Grass is growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At least six million Americans and marijuana last year, generating $500 million in sale of the illegal drug, the House Select Committee on Crime said today.

"In the growing drug culture in America marijuana has very recently become big business," the committee said in a 120-page report summarizing hearings it has held since its creation a year ago.

The report was released before an audience of students from District of Columbia schools who were invited to question committee members about marijuana.

"The marijuana issue is central to the narcotic and dangerous drug problem," said Rep. Claude D. Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the committee, in releasing the report. He described marijuana as "the entry port to the drug culture and to much more dangerous drugs."

The report concluded that in 1967 this college had a student body of approximately 2,781; now, three years later, it has over 11,500 students. The present bookstore with the same facilities as 1967 has to serve a greater number of customers than three years ago in addition to an increasing number of departments.

The national average of available space per student in a college store is 3.5 square feet; El Corral, said the report, has an average of 1.5 square feet per student. Such a comparison shows what happens at the beginning of each quarter when most of the students have to buy their supplies in this crowded store for supplies, tradebooks and personal items.

El Corral has the opportunity of getting new quarters. It will be housed in the main floor of the new Julian McPhee College Union Building, scheduled to open in the fall of 1970. The new facilities will provide a much larger area for both display and storage.

With the continuing rapid growth of students bookstore facilities could again be overcrowded by an estimated as early as 1974. This is why the new store should include an efficient layout plan which will help to avoid costly and backbreaking complications in the future.

Time study alleviates bookstore congestion

Do you ever wonder how much time you spend waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We're all old waiting in line? We've all been there. It's not always easy to avoid costly and backbreaking the students would do to develop a store that would include an efficient layout plan which will help to avoid costly and backbreaking complications in the future.

The report was repeated a call for an increasing number of students bookstore with the same facilities as 1967 has to serve a greater number of customers than three years ago in addition to an increasing number of departments.

The national average of available space per student in a college store is 3.5 square feet; El Corral, said the report, has an average of 1.5 square feet per student. Such a comparison shows what happens at the beginning of each quarter when most of the students have to buy their supplies in this crowded store for supplies, tradebooks and personal items.

El Corral has the opportunity of getting new quarters. It will be housed in the main floor of the new Julian McPhee College Union Building, scheduled to open in the fall of 1970. The new facilities will provide a much larger area for both display and storage.

With the continuing rapid growth of students bookstore facilities could again be overcrowded by an estimated as early as 1974. This is why the new store should include an efficient layout plan which will help to avoid costly and backbreaking complications in the future.

A park for the people where weeds are now

The Majors and Minors barbershop quartet represented the brightest item on the agenda at Monday night's City Council meeting as they sang two old standards from the Gay Nineties era in an attempt to arouse city interest concerning the 19th Annual Home Concert to be presented here April 17th.

"Hello," and "Ida," preceded the more serious business that dragged on for the next six hours. Among the more prominent items on the agenda was a request from a group of students, led by Joe Boud, an architecture major, for a "Mini-Park" to be constructed at the corner of Hutton and High Streets in the Hawthorne section of the city.

Boud stated that the cost to the city would be limited to a charge of $25 a month for rent. He noted that the area is now an empty lot but with reconditioning, could be made into a respectable and scenic place that would "attract the older people of the community as well as the young." The main problem brought forth by the council was one that dealt with water conservation. Counselman Emmett Blake suggested that the group "go ahead and pull weeds" and other menial duties while they wait for a decision from the Planning Commission for the official go-ahead.
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

World over sports

Editor:
I read with interest and increasing aggravation the article, "Successful athletics without support? Well just forget it." in the March 4 issue of the Mustang Daily. Personally, basketball is my favorite spectator sport; I find the combination of individual skill and teamwork at such a fast pace extremely exciting.

However, I take umbrage at the attitude of so many sports writers and people in college athletic departments that the rest of the students are letting the school down by not attending the games—in this particular case, the varsity basketball games.

I'm sure Coach Neale Stoner is "honest," "trustworthy," and "fine person." I am sure his record is his own. But not attending the basketball games is hardly synonymous with an assault on the coach's character.

I imagine he is doing what he loves best—just as many students, after a busy week of class assignments and weekend chores, what they love best: going to the flicks, drinking beer, serving free breakfasts, reading, making love, watching "Gillian's Island," or whatever else college students do on weekends. Probably some even study.

In addition, not caring about "the athletic feature of the college" does not imply that one is a "disloyal student." The fact that one's college has a superb athletic team or teams that put it on the map is handy for starting conversations. If one hopes to be in a strange area among strange people, and lost for words.

But the implication that a winning team somehow makes a school better is absurd.

A winning team is a better coach, better players, more money available for athletic scholarships, lesser grade inflation, better good luck, etc. But I do not see how a spectator can take intense personal satisfaction from knowing that the fact that his team wins.

The players certainly can. They work hard for it because they want to, not because the student body wanted them to. The spectator can appreciate fine athletic skill, he can experience the thrill of the action vicariously, and he can fervently hope that his school's team wins because they are trying so hard. But the win does not reflect on his own cerebral integrity and character. It just makes him feel good—perhaps proud, if he feels that his support has been instrumental in the victory.

I imagine he is one of the players playing because they like it and want to, or because they happen to be good and can get a college education through being on an athletic scholarship. They are not performing a public (college) service. Certainly there is no obligation on the part of the students to support it.

If, however, a student goes around complaining about the "bad basketball team," he is indeed responsible to support its own and show his interest, because apparently it is very important to him that the team is successful. If he works for the worth of his school partly by the success of its athletic teams, then he is somewhat responsible for their support. Basketball players do not attend English Club, by why should I? Incidentally, the band was probably doing "their thing," practicing for the splendid concert which they presented, with standing room only, on February 27 in the Little Theater.

Students at Cal Poly are seriously pursuing their own university careers, and it is to their own obligation. The basketball players are doing the same thing on the court: they are working hard at the science of playing good basketball, and it is not an easy task. I admire their tenacity and their sportsmanship in spectator sports. I do object to the misplaced values we in our society of interest, and it is to their own that they obliterate themselves. The basketball players are doing the exact thing on the court, and it is not an easy task. I admire their tenacity and their sportsmanship in spectator sports. I do object to the misplaced values we in our society of interest, and it is to their own.

But the implication that a winning team somehow makes a school better is absurd.

A winning team is a better coach, better players, more money available for athletic scholarships, lesser grade inflation, better good luck, etc. But I do not see how a spectator can take intense personal satisfaction from knowing that the fact that his team wins.

The players certainly can. They work hard for it because they want to, not because the student body wanted them to. The spectator can appreciate fine athletic skill, he can experience the thrill of the action vicariously, and he can fervently hope that his school's team wins because they are trying so hard. But the win does not reflect on his own cerebral integrity and character. It just makes him feel good—perhaps proud, if he feels that his support has been instrumental in the victory.

I imagine he is one of the players playing because they like it and want to, or because they happen to be good and can get a college education through being on an athletic scholarship. They are not performing a public (college) service. Certainly there is no obligation on the part of the students to support it.

If, however, a student goes around complaining about the "bad basketball team," he is indeed responsible to support its own and show his interest, because apparently it is very important to him that the team is successful. If he works for the worth of his school partly by the success of its athletic teams, then he is somewhat responsible for their support. Basketball players do not attend English Club, by why should I? Incidentally, the band was probably doing "their thing," practicing for the splendid concert which they presented, with standing room only, on February 27 in the Little Theater.

Students at Cal Poly are seriously pursuing their own university careers, and it is to their own obligation. The basketball players are doing the same thing on the court: they are working hard at the science of playing good basketball, and it is not an easy task. I admire their tenacity and their sportsmanship in spectator sports. I do object to the misplaced values we in our society of interest, and it is to their own.

But the implication that a winning team somehow makes a school better is absurd.

A winning team is a better coach, better players, more money available for athletic scholarships, lesser grade inflation, better good luck, etc. But I do not see how a spectator can take intense personal satisfaction from knowing that the fact that his team wins.

The players certainly can. They work hard for it because they want to, not because the student body wanted them to. The spectator can appreciate fine athletic skill, he can experience the thrill of the action vicariously, and he can fervently hope that his school's team wins because they are trying so hard. But the win does not reflect on his own cerebral integrity and character. It just makes him feel good—perhaps proud, if he feels that his support has been instrumental in the victory.

I imagine he is one of the players playing because they like it and want to, or because they happen to be good and can get a college education through being on an athletic scholarship. They are not performing a public (college) service. Certainly there is no obligation on the part of the students to support it.

If, however, a student goes around complaining about the "bad basketball team," he is indeed responsible to support its own and show his interest, because apparently it is very important to him that the team is successful. If he works for the worth of his school partly by the success of its athletic teams, then he is somewhat responsible for their support. Basketball players do not attend English Club, by why should I? Incidentally, the band was probably doing "their thing," practicing for the splendid concert which they presented, with standing room only, on February 27 in the Little Theater.

Students at Cal Poly are seriously pursuing their own university careers, and it is to their own obligation. The basketball players are doing the same thing on the court: they are working hard at the science of playing good basketball, and it is not an easy task. I admire their tenacity and their sportsmanship in spectator sports. I do object to the misplaced values we in our society of interest, and it is to their own.
Diet transforms victim of creeping corpulence

BY DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)

You there, sir, with the pudgy midriff. How would you like to go on a diet that causes you to lose pounds as if by magic. If it works for me, it should work for you. I, for example, abhor any kind of menus, "do's and don'ts" and all of the other worthless details that make dieting so exasperating.

But I chose to exploit this system commercially. I probably must have made a small fortune. It isn't true, I have discovered such a dieting method. It is absolutely devoid of menus, "do's and don'ts", and all of the other worthless details that make dieting so exasperating.

Yet I chose to exploit this system commercially. I probably must have made a small fortune. But I, for example, abhor any kind of menus, "do's and don'ts" and all of the other worthless details that make dieting so exasperating.

So every day during the dieting period I usually had bread and eggs for breakfast, chicken for lunch and a casserole for dinner. Occasionally, for variety, I might order a vegetable plate, which I also found revolting.

Although hunger might drive me to try a few bites, never once did I give in. But I, for example, abhor any kind of menus, "do's and don'ts" and all of the other worthless details that make dieting so exasperating.

Last summer, however, I began growing a moustache which soon became such a fire brand that I was obliged to stop shaving. In doing so I felt victim of a creeping corpulence.

Last summer, however, I began growing a moustache which soon became such a fire brand that I was obliged to stop shaving. In doing so I felt victim of a creeping corpulence. Finally, last month, I stopped the West simplified one-step diet, and pared away the pounds as if by magic. If it works for me, it should work for you. I, for example, abhor any kind of menus, "do's and don'ts" and all of the other worthless details that make dieting so exasperating.

One teacher was asked to explain the idea of class to students. He told them about the importance of class. The students were encouraged to bring in articles or share experiences with the rest of the class. All possible sources of knowledge were used, which means everyone participated.

The activity is held on Tuesday and Thursday night in Engineering West, room 2. We felt a two hour evening class was best so if the class ran over it wouldn't conflict with another. Spunky said, "After all, this is the only service class the School of Architecture offers to non-major students."

The class is a progression of awareness. It began with awareness of small objects, like an orange. Students each picked up an orange, studied its shape, texture and general appearance. Each person became so aware of their orange that when they replaced their orange, they were able to find the same orange.

...
Senior card
For interested senior students, the senior class card entitles holders to attend a steak barbecue Friday night before graduation, the senior brunch on Saturday before commencement and the senior ball after the ceremony.

Actual value of the card is $3.75 and it is sold for $2.50, according to senior class representatives.

Business meeting
The student branch of the Society of Automotive Engineers will hold their monthly business meeting on Thursday in Science Building at 7:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be a representative from the American Bridge Division of U.S. Steel. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Crops meeting
The Crops Club will hold a special meeting in the Agriculture Building, room 220 at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Guest speaker will be Jack Stone, Lemore farmer and authority on the National Farmers Organization (NFO). The talk will center on the positive and negative aspects of the NFO. All interested students are invited to attend.

Food sale ends
The Home Economics doughnut and coffee sale will end this Friday. Doughnuts and coffee are 10 cents apiece and can be purchased in the lobby of the Math and Home Ec Building from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. every day this week.

Classified ads

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Cal Poly Mustang Daily

Payment in advance required. Minimum charge $1.00

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Lines</th>
<th>Minimum</th>
<th>Line 1</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>$0.75</td>
<td>$0.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>$1.25</td>
<td>$1.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>$1.50</td>
<td>$1.50</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add $0.25 per line thereafter

DEADLINES FOR COPY

Classified ads in the Mustang Daily Classified section are published on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month.

EVELYN WOOD READING DYNAMICS INSTITUTE

Free Introductory Speed Reading Lesson

We want you to decide for yourself the value of becoming a rapid reader through the use of the Evelyn Wood Reading Techniques.

For the first time we are offering a special one-hour introductory lesson to provide you with a glimpse of what it is like to be a rapid reader. You'll actually participate in the techniques that will improve your reading and comprehension. You'll find that there's no particular magic to becoming a speed reader...the real ingredient is mastering the proper techniques. Students, educators, businessmen and housewives, over 500,000 of them have mastered the Evelyn Wood method and the late President Kennedy was sufficiently convinced of its value to invite Evelyn Wood to the White House to train his staff. The only investment on your part is one hour of your time...we think that's a small price to pay for what could lead to financial profit and hours upon hours of enjoyment. Decide for yourself at a free introductory lesson.

ABSOLUTELY FREE - NO COST TODAY ONLY

You'll discover various study methods and procedures.

This is a Special One Hour Introductory Lesson.

You'll learn the rate of your reading speed.

You'll actually participate in techniques that will improve your reading speed and comprehension.

Today at 1:00, 4:00, and 8:00

At: Sands Motel
1930 Monterey (conference room)

Math tutoring
Tutoring for students in Math 100 through Math 241 is offered by the Mu Epsilon mathematics club. The tutoring is scheduled each week in the Math tutoring lab, room 105, Monday through Thursday, 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Intamurals Set
A Intramurals basketball tournament is scheduled to Tuesday, April 14 at 4:30 p.m. The tournament will be held in the handball courts, and permission is free. Participants will be required to supply their own gloves. T-shirts will be supplied.

Music preview
The Music Department will present a preview of the 1970 Homecoming Concert Thursday night College Hour in the Little Theater.

The hour-long concert will feature the Men's Choir and Collegiana, who will also be featured in the Homecoming April 17.

Rose Parade theme contest
Do you have a knack for colorful words, phrases or descriptions? Do you want to have your personal invitation published over the world? The Rose Parade Float Committee is looking for interested people to help generate the float theme, centered around the overall parade theme "Through the Eyes of a Child." The winning theme will entitle it's originator to two Rose Parade Game tickets, two Rose Parade tickets or the cash equivalent. Entry forms may be picked up in the lobby of the Administration Building, the TCU, the inn to and next to all Mustang boxes. For further information contact Gregory Lavern at 50-8607.

Firestone and Texaco Products

Brakes Realign
Batteries
Tires

Car Accessories
Scientific Tune-up

FREE PICK UP and DELIVERY

Benell's TEXACO
543-9712

Foothill at Santa Rosa
Company buys old cans

Screaming Yellow Zonkers 3/$1
Granny Goose Potato Chips 49c
TOP ROUND STEAK ..... $1.09 lb.

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
at WHOLESALE PRICES

TV-RADIO-STERO-HI FI-PARTS picture tubes—television & radio tubes & parts phone needles—recording tape—test equipment loos—stilton's bond equipment—antennas—masts return—changers—reels—enclosures
Sam's photo facts & technical books

SONY TAPE RECORDERS, TV's, RADIOS

MID STATE
Electronic Supply Inc.

543-2770

1441 Monterey
San Luis Obispo

Effective April 9 - 15

Jordano's Red Carpet Special

STAR KIST CHUNK
LIGHT MEAT TUNA
1/2 Cans

Limit one coupon per family

COUPON
Manson trial scheduled: court opens on April 20

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The trial of Charles Manson — the man who sent a band of hippies on murderous forays — is scheduled to start here April 20.

The state of California is expected to try to prove that Manson, who spent more than half his 35 years in reform schools and prisons, was engaged by the refusal of Terry Melcher, (the son of Doris Day) to sponsor his recording career that he ordered a group of his followers to kill everyone at Melcher’s house.

Melcher was not in his home the night of Aug. 9 last summer, but pregnant actress Sharon Tate, who was renting the Benedict Carseh house, was. So were three guests and a youth visiting the property’s caretaker. All died from vicious gun and knife attacks.

Ex-convicts who knew Manson in jail and the few people who call themselves the “Manson family” picture him in a different light.

“He didn’t do it, that’s all,” said Phil Kaufman, the producer of Manson’s new record album who met the defendant in a men’s room carrying his cowboy boots and jeans at McNeil Island. He was acting as his own station attendant told her. “They know who did it, and they know Charlie didn’t, but they want to prove a conspiracy.”

They may think they have a shot at the LaBiancas’ while the next night, Miss Atkins’ suggestion.

One of the family who visited Miss Atkins in jail said she told him, “It’s all a big movie, and I’m the star.”

The victims of Sicily’s B*t earthquake were spending their third winter in shacks and homes were being restored. They were bursting.

Rumors new cabinet ill *

Fascism. Right-wing politicians

The parties which mis-1

Réformateurs such a picture of a re-

The parties which mis-

It is agreed that chang-

Facing the crisis now

Government major1 **

It showed how weary Italians and the Senate proble-

ment are negcUmUon* ^

It had not come about in a

and the Senate proba-

It is often pr

these students must be

The victims of Sicily’s B*t earthquake were spending their third winter in shacks and homes were being restored; they were bursting.

Rumors new cabinet ill *

Fascism. Right-wing politicians

The parties which mis-

It is agreed that change^
Shaw returns to sports desk

Former sports information director Wayne F. Shaw returned to his old duties yesterday which he has been away from for almost a year.

Shaw will take over from George Ramos, a recent graduate of this campus who served as acting sports information director during the Winter Quarter.

Shaw, 43, first joined Cal Poly as assistant graduate manager in July 1966 with primary responsibilities in sports information and promotion of income-producing student activities. He became assistant sports information director for Indiana University at Bloomington last August after his predecessor at this campus, Douglas A. Gibson, returned from military leave. In December 1966 Gibson resigned to become public relations director of the Wyoming Farm Bureau.

Lachlan P. MacDonald, said Shaw will be responsible for all information services provided to the college's athletic programs, and will have some related duties with students working on college publications.

Spikers dominate stats

Track coach Dick Purcell and his words "this campus" have recruited quite a few top flight figures. Evidence of the Mustang's strength is obvious after one glance at the California Collegiate Athletic Association's statistics sheet.

The Mustang spikers lead the CCAA in 13 of its 18 events. Six of nine running events and six of seven field events are headed by Mustang men. The Mustangs also show a great deal of depth as many of the team members are tight behind their fellow competitors in the league stats.

In the running events Bobby Brown leads the conference with a 10.2 clocking in the 100 yard dash. John Haley in the 220 has posted a best of 21.6. Mathyas Michael leads in the 880 and the 2 mile. Ernie Holmes leads the 130 high hurdles with a time of 14.3 and the Mustang's 440 relay team tops the circuit with a 41.9 clocking.

In the field events the Mustangs have the top performer in all but the high jump. The best jump so far this season was by San Fernando Valley State's Roberto Perez at 6'9". Yet, the Mustangs could dominate this sport also if Reynaldo Brown, a member of the 1968 United States Olympic Team was eligible to compete.

Even without Reynaldo it doesn't appear as if anyone in the CCAA will stop the Mustang from going to the NCAA finals once again.
Ali stresses education

by UPI

Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said Sunday night American Negroes need as much education as possible to allow them to exercise true freedom.

"The prevailing condition among blacks in America is a lack of knowledge of self and that's one of the reasons why education is so important," he told an audience of about 1,200 at the University of San Francisco.

The audience was comprised of about 60 per cent black and 40 per cent whites.

"We need an education but not the kind that adds a storehouse of white men's masters," he added. "There are millions of blacks in America who are totally dependent on a white race. After 106 years of slavery, they don't have much as a foothold in their own."