It's Earth Day: a warning time

April 22 has been designated as "Earth Day," a time of warning.

As part of their personal contribution to the goals of the nationwide environmental teach-in, members of the Biological Science Department have formed the "Ad Hoc Environmental Speakers Bureau." Members of the biology faculty have donated a total of 30 hours of their time to speak on the topic of environment.

Any faculty member on campus willing to participate in the Environmental Teach-in by devoting their class time on either April 22 or 23 can do so by contacting Richard Krejsa at extension 2739.

The transformation is almost complete.

The physical changes on the Man's Gym have been completed by a crew from the Little Theater. The only thing yet to be changed is the atmosphere.

That will happen tonight at 8 p.m., as the lights go on and the curtain rises on this year's Home Concert. Six groups will contribute to changing that atmosphere from one of basketball rebounds and smells of sweat socks to one of the refinement of a concert hall.

The two largest of these groups are the Men's Glee Club, numbering 60, and the Women's Glee Club, numbering 84. Three of the other groups which will be performing that evening are drawn from these two glee clubs.

The "World Famous Majors and Minors" is the largest of these subnational groups, it numbers 12.

The M & M, as they refer to themselves, specialized in barbershop music and humor.

The Collegians Quartet and the Sextet are the other subnational groups. The Quartet, like the M & M, has its membership from the Men's Glee, while the Sextet members come from the Women's Glee.

The Collegians is the sixth group that completes the concert. It is a 16-piece dance band that specializes in music with the sound of the big bands. Though some of its repertoire comes from this by-gone era, a large portion of it is big band renditions of popular tunes.

Tickets for Friday night's performance are still on sale from members of the performing groups, at the TCU, and various stores throughout San Luis Obispo. They are $1.28 for adults and 78 cents for children and students.

Handout hang-ups

Handouts and fliers that are being distributed on campus by groups other than students and school recognized organizations are violating an administrative regulation and causing a trash problem in many classrooms.

The action on the matter culminated after complaints that a flier was causing "classroom litter-distraction and increased custodial work."

In a release from the campus informational service, instructions were given to refer to the associate dean director of business affairs, "persons observed distributing handbills" without the proper permit.

The future for Mustang Daily is a "daily" paper. Mustang Daily expanded to a four-day run this quarter, and starting fall quarter will be headed by a new editor-in-chief striving for a five-quarter will be headed by a new editor-in-chief.

Ian McCabe, the new editor announced by Publisher's Board last Thursday evening, is a senior Journalism major from Whittier. His long list of qualifications includes: editor-in-chief of his high school paper, sports editor of weekly paper in his hometown, editor of California Future Farmer, managing editor of Mustang Daily, member of publicity staff of Fine Arts Commission, recent nominee to California Arts Commission, and reporter for the past two-numbers for the Whittier Daily News.

"We'll be working for a cohesive unit from the members of our staff," stated McCabe. Headline positions for his daily staff will be: sports editor, Richard Boschetti; managing editor, Pat McCabe; advertising manager, Patricia Linden; and business manager, Robert Schwab.

McCabe stated his outline for organization as: "We will become issue oriented with close scrutiny allowed each issue. Also, we wish to inject some professional quality in a paper that will be relevant to the students."
Will Poly Royal value the dumps?

Many campus groups are out to put the school's best foot forward for Poly Royal by staging drives to clean up the trash and litter that has accumulated on the grounds.

What are people going to think when they walk through Poly Canyon and see the trash floating down Poly Creek or the beer cans in the bushes?

There's a creek clean-up set for tomorrow at 9 a.m. at the entrance gate to Poly Canyon. According to the sponsors of the event, everyone is invited to attend the clean-up which will last all day so that students can come whenever they find the time.

The clean-up is organized by Scenab Architectural Organization and the Ecology Action Committee but other campus organizations will also be participating.

"If you really enjoy the canyon and the creek now is your chance to act for conservation and to show the visitors at Poly Royal that we have a great campus with concerned students," state the sponsors.

Any questions concerning the event are directed to (543) 0660.

Mustangs try to end Fresno domination

Dick Purcell is hoping to accomplish tomorrow what he has been unable to do in four years as Mustang track coach. He will be looking for a triumph over Fresno State, a team that the Mustangs have not defeated under Purcell.

He will be looking for a triumph over Fresno State, a team that the Mustangs have not defeated under Purcell.

The meet will be the first utilizing the new, rubberized asphalt track here, and Purcell will be seeking to make the debut an impressive one for Mustang rooters.

Field events are slated to start at 1:30 p.m., and running events will begin at 2:15 p.m.

The competition figures to be close, with the Bulldogs appearing to have a slight edge on paper. However, Purcell admits that the final results could be "wild" explaining that each team has the capability to run away from the other.

Fresno won last year's meeting between the two schools 83-62. In 1966, when the Mustangs won the first of two consecutive CCAA titles, the Bulldogs did not show up for a scheduled contest, and the year before they dropped the 4x4 relay cost Purcell an apparent victory by five points.

TENNIS

Netters vie in CCAA Championship match

The Mustang and San Fernando Matador tennis teams will meet today in what will be the CCAA conference championship match. The Mustangs, hosting the match, are currently at the top of the standings with an unblemished 4-0 record. The Matadors are in second place, scoring a 3-1 match tally. Mustang John Rose will battle tough Steve Messmer in the number one position. Joe McGahan will face Matador George Benedict, Larry Mores will confront Bris Eisendrath, and Ed Veal, will be matched with Tight Taylor. Greg Piers will face Del Newquist, and Paulchers will battle Jeff Marshall.

In the last match that the Mustangs had with the Matadors, the result was a decisive win by the Mustangs 7-4.

Today, however, it will not be so easy. Messmer, number one man for the Matadors, who was not present for the last match between the two teams because of a serious virus will be competing in the meet.

This means that all of the Matadors will move down one spot, and will face weaker opponents than they did last time.

Whatever the result, it should be a close match, and if the Mustangs get support from the stands they should have that much better of a chance.

Spikers to run on new oval against Bulldogs

by PAUL SIMON

The men's and women's track teams have recently turned in some of their best marks of the season, according to Purcell. Poly won first place against Bulldogs and second place against Mustangs to run on new track.

The meet will be at noon at Poly Royal built by the department members, and the team will be minus the only regular hitting above average, having given up only four runs in 23 innings.

The Mustangs meet nine in a series that begins today, the most crucial baseball series of the season begins today.

The Mustangs host San Fernando Valley State College in a three-game set that may ultimately determine the champion of the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

Coach Augie Garrido has labeled the series "the most important of the season." The Mustangs, with a 4-1 conference record, need at least two wins in order to have a shot at a championship in NCAA action this year, but it is important to the individual members of the team. They have been going on since January by the department members, and the team will be minus the only regular hitting above average, having given up only four runs in 23 innings.

The team will be minus the services of first baseman Lee Smith, who was struck in the mouth by a ground ball at Chapman College last weekend. Smith had been-improving at the plate in recent games and was batting .270 when the accident occurred.

A non-league game played on the Mustang field Wednesday, San Diego State routed the locals 9-0. Tim Hayden hurled six and one-third innings and pitched two innings of shutdown ball.

The Aztecs struck for single runs in the first, second, and fifth innings before erupting for four runs in the sixth. The team was down to a hilt.

The Aztecs scored five runs in the first, but could not get the hit they needed. They put the ball well, but several defensive plays by San Diego State retained the shutout.

Steve Freeborn, just made from the junior varsity team to the varsity team, pitched a three-run single, and the team was on bases to up its season total to a

A rink is born in San Luis

Construction of an ice rink for use during Poly Royal is nearing completion by students in the Environmental Engineering Department.

The rink will be opened to the public during the two-day event, and will feature a contest Saturday at noon. Prizes will be awarded to the top three skaters.

Planning for the project has been ongoing since January by the department members, and has been patterned after the rink built by the Environmental Engineering Department four years ago.

A ten-ton chiller unit will keep brine flowing through pipes underneath the rink to maintain the ice.

The rink will be located between the Engineering West and Engineering Building. It is hoped that Poly Royal students will take advantage of its availability.

Students running the project are hopeful of arranging a figure skating demonstration by two professional skaters, although it is not yet known whether the exhibition will take place.

The rink will open at noon Friday and will remain in use until the end of Poly Royal. Stephen Dwyer is heading the project.

The rink will be one of many exhibits at Poly Royal built by the students here.
