and said he would be in the stockade for six months.

He was about to say more when a guard turned the corner.

“You'll have to stand back,” said the guard, pointing the way with his M-14. A bayonet was fixed on the rifle's barrel. “You can’t parley on a conversation with prisners,” he added.

Around two o'clock, in Lincoln Park, people applied around "The Thinker" at the Palace of The Legion of Honor. Inside the museum the paintings of Monet and other 19th century French impressionists were displayed.

An old man stood guard over the artwork, occasionally looking at his watch. His uniform was clean and his shirt collar heavily starched.

Outside the museum, just down the hill, golfers rode in little red carts.

At two thirty, on Geary Street, crowds swarmed into the Geary Theatre to see "Hair." The audience participated — they clapped hands, sang songs, loved the massage of the players.

The cast sang songs and danced. They said: "To keep us

San Luis mayor, teacher set as grand marshall

Isn’t being mayor a full time job? Perhaps so in some cities, according to Ken Schwarts, School of Architecture professor, mayor of San Luis Obispo, and grand marshall of the 1969 Homecoming activities. But San Luis Obispo is a chartered city, said Schwarts, and being mayor of a chartered city is not usually a full time job. Schwarts said that his responsibility as mayor is primarily to establish policy and advise the city council. After the policies have been established, the city administrator implements the policies. After the policies have been in effect for a time, the city council and mayor may be asked by the city to reconsider the policies. Schwarts said, “This provides a more efficient government. It lets the city government move more amongst the people.” Schwarts is a director of the School of Architecture. The School of Architecture, according to Schwarts, is not subdivided into departments like the other four schools. Although Architecture has programs in city and regional planning and architectural engineering, the instructors in the School of Architecture teach any of the courses in Architecture, whether it's city and regional planning or architectural design or whatever. Schwarts said that his responsibility as a director of architecture is curriculum and advising. He also helps coordinate the faculty in architecture.

Each year an individual is selected for his outstanding contributions to the college and community to reign as grand marshal of Homecoming, explained Stan Carlson, chairman of the Homecoming Committee. This year Ken Schwarts was selected as grand marshal in recognition for his 17 years of service to the college, 10 years service on the city planning commission and for his recent elected position as mayor. Schwarts will be the guest of honor at such Homecoming activities as the parade, Homecoming half time activities, and luncheons and dinners.

Homecoming parade slated tomorrow

by DAVE SANGSTER

Tomorrow morning 14 different campus organizations will carry out the homecoming theme of "What Ever Turns You On". It’s the annual Homecoming parade and it begins at 10 a.m. in the corner of Johnson and Higuera. From there it will go down Higuera to Nipomo and turn right onto Chorro. It will continue from there to Foothill and go directly to California, continue from there to Foothill Avenue which takes it to the stadium.

The clubs with floats are Boots and Spurs, Poly Goats, Camera Club, Rally Club, American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, S.A.M., Los Leones Dairy Club, Ornamental Horticulture Department, Lambda Delta Sigma, Crop Department, Home Economics and Agricultural Engineering Department, Alpha Phi Omega, Rose Parade Committee and the Industrial Technology Society.

The floats will be judged in the parking lot across from the baseball field at 7 a.m. Saturday. Trophies will be awarded to the best four floats. This year cash awards of $100, $80 and $25 will go to the first, second and third place floats respectively.

They will be judged by John Kerr, San Luis Obispo stockbroker, Dan Frank, owner of Roaa Jewelers, Paul Kraage, ASI president, Edward Garner, Mechanical Engineering instructor and Steve Riddle, sports commentator for KATY.

They will be judged on a 100 point scale. A maximum of 20 points will be judged in each of five areas: Depiction of theme, originality, workmanship decorations and presentation.

This year the Home Economics and Agricultural Engineering departments have worked together on the same float. It consists of a mountain with a "P" on it and a large cage about to drop on a Long Beach football player. The title on the side of the float reads, "Cage the 49’ers".

Campus changes greet all alumni

Mustang wrote in a January editorial, "The present inflationary trend in this country is at no time so apparent to the Cal Poly student as when he surveys his textbooks and supplies at the beginning of the quarter."

Another thing the men from '53 may note is that the plans, which were then shaping up for a College Union Building, are now actually taking shape in the form of a foundation and a floor or two.

Relations between the college crowd in those days and the businessmen downtown were as shaky as those between Spiro Agnew and the intellectuals today. At the urging of an El Mustang columnist, the students tried a little boycott which actually pulled a price or two down in town.

The film committee and Asher Shaw, owner of the Fremont Theater on Monterey St., had a few words over the showing on campus of "The Razo's Edge" and other films of the early '50's. But it was all straightened out by the fearless assistant to the leader, Kennedy. The films remained on campus and at the price of nine cents a student body.

The year 1968 was the year of the election. That year President Dwight Eisenhower suggested the lowering of the nation's voting age to 18 and at home three student body officer candidates were disqualified for not following student body election rules.

It was the year 1968, the year 4,900 students lived off-campus, the year the building of the campus power plant was started. It was the year "Gulliver's Travels," the 1964 entry in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, won first place in the educational division.

Poly to face 49ers

by CAROL CHADWICK
Sports Writer

With five wins, one loss and no "ties," the Green and Gold tide rolls on to challenge Cal State Long Beach for Poly's 1969 Homecoming game.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. before an expected overflow crowd at Mustang Stadium.

Whether the win over Valley State was "like taking ice cream from a baby" or not is all in the past. The Mustangs' sights are set on snapping a 7 game losing streak to the 49ers, who hold an 8-5 series edge between the two schools.

Last year, Long Beach dashed Poly's bid for an invitation to the Junior Rose Bowl (now the Camellia Bowl) when the Mustangs, 12-7.

In fact, Poly's last victory over Long Beach was 21-14 bark in the Junior Rose Bowl on Dec. 18.

Likewise sparking his team to victory, Acosta transported the ball for 183 yards in 17 attempts and scored a TD as the Mustangs downed San Fernando Valley State, 28-19. He led all Poly ball carriers with 554 yards in 182 carries.

Gary Abate, Poly's leader in total offense, will open at quarterback, but Junior Don Milan, starting quarterback, will stand ready to aid in his back up duties. Abate has gained 582 yards and has passed all other 582 yards for a total of 766 yards. He also leads the team in scoring with 48 points.

For Poly, end Don Svercheck, as well as stopping defensive back Ross Bauer, still on the injury list, are joined by flanker Jeff Riggen is second in Long Beach's pass-catching department with 14 catches for 171 yards and a touchdown.

Planker Jeff Rigen is second in Long Beach's pass-catching department with 14 catches for 171 yards and a touchdown.

For Poly, end Don. Rigen and tackle Mark Randel will anchor the front wall of the Mustang defense while backs Vincent Crooks and Jon Silverman will help deflect the enemy's aerial attack.

Linebackers Lee Treadwell and defensive back Ross Bauer, still on the injury list, are joined by Pete Rikhalt, who suffered a rib injury against Valley State. Tom Klemens will assume the starting fullback assignment.

Senior Bill Pandiani, leading the Mustang's promise for the 49ers, has completed 69 of 100 passes for 930 yards and five touchdowns.

The Mustang defense has allowed only 64 yards rushing per game against six opponents. Meanwhile, Poly's slot-T offense has pushed for 2,810 total yards in 473 plays.

With a big, strong line and a fast secondary, the 49ers will provide capable competition for the Poly Mustangs.
