in my judgement.

... student clientele with new del registers, there is a growing feeling of appreciation with many students, the reason... where, and in what to live for the next nine month academic year.

According to Robert Boswell, director of campus housing, the housing situation for 1971 students is "more critical today in my judgement, than in the last ten years." Boswell added that the student facing the toughest job of finding living quarters is one who is married and with young offspring.

On August 1st this year, students who had met the deadline to apply for on-campus housing, found no housing available.

"Of course, some housing, who could afford it if living in the city, may have been a better solution for an academic year... in the loss of time of those who applied for on-campus housing... I don't think they were interested in the possibilities... in the community, it is really not an option...
Timothy Leary, former California gubernatorial candidate, former professor of psychology at Harvard University and now former Mayor of the California Men's Colony, making good an escape last Saturday night.

Officials at the institution said that Leary was discovered missing from the west facility of the confinement center at 11:40 when a routine bed check was made.

Leary achieved international notoriety when he advocated the use of LSD-25 and the media fashioned him as the demi-god of the then blossoming flower power movement. The "high priest of LSD" as he gradually came to be known, was put behind bars when he was convicted of the felony possession of marijuana. He was sentenced to six months to ten years for the heinous crime.

By Sunday morning, local sheriffs had four cars and eight officers trying to follow up on only one piece of known evidence. Leary's clothes, which had been abandoned in a gas station two miles south of San Luis Obispo. His clothes had been discovered by an attendant at approximately 9:30 p.m. the night of the escape. Squeaking by the sheriffs decided that Leary had escaped sometime earlier than the bed check.

An affiliate at the Men's Colony, also the former home of Black Panther Huey Newton, said that Leary appeared to be in good spirits while serving his sentence and "kept in good shape by playing handball regularly."

Leary had served over a year of his sentence up to his escape. He had been paroled once.

Officials say that it appeared that Leary had no outside help. They did not account for the fact that managed to somehow travel several miles from the walls and then disappear entirely.

Leary, who is 49 or 50, depending on varying news sources, spoke at this campus on the topic of expanding the mind to the environment just before his arrest.

Leary had coined the now-famous "tune in, turn on and drop out" phrase. Authorities say that Leary had to climb a 10-foot chain link fence topped with barbed wire, to drop out of the Men's Colony.

Leary is known as the "high priest of LSD" and has been a leader in the.counterculture movement. He was convicted of marijuana possession and sent to the confinement center. His escape was discovered on Saturday night when a routine bed check was made.

Leary was known for his advocacy of LSD and other psychedelic drugs, and his influence on the counterculture movement. He was paroled once but was returned to prison for the remainder of his sentence. His escape was discovered early on Sunday morning, and authorities have been searching for him ever since.

Leary's escape has raised questions about the security of the confinement center and the handling of prisoners. Authorities are now searching for him in the area and have increased security measures.

Leary has been a controversial figure throughout his life, and his escape has sparked renewed interest in his work and legacy. He is known for his advocacy of psychedelic drugs and his role in the counterculture movement of the 1960s.
Letters to the editor

Educational mill rapped

Dear Editor:

Some weeks ago a man plodded into the office of one of the "higher administrators and said, "you know that teacher isn't doing it the way he should, we ought to get rid of him so he doesn't corrupt the youth." A look at Agnew's office? Not on your life!

This pleasant scene (although maybe not in this exact manner—"You heard 'bout him—sayas things like a commie—yeah can him—yes boss") takes place within our very own state college system regularly. Isn't it a pity that the only teachers we can have are those who are determined to turn out personality-less individuals who can tell you the exact page number where you can find Newton's Law of Universal Gravitation? Think not, then you are already spellbound by—what the "wisards" of the north country (no allusion to the trustees intended here) call learning.

Soon they'll give you a diploma and send you merrily on your way thinking you're a great guy because you were able to memorise all 491 pages of the CRC Mathematical Handbook. It would seem our "learned" superiors (regretfully I must admit they are advanced in one thing—Age) want only an organism of their own.

Organism was the intended word here not orgasm.) They want someone to go out and create in their own image a model student. What fantastic weapon does the PhD. man have at his disposal to mold with?

I want to learn something. No, I don't mean how to memorise 49 pages of poetry or how I should take that guy because he's an easy grader. I want to be able to speak intelligently about a topic as if it were my own, as if I was the one who discovered it. What I want is some life put into that incredibly dead body they call an education. Instead of helping me to find what I want they try to substitute a ridiculous farce put on by those long-winded concerned with how many degrees they have after their names.

Instead of firing teachers we need to get rid of those pompous asses or at least lump them all together so they can praise each other and I won't have to do it.

Welfare plan denies voting

UPI-Senate leader Jack Schrade says he may introduce legislation to prohibit habitual welfare recipients from voting in elections.

"I'm looking at it and when I receive additional support I certainly will," Schrade told newsmen Sunday at the Republican State Central Committee's semi-annual convention.

Schrade told the 1,200 delegates he is "definitely opposed" to persons "who are not paying their fair share of government" telling the "tax-payers and property owners of California how to run their state."

The San Diego Republican said 22 per cent of Californians own property and the "the largest majority" of the remaining 78 percent "are receiving some sort of government subsidy."

Schrade said welfare recipients look out for their own interests at the voting booth. "They're not going to shoot Santa Claus," he said, "and that produces terrific problems."

In his remarks to the convention, the Senate president pro tempore said, "I'm not trying to deprive anyone of his vote."

But later he told newsmen: "I'd have no objection to the people who are taking advantage of welfare of subsidy programs being relieved of the vote. When they were lucky gainfully em­ployed again I'd have no objection to giving them their vote back."

Schrade said he thought a person should be on welfare "a few months" before he had his voting rights suspended.

Offered for the first time last Spring, IE 433X brought together 26 students from the departments of Agriculture, City and Regional Planning, Social Science, Mathematics and Computer Science, along with a group of consulting engineers.

Concerned about today's public problems? Want to find some answers? IE 433X, Public Problem Project Systems Engineering, is a "systems" approach to the problems of today. The course will explore and explain the systems project concept and the significance of multidisciplinary analysis of a problem.

In his remarks to the convention, the Senate president pro tempore said, "I'm not trying to deprive anyone of his vote."

Each week, two class meetings were devoted to group dynamics and problem solving and the third class meeting was devoted to lectures on non-mathematical studies of the systems approach and the study of the capabilities of available quantitative methods and their application to actual problems.

Mid-point in the quarter, the entire group chose a problem to try and solve using all the methods they previously had been studying.

IE433X will be taught by Dr. Donald Morgan, of the Industrial Engineering Department, on Tuesday and Thursday, 1:30 to 3:00 and is offered only to non-engineers.

A brochure describing the Educational Opportunity Program on campus is now available for those who wish to apply under the special provisions of the program. Richard A. Martinez, director of the campus program, said that minority students are especially welcome to make applications.

"Any ethnic minority or low-income individual in California may be eligible," Martinez said. The program is for residents of California with priority for graduating high school seniors in the Central Coast—Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, and Ventura counties—but applicants are also accepted from the entire state.

Martinez noted that a student does not have to be academically in the top half of the high school graduating class, and that other college entrance requirements may be waived under the program. However, applicants should be able to show that they have potential for success in an academic program.

Through the EOP, the student receives support in tutoring, curriculum advisement and counseling, health references, housing, admissions guidance, financial aid, job placement, and other services depending on individual needs.

General tutoring is provided by a number of volunteer students, by student organizations, faculty and staff members, and by paid tutors. Special help is offered in mathematics and English.

Martinez said enrollment in this campus' program, which commenced two years ago, increased from 22 to over 40 students during the past year. He expects approximately 100 minority and low-income students to be enrolled through the program during the coming academic year.

Copies of the brochure may be obtained by writing to: Educational Opportunity Program, California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo, 93401, or by stopping by the EOP office in the administration building.

Prospective applicants are also invited to visit the EOP office on the campus administration office for an interview with Martinez or assistant EOP Director William Carl Wallace. The information brochure may also be requested by telephoning 540-2064.

Sirhan's mother asks for Jordan visit ok

UPI - Mrs. Mary Sirhan, mother of convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan, said recently her son was disappointed that she was not allowed to fly to Jordan to talk to Arab guerrillas.

Arriving here after a 45-minute prison visit with Sirhan in San Quentin, she said, "He was upset because he believed that I could save those lives.

Mrs. Sirhan, accompanied by attorney Luke McKissack, attempted last week to fly to Jordan following unconfirmed reports that Arab guerrillas, who were holding 178 hostages aboard two hijacked jetliners, had demanded the release of her son.

State Department officials revoked their passports after they arrived in New York saying their actions could affect foreign relations.

McKissack, who has represented Sirhan during appeals, called the State Department action a "violation of personal rights."

GET A SAILBOAT!!
Dear Student:

In an effort to keep our congestion in the bookstore down to a mild panic, we are urging all new students to come in and buy their books and supplies before the first day of classes. The returning students can vouch for how panicky it can get!

We have booklists available which list all of the books required by each class. And the clerks will be very happy to assist you in the selection of the proper books and materials that you may need.

During the first ten days of the Fall Quarter, we will be open 16 hours a day—from 7:45 a.m. until 10:45 p.m. We are not crowded during the evening hours, so if we are too crowded during the day, please come back then.

We also have the 1970-71 Catalogues now on sale. They can now be picked up by those students who ordered them during the summer. If possible we will have them available in the registration area on the afternoon of September 16th and all day on September 18th, for the mailorders.

We hope to be seeing you soon.

Sincerely,

Lunatics' halt raises

A state college trustee said faculty members who did not get salary raises this year are "sharing the consequences of the mal-performance by the lunatic fringe."

Dudley Swim said the legislature deserves strong support for denying the increases. Responding to a letter from the chairman of the academic senate of Sacramento State blaming state college chancellor Glenn Dumke for the lack of salary increases, Swim said "the role of the chancellor is not that of an automatic lobbyist-advocate for the personal aspirations of faculty activists inside or outside of the academic senate."

"Regrettably, many good and deserving faculty members are now sharing the consequences of the mal-performance by the lunatic fringe."

Growers plot union fight

A newly-formed organization of small growers vowed Sunday to oppose unionization "by any means available" as Cesar Chavez worked on new labor contracts with 13 major Salinas Valley vegetable firms. "Union intimidation, coupled with violence, have turned this once productive area into an armed camp," said Jack Hayes of King City, chairman of the new Salinas Valley Independent Growers.

"The small growers are caught in the middle of a grower-shipper-labor battle," he added for his 200-member organization.

Hayes also said that Chavez "is responsible for turning the valley into a dueling ground for the AFL-CIO and the Teamsters when neither organization represents the agricultural workers."

While Hayes was talking, Chavez and his AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee were bargaining with two large lettuce growers, a firm that produced artichokes and 10 strawberry growers. He already has signed Inter Harvest Inc., the valley's largest lettuce producer.

Chavez' union struck firms holding contracts with independent Teamsters Union, claiming workers favored his organization and were denied a choice when growers signed with the Teamsters.

Because of the walkout, lettuce shortages have boosted the wholesale price to $6 per carton, an increase of 100 per cent.
Reagan vetoes state lakes bill

Gov. Ronald Reagan today vetoed a bill that would have put many California lakes off-limits to fishermen.

The bill by Sen. Ran. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, was amended by Assembly Eugene A. Chappie, ft-Cool., in the last hectic days of the 1970 legislative session to allow land developers to deny fishermen access to lakes created by dammed streams.

It would have immediately affected the Lake Wildwood tract under construction near Grass Valley in Nevada County by Boise Cascade, a billion dollar land development firm.

Boise created a lake on the property designed for the exclusive use of tract owners by damming a stream. But under terms of a 1917 law, fishing access of such streams cannot be denied to the public.

Lagomarsino asked Reagan to veto the bill. Chappie said that if it “casts a cloud” on the rights of fishermen to use some areas now available it should be “put to sleep” until next session.

Reagan, in a formal statement, said he vetoed the bill because Lagomarsino told him It “went far beyond his original intent in introducing the bill.”
New masters program in business and engineering

Ability to change is a key to academic relevance, according to California State Polytechnic College President Robert E. Kennedy.

This fall Cal Poly will introduce a variety of new programs aimed at keeping students up-to-date in careers ranging from ecology-oriented plant protection to media specialties in photojournalism and broadcasting.

The fall, 1970, quarter, which began Sept. 14 will be the first for new Master's degree studies in engineering and business administration. The programs are in addition to graduate degrees Cal Poly has previously offered in agriculture, applied mathematics, biological sciences, education, English, home economics, mathematics, and physical education.

New to the college's undergraduate degree programs this fall is a program leading to the bachelor's degree in transportation engineering. It brings to 43 the number of bachelor's degree curricula available to students at the college.

In addition to catalog descriptions, the college distributes fact sheets describing each program, since new students attending Cal Poly must choose their major field of study upon application for admission.

"The student's choice of studies at Cal Poly has continuously changed and expanded over the past 20 years," Dr. Kennedy noted. "We have seen subjects such as agriculture and engineering become progressively more specialized. There has been a similar development in science and communication."

Many of the degree majors at Cal Poly are designed so that a student may specialize by election a specific group of courses in an option or concentration within his or her major program.

Such flexibility of curriculum gives the Cal Poly student an opportunity to pursue special interests and qualify for new job opportunities.

"We hope that the student's involvement in practical aspects of a future career will help bring about a deep commitment to the field, or result in a decision to choose another area of endeavor," he noted.

"We have been doing this for so long that it seems routine, but some other college presidents I speak with consider it one of the innovations in higher education," the Cal Poly president said.

This fall the college will offer the following Bachelor of Science and Master of Science Degree course concentrations for the first time:

- Concentration in Plant Protection under the BS degree in Crop Science.
- Concentration in Manufacturing under the BS degree in Mechanized Agriculture.
- Concentration in Management and Sales under the BS degree in Mechanized Agriculture.
- Concentration in Service and Teaching under the BS degree in Mechanized Agriculture.
- Concentration in Public Relations-Advertising under the BS degree in Journalism.
- Concentration in Photo Journalism under the BS degree in Journalism.
- Concentration in Broadcast Media under the BS degree in Journalism.
- Concentration in General Agriculture under the MS degree in Agriculture.

Music groups seek singers and musicians

For those students who wish to satisfy their musical appetites, next week will offer opportunities for all genders of vocal cords. Among the groups that will be having tryouts will be the Women's Glee Club, Men's Glee Club and the Collegians, the campus dance band.

The Women's Glee Club is under the direction of Harold Davidson. It is an 85-voice group which performs at College Hour concerts, the Home Concert, and an annual spring tour. According to representatives of the group, no previous singing experience is required. The group meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 pm to 5:30 pm in room 218 of the Music Building.

The Men's Glee Club is another 85-voice group which performs for various concerts on campus and also tours the state. There is no previous singing experience required to join the group. Men's Glee rehearses on Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:30 pm to 8 pm. Tryouts will be held Sept. 21, 22 and 23 in room 218 of the Music Building. The Men's Glee Club had been using the range for almost 15 years. Then, one year, the range failed to pass a yearly inspection by Fort Ord representatives, claiming the side walls were too thin and lacking sufficient armor. "Just why the rifle range on campus was suddenly deemed unsafe is still unknown," commented Samuel Thoman, president of this school's Rifle Club, "but after over a year of problems, we are finally able to use the range again."

"During the 1968-69 school year," Thoman continued, "the Rifle Club and ROTC worked together to bring the range up to specifications."

Student and staff prices move up to newer heights

Higher fees for students, faculty, and staff will take effect at California State Polytechnic College during the Fall and Winter Quarter.

An announcement issued recently by the college lists fee changes for campus parking; Associated Students, Inc., membership; facilities use; materials and services; and tuition for out-of-state and foreign students.

All of the revisions, except that for campus parking permits, affect college students only. The parking fee revision eliminates a special rate for part-time faculty, staff and students. Students, faculty and staff will pay $0 per quarter for on-campus parking.

For the average student registered for six or more units of study this fall the total cost of basic fees, exclusive of campus parking, room, and board will be $84. The same fees a year ago cost $50.

The greatest effect of the newly-announced fee increases will be on part-time students who are enrolled for less than six units of course work. They will pay a total of $31 for basic fees compared to $24.50 last fall.

Also announced this week was a further change in the Materials and Service Fee, which will be $936 per quarter for all students during the Fall Quarter.

Teachers in abundance
job market now flooded

by Jim Wood

In one of the Bay Area's largest school districts there are 30 applicants for every job.

In San Francisco, teachers who think they have been hired are learning that the district must now cut back, saying they will be only substitutes.

In Los Angeles, 3,000 school employees are being dropped because of a $42 million budget cut.

For the first time in years, California and the nation as a whole are being faced with a surprising crisis in education: a definite surplus of teachers.

The California Teachers Association estimates that in this state alone there are 5000 more teachers than job openings.

More than 100 school districts have more teachers interested in working than there are openings, according to a CTA survey, covering 464 districts and not including the giant Los Angeles district.

The tragedy is that qualified teachers who have invested years of their lives in securing adequate training now cannot find employment. The opportunity is that California still—despite what seems to be a glut on the employment market—needs more teachers.

"When 45 other states already outranked California in desirable pupil-teacher ratios, the staff reduction in more than 100 districts will mean further dilution of the educational opportunities for every child," says Jack D. Rees, the CTA's state executives secretary.

In the East Bay's Richmond Unified School District which has 41,000-plus pupils and includes enrollment from most of western Contra Costa County, there are more than 30 applicants for every teaching job filled.

For the school years beginning in 1968 and 1969, San Francisco was a safety valve for the pressure of increasing teaching job demand. The district was hiring an additional 300 teachers a year in an effort to reduce class size.

But this year the district took what it says was a moratorium from the program and administration suddenly learned it has hired more teachers than it has openings. Its solution was to make the new teachers substitutes—and cross its collective fingers hoping that more openings will appear.

What's behind this dramatic oversupply of teachers?

According to State Supt. of Public Instruction Max Rafferty, who has made a study of the problem, the rapidly declining birthrate has crossed stars with that baby boom of the post war years.

As a result, there are more and more people in their early 20's trained to be teachers while at the same time there are fewer and fewer students.

"I estimate that by the mid-1970's there will be two or three teachers for every teaching job in California," Rafferty said.

"The nation then will have two choices: either release these teachers onto the job market to shift for themselves into jobs on the assembly line—or to reduce class sizes, accepting the accompanying expense, and improve the nation's level of education."

A study relating to the increased proportion of students transferring to The California State Colleges as juniors and seniors has been initiated by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke. The study will attempt to answer this question: Are present admission standards for transferring to a State College at the junior and senior level selecting students who are likely to succeed?

Related to this are two additional questions:

1. Are students who transfer to a State College as juniors or seniors as well prepared for upper level work as juniors and seniors who started at a State College as freshmen?

2. Are students who transfer into a State College as juniors or seniors but who would have been ineligible to enter as beginning freshmen as successful as students whose entire higher education has been in a State College?

State Colleges presently admit transfer students with a minimum grade point average of “C” in at least 60 units of college credit, regardless of whether they would have been eligible as beginning freshmen. (To be admitted as a freshman, a student must rank in the top one-third of his high school graduating class.)

The study will compare records between students who enrolled initially in a State College with a 10 per cent sample of 86,087 upper division (junior and senior) transfer students who entered in Fall 1969.

“During the past six years upper division transfers to The California State Colleges have increased 89 per cent,” Chancellor Dumke said. “Current projections indicate that this trend will continue.”

Chancellor Dumke said courses scheduled to meet freshmen and sophomore needs increased 94 per cent between 1964 and 1969. Meanwhile the number of freshmen and sophomores increased only 19 per cent.

Chancellor Dumke said an interim report on the findings of the transfer student study is scheduled for completion this fall. Additional studies will be conducted on a periodic basis.

Troops cut by War lull

The United States cut its troop strength in Vietnam to 396,000 men last week, the lowest level since early 1967, the U.S. Command announced today.

But not as many men went home as might have been expected from the sizable redeployments of air strength and infantry battalions announced during the period, military spokesmen said.

The command also announced today that three more Marine units involved in aviation support and logistical operations were going home as part of President Nixon's program to get U.S. troop levels down to 364,000 men by Oct. 15.

American spokesmen explained that the reason the United States was able to announce such massive redeployments at the closure of two complete air wings and a marine air group last week, without reducing troop strength commensurately, was the bulk of the men are reassigned.

School cuts by Reagan

Unruh, in a statement, said the governor should make emergency funds available to restore $6 million in cuts from "a critically important state reading program."

"Schools are opening and when the child with a reading problem goes to school there will be no one able to teach him to read. The teacher the state should be paying to teach him to read won't be there--a victim of Ronald Reagan's cuts in the Miller-Unruh Reading Act."

NEW YORK TIMES—

In some parts of the country marijuana appears to be making inroads on the sale of liquor. While most tavern owners and liquor salesmen deny theJoint has replaced the jigger, or ever will, there are signs of at least a partial trend around the country toward drugs at the expense of drinks.

A beer distributor in Denver said that 1969 sales at one college tavern were down 27 per cent, a 1967 base. They were also down 53 per cent at a second place near campus and 71 per cent at a third.

Evil People, a Miami discotheque, is doing well, but the assistant manager, Robert Salter, sees evil portents in the sweet smoke that gathers over his drinkers' heads. "Marijuana spells disaster to the liquor trade," he said. "If they legalize it, the liquor business is dead.

According to the management, the paper will differ from those of syndicated columns will be introduced into the editorial pages, one column for example will be a draft information column written by two practicing attorneys whose practice is limited to draft cases.
Argentine government headed for democracy

UPI—After more than four years of military government, Argentina appears to be taking the first steps in the long road back to constitutional democracy.

The hardest problem for the government of President Roberto Marcelo Lavin is the same that plagued his political and military predecessors for the past 16 years—what to do with the followers of former dictator Juan Domingo Peron.

As Lavin prepares for a series of conferences with former Argentine presidents to discuss the best way for the nation to return to ballot-box democracy, the topic of Peron is likely to head the agenda.

Peron, ousted in September of 1966, is still the strongest political force in Argentina. Most observers agree that if free elections were held today, Peron would still be a key factor in determining who would win.

Argentines have been allowed to vote for president twice in the past 15 years. Both times Peron and his followers were forbidden from naming a presidential candidate. Peron, however, played a key role in both elections.

When Arturo Illia was elected in 1964, many of his votes came from Peronist supporters who obeyed the leader’s mandate to vote for him.

Four years later, Peronist support was not enough to allow a Peronist, elected governor of the province of Buenos Aires, to take office.

In 1968, Arturo Illia was elected president by a slim majority of the electoral college. He was supported by a coalition of anti-Peronist parties. Less than three years later the military also ousted him.

One of the factors apparently involved in Illia’s ouster—according to reports at the time—was his alleged suggestion that Peron be allowed to participate in Argentine elections. Since then, Argentina has been governed by the military. Gen. Juan Carlos Onargia ruled from June 29, 1966 to June 28, 1970, and was violently opposed to holding elections.

Cash trouble

UPI—California state government spent $361,441.50 more than it took in during the last fiscal year, state Controller Howard Flournoy disclosed recently.

In a report on the condition of the state’s general fund cash box, he said the state spent a prevailing period with a surplus of $937,140.362.

But he said that the state spent the fiscal year last June with a surplus of only $306,923.140. And, the full sum is budgeted for expenditure.

"It is clear that our surplus is considerably lower this year,” Flournoy said in a statement, “meaning that during the year the state spent more than it took in.”

Democrats and some Republican including Assembly Speaker Robert T. Managan, have warned of the possibility of a tax increase next year to pay for government.

Coach sets Danes

Cal Poly’s new head track coach, Steve Simmons, was far from the recruiting wars this summer. Simmons had to get in his recruiting hurriedly after accepting the Cal Poly job in June and prior to leaving for Europe where he was preparing the Danish AAU track and field team for a series of meets.

One of the meets that Simmons groomed the Danish team for was the World University Games staged August 30 to September 3 at Turin, Italy. He also coached the Danish team in the European Junior Championships September 13-14. Simmons will return to San Luis Obispo early next week.

At Cal Poly Simmons will succeed Dick Purcell, who guided the Mustangs to an unprecedented three straight NCAA College Division national titles, three straight conference (CCAA) championships as well as the 1986 conference cross country crown.

Simmons comes to Cal Poly from Chapman College in Orange, Calif., where he has been assistant track coach since 1987. While there he helped develop four All-Americans in the sport. He has been an instructor at Bret Harte junior high school in Los Angeles since 1987.

The 17-year-old new Poly head coach won the Ohio state high hurdles title at Roosevelt high in Dayton by 1981. The two-year track letterman played two years of basketball at Los Angeles City College from 1981 to 1983 earning all-conference honors. His track competition was limited to one year due to knee surgery. Moving on to Chapman College in the fall of 1983 he lettered twice in basketball and track qualifying for All-American recognition by placing fourth in the NCAA College Division high hurdles.

He attended graduate school at Cal State Fullerton obtaining his teaching credential in 1987. In addition to his coaching and teaching duties in the physical education department, he will teach a course on the culture of the Afro-American child.

Football team readying

In reference to Friday’s opening game with Cal Lutheran of Thousand Oaks, Harper said, their record is good. They have won 43 of their last 60 games and for two years running they have been the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 3 champions.

According to Harper, Cal Lutheran has a lot of new football players..."and some are extremely talented." An example cited by Harper is Ben Lockhart, a six-foot, 120 pound back with great power. Quarterback Rick Scott plays a solid passing game and has also proven to be a strong runner.

Gridders fight for starting position

Sixty-six athletes reported when Coach Joe Harper launched his third season as head football coach at Cal Poly. The first three days were spent in shorts and tee shirts in accordance with NCAA regulations. Workouts were slated at 9:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Friday’s opening session stressed physical conditioning including the running of 5-yard sprints and quarter miles on a repeat basis.

“Our first three days stressed conditioning. We did considerable running and also used the period for orientation to our system,” Harper said.

The Mustangs are preparing for their 52nd season of football. Heading into the pre-season training period Coach Harper allows that his 1970 edition “has more potential” than either of his first two outfits which have posted 7-3 and 6-4 records the last two years.

But while the upcoming team bristles with potential it is less experienced than either of his previous Mustang outfits. “As we entered pre-season work we also lacked real leadership,” Harper said.

Among the 52 candidates for positions are 23 letterman, four All-California Collegiate Athletic Association selections in 1969 head up the cast. They are offensive tackle Vic Ecklund, defensive tackle Mark Bindel, linebacker Dan Johansen and corner back Jon Silverman.

There are no returnees at middle guard where all-league tackle Bindel will be used on an experimental basis. He’ll vie with Wayne Robinson, 6-1, 221, soph from North Fork by the way of Sliding high at Tuliphouse and Dave Billingsley, 5-10, 190, soph from Lemoore. Bindel is a 6-1, 200-pound senior from Bakersfield. Contesting for the slotback position will be American River transfer Stan Fraser, 6-2, 205-pound junior from Sacramento, along with letterman Pat Harrison, 6-1, 185, junior from St. Helena, and soph Dan Caccavale, 6-4, 185, Martines.

At quarterback there are senior Don Milan, 6-2, 186, from Banta Ynez and junior Steve Brennan, 5-9, 170, junior from Lodi. Tailback duties will be in the capable hands of Joe Nigos, 180, senior from Duor. Tight end will be manned by Mike Stokes, 6-1, 181, senior from Salinas.

Manning the offensive tackles will be Jim Turner, 6-2, 205, junior from La Mirada, and Vic Ecklund, 6-2, 200, senior from Riverside. At the guards will be Phil Kenney, 6-4, 205, senior from Orinda and Duane Crustal, 6-1, 219, senior from Huntington Beach. Anchoring the line center will be George Hurley, 6-4, 210, senior from Taft.

The veteran defensive tackles are Keith Smith, 6-1, 226, senior from Bakersfield, and Jim Robesky, 6-4, 210, senior from Bakersfield. The linebackers will be Dan Johansen, 6-9, 190, senior from Solvang and Glen Ochsner, 6-9, 196, senior from Tehachapi. Letterman corner backs on hand are Jon Silverman, 6-1, 176, senior from San Francisco, and Gary Fasilda, 6'10, 180, Junior from Alameda.

There’s a three-way battle for the fullback’s assignment, too. Locked in the contestation will be soph Mike Thomas, 6-0, 205, Sacramento, Bakersfield J.C. transfer John Miller, 6-10, 225, junior, and letterman Tom Klemens, 5-10, 190, junior from Whittier.
