Riles rips Rafferty

"California has the resources and the talent with which to build the best educational system in the world," said Wilson Riles, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as he carried his campaign for the superintendent's post into San Luis Obispo County Monday.

Riles, who faces incumbent Max Rafferty in the November election, spoke to townpeople on the steps of the San Luis Obispo Mission and said that, "Our kids deserve a better break than they have been getting under Max Rafferty."

He cited numerous examples of waste and mismanagement on Rafferty's record. According to Legislative Analyst Alan Post, widely respected for his independence and objectivity, reported this year that Max Rafferty has misrepresented reading test scores, wasted tax money and neglected to provide leadership to local school districts. Post stated that he is more critical of Rafferty than any other official he has studied during 21 years as Legislative Analyst.

Under Rafferty's administration, 65 per cent of California's elementary school children are reading below the norm set by the publisher of the Stanford Reading Tests, which are given to all children in these grades, Riles said.

Rafferty's claim that the scores of California children on the reading achievement tests administered to them have skyrocketed were attacked by Riles who said that the scores have advanced at a rate of one to four points every five years, "That's hardly skyrocketing."

He stated that school districts can no longer rely on funding from the local level entirely, and the state must begin to pick up at least 50 per cent of the cost of educating the state's children. The financing for this would come from the state's general fund with other spending moved down the list of priorities.

Riles, who has worked with the State Department of Education since 1956, said that he entered the race as one of two alternatives. The first was to leave the department and the second one, which he chose, was to challenge "the real problem, Rafferty."

He just recently added the Los Angeles Times to the more than 80 newspapers who have endorsed his candidacy. The papers range from the Times to the San Francisco Chronicle, the Sacramento Bee and the San Jose Mercury-News. Such personages as Joseph Alioto, Mayor of San Francisco, Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, President, San Francisco State College and Los Angeles City Councilman Tom Bradley have also endorsed Riles.

"It's been an uphill fight all the way but the people are responding," he said, "the real test will come in the next two weeks with the undecided voters. Right now I believe that we are in a dead heat for the office."

Riles ended in an unexpected note when Sen. Alfred E. Alquist who is the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, came up to him and gave him "A 100 per cent non-partisan endorsement" and a few words in support of his candidacy. Alquist was also in town campaigning.

Riles left San Luis Obispo to return to Los Angeles for more appearances Monday and he spent yesterday campaigning in San Francisco.

Union plans progress

The possibility of a tenants' union in San Luis Obispo moved one step closer to reality Monday night as students left a meeting with three representatives of a local realty firm and the chief building inspector for the city.

The meeting, sponsored by the Social Sciences Club, was held to give students a better idea of the housing situation and what they could expect in the future.

The real estate firm, Jim Filbin, Bill Borah and Nate Levin, were from the firm of Arnett and Broadbent and they painted a bleak picture of housing in this area.

According to Filbin, the housing problem in this community is of a historical nature dating back to World War II when service families found vacant garages the only facilities available.

High construction costs, high land costs, rising taxes and lenders who are reluctant to fund student housing because of the disturbances in Iota Viitas and Berkeley, were cited as reasons for the lack of housing in the community.

Filbin said that as the prime interest rates for borrowing money were lowered the area would experience more real estate development. At the moment, real estate developers are positioned sixth in priority for these rates when they are available. This chain places the federal government at the top of the list with state and local governments and big business not far behind.

ASI Vice-President Tony Turkovich stated that the school was presently housing 19 per cent of its student body on campus but was working to build more dormitories near the present facilities. To this, Levin added that one way to offset the housing crisis was for the administration to cut the enrollment. "You can't put this many people into an area that won't absorb it," he said.

Turkovich said that President Kennedy reported to the State College Board of Trustees that by 1972 Cal Poly will have an enrollment of 11,700 which is about 2,000 less than it now has.

Some students in the audience asked the panel what they could do about unsafe and faulty construction in apartments and houses which they are now renting. Jack Kellerman who is the chief building inspector for the city of San Luis Obispo said that if this was reported to his office he would have the premises checked but this action might lead to the house or apartment being condemned.

Collage competition in ecological Homecoming

In keeping with this year's Homecoming theme of "No deposit—No return," the Homecoming Rally Committee is sponsoring a Collage contest.

All residence halls, clubs and organizations are invited to participate. The contest is for each individual to express his ideas through the collage of the group. The collages will be used as a background for the announcement of the Homecoming Rally, Oct. 21, in the Grand Ave. parking lot. The Queen and her court will select the two best contributions to ride on the queen's Float in the parade.

1. Must be mounted on max. 1/4" thick plywood.
2. Must be no larger than 18 sq. ft.
3. Must have no side over 8' in length.
4. Must have no projections over 8' in length.

All Collages must meet with the following requirements:

All entries must be brought to the Rally Thursday, Oct. 21 between 8:00 and 8:30 pm. All entry slips must be in by Oct. 20.

Union use discussed

"How does the ASI justify charging students during registration for the College Union, when many, like their predecessors, will not be here to enjoy it?"

"It is for the use of alumni, students, staff and faculty. We hope that if any alumni are in the area, they will use the Union. It it my tax dollars from the North going towards supplying water for the South," said Tony Turkovich, ASI vice president, in a recent interview.

"The students will have the priority over the staff and faculty." Fortifying Turkovich's argument, Roy Gersten, business manager for the Associated Students, Inc., said, "The majority of students wanted the Student Union so it could be used to meet with faculty members outside a classroom atmosphere. You're going to have a hard time getting legally members inside if they have to pay. Many faculty and staff members are alumni, and besides, the College Union is controlled by the College Union Board of Governors, of which 10 of its fifteen voting members are students. This is to ensure the union is used in the best of student interests."

The solution is not final. Proposals have been made, according to Gersten, such as charging members of the faculty and staff who are not alumni of this college for using the Union or providing membership cards to the union for all faculty and staff members and their families, which would either be free or have a fee involved.

Editor:

I must say that Sue Dedicke's letter, published in last Monday's issue, reflects something that would be expected from a Sister Mary Nik-Nick in the Catholic convent.

In the first place, I had to laugh at her idea of nudity as being the naked navel, which is all that the advertisement shows. If this type of "nudity" is so shocking to her, I would hate to see her reaction to a "Playboy" centerfold. She might say that the "Playboy" type of display is her whole point, but who forcing the girl to pose for these pictures? Those publishers don't look into girls' dressing rooms with their cameras.

She made a point about women being slaves. Who makes the bread in the family only to watch it go down the drain in the hands of the wife? And what is about lower wages for women? Female lawyers, doctors, grocery checkers, cooks, etc., earn the same amount as men in the same fields.

A girl should take a whistle as a compliment, and if you don't like obscene (and I question her interpretation of obscene) advertisements, then don’t look at them. In her letter, she makes it sound as though men are rape-oriented. I think she will find that it is only sick people that actually rape. I mean, after all, rape does not mean non-marital sex. As for unwanted children, if she doesn't want them, why did she get pregnant in the first place?

In most cases, it is just as much the girl's fault as the guy's.

She said: "Men dominate the world and dislike anyone who challenges their position." If women are so superior, how come they are not dominating the world? And if I was President of the United States, and someone challenged me, I would assure myself that I want to protect my position. I can blame the exploitation of women's bodies on the female sex. After all, who are the ones that pose for these advertisements, then don't look at them. In her letter, she makes it sound as though men are rape-oriented. Three brothers held in killings

Paso Robles (UPI) — The body of a missing 4-year-old girl was found in a canal today after police arrested a man and a boy in connection with the slaying.

Divers found the body of blonde little Shelly Barnes in an irrigation canal near the valley farm town of Stratford in Kings County, 50 miles from her home.

The Archa brothers were arrested in Fresno late Monday. Officers said they were traced through an auto license number given by neighbors of the Barnes.

Indian culture class

The Social Sciences Department will be offering a new course this year titled California Archaeology (Ar-307). It will consist of two 1-hour lectures and two 3-hour laboratory per week. The lectures will deal with all aspects of archaeological methods and their applications to the prehistoric Indian cultures of California. Finally, the class will examine the archaeological remains of Indian culture in California over the last two hundred years. Laboratory sections are held on Saturday mornings on campus or in the field. Studies of stone working techniques, textiles, and aboriginal foods will be followed by a site survey and limited excavations in the field around San Luis Obispo.

Cal Poly is fortunate to be located in the former territory of the Chumash Indians, in most respects the most advanced group in California; an excellent area for student training in complex archaeology. Projected field trips may include visits to nearby examples of prehistoric rock art, Purisima Mission State Historical Monument, and the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History.

Scholarly civilization

by Vishesh K. Vaid-Raitaza

Mankind has experienced many civilizations, the hunting-gathering, the agricultural and in our time the Industrial. The next civilization would be a student oriented or scholarly civilization. Not that every one would be a student of some kind, although very many would be, but students being the dominant group in the scholarly community would be the trendsetters of the society.

From humble beginnings (once hunted like the early christians in the Roman empire) the scholars have come a long way to be the mangers of the established universities of today. They have also acquired great self-confidence during this process of uplift. In the next century the scholarly community of a university would grow many folds to become a city by itself. The university cities of the future would most probably have the same impact on the general population as the city states of the past. They would be the inventors of the value systems, the elites, the models, and the Meccas.

Many of the university cities would be self supporting. This would be necessary to preserve their independence of thought and action. As at present but at a much larger scale, the university cities would have consulting services to work on projects of specialized nature for the government or private agencies.

Some others perhaps would specialize in manufacturing, by having a large industrial sector within their boundaries. This arrangement would be similar to those of the newly established universities of India who have what is called the "Varity Estates" (meaning University Industrial Park) attached to them. The Varity Estates provide training facilities for young engineers and business graduates, as well as some means of financial support. Instead of the merciless profit maximization, the aim would be to maintain that profit level which is compatible with the maximization of the social welfare and utility.

One world Government

Mankind has for a long time cherished to establish one world government. Century after decade, this vision of oneness has mostly been fancied by the more enlightened. Most of the earth's population has perceived this idea unworkable. There seems a folly with most of us. What we do not see around us, we do not believe will ever work.

The university cities would be the crucibles for the generation of a new spirit of hope and, hopefully, strong new spirit for the establishment of one world government. These scholarly cities, formed of people who differ in many ways, working in great harmony and following their individual academic purists, would be the replicates of the new order. The university cities would be the show places to the unconverted populace of desirability and workability of the international system.

University Cities

The scholarly cities, being multi-national, would also be the great cosmopolitan cultural centers of the future. It would not be uncommon for the outsiders to visit the university cities for a weekend or longer. In fact they would be most welcomed by the scholarly community to get them to know the harmonious functioning of the international system.

Industrial Technology

The university cities would be actively involved in solving the problems associated with the stagnation of the industrial technology. Be they of the physical or social environment. After the second World War in the West and decolonisation in the East, the young people, especially students, all over the world, have asserted their ideas in almost every aspect of human activity. However their impact has not been as thorough and as strong as it should have been. Perhaps there is a reason for that. New ideas are only accepted after they have been firmly tested and experimented. In the next century the scholarly communities would function as the experimental grounds to test the abundance of ideas that the young scholars possess.

This is the second in series of articles on 21st Century Education by Vishesh K. Vaid-Raitaza, instructor in Industrial Engineering. Raitaza received his Masters Degree and Engineering Degree from Stanford University, where he also taught a course of the Impact of Technology on Social Systems of India.)
Foreign study offer

Have you considered spending next year as a student at a foreign university? Such an opportunity is offered to students of the nineteen California State Colleges through the International Programs, which is the official statewide unit of the California State Colleges.

The Programs have enrolled more than 2,000 students to date, and in the coming academic year, 1971-72, some 500 students will be studying in Europe, the Middle East, Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Students may study at the Schools in Marseille, Berlin, Heidelberg, Amsterdam, Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Florence, Granada, Madrid, Greece, Leningrad, Taiwan, Upsala, Ghana, Lebanon, Oxford University and other schools in England, Scotland and Wales, as well as in Columbia, Peru and Portugal.

To qualify for this unique study abroad opportunity, students must have upper division or graduate standing by September, 1971, and must have a good academic record (they must have earned at least 45 quarter units of 3.0, "B" work). Participation in the French, German, U.S.S.R., Spanish, South American and Portuguese programs requires proficiency in the language of instruction. Ordinarily two years of college-level study of the language, or the equivalent, will satisfy this requirement. The programs in England, Israel, Ghana, Italy, Japan, Lebanon, the Netherlands, Sweden, Greece and Taiwan do not require previous study in the language of the country.

Students enrolled for an academic year and are required to carry the full unit load commensurate with their undergraduate standing. The academic work is at least accredited toward elective units, and applicability of the units earned abroad toward degree requirements on our campus will vary, depending upon the student's major and department and upon the extent to which he has previously fulfilled specific degree requirements.

Students who wish to participate in the programs next fall can pick up the application forms from BAE 136, EW 109 (Architecture majors only) or Adm. 133, and must arrange for a personal interview with representatives from the Office of International Programs who will be here on Thursday, October 29, to conduct their interviews. Sign-up sheets for interviews are available with Dr. Fuad H. Tellew (BAE 136) on the basis of first-come, first-served.

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A hearing to restrict dissemination of the grand jury testimony that led to bribery and conspiracy indictments of eight city government officials and a campaign worker will be held Wednesday.

A formal order of "the type in the Sirhan Sirhan case" will be considered for draft. Superior Court Judge Leland Nielsen said today.

The contemplated order would forbid dissemination of testimony heard by the grand jury and would pertain specifically to the grand jury transcript, the judge said. The hearing will be before Judge Robert Staniforth of the Superior Court's presiding criminal department.

The 1,320-page transcript contains testimony that resulted in the indictment Oct. 8 of San Diego Mayor Frank Curran, Assemblyman Tom Homs, Rosé Diego, two county supervisors, four city councilmen and a campaign treasurer.

Among witnesses before the jury was Yallow Cab President Charles Pratt, who, with the cab company, was granted immunity. The charges related to money Pratt was alleged to have given the defendants and to a cab fare increase approved when eight of the defendants were on the City Council.

Nielsen said earlier some of the testimony was "self-serving and leading," and its publication probably would cause most of the defendants to seek a change of venue on grounds of adverse publicity.

Nigos gains 2nd honor

Joe Nigos, the Mustangs' tackle breaking fullback majors in running with the football, blocking and physical education—not necessarily in that order.

The rugged fullback was named the Mustang "Player of the Week" for the second time this season. He also shares the California Collegiate Athletic Association conference Player of the Week honors with Cal State Fullerton's quarterback Mike Ernst.

Nigos spun and ripped his way for 228 yards in 30 carries in last week's 23-17 loss to Fresno State. "I don't know of another fullback around who is even close to him. I haven't heard of any other fullbacks who are ripping opponents' defenses like Joe is," Harper advised.

Fred Parker, the Fresno safetyman who hauled Nigos down on the Bulldog six-yard line at the end of his 60-yard caper, played behind the Mustang player when both were tailbacks at Bakersfield College. Parker quit before the season started and went on to Fresno State.

"George Harley (center) and guards Phil Kenney and Dusan Crucut did a great job of blocking. They usually had Fresno's two down men and backers off balance when I went through the hole. Fresno was trying to arm tackle me and if you can't break an arm tackle you shouldn't be an offensive back," Nigos asserted.

Aquamen lose to Fresno St.

The Mustang water poloist went down to defeat in double over time last Saturday afternoon against the Fresno State Bulldogs 10-12. The loss for the water poloist was their sixth straight.

But even though the Mustangs have not been able to win in the past few weeks, coaches Greg Hind and Dick Anderson are still optimistic about the rest of the Mustang season. "We're really anticipating from defense to offense. Everyone is going to the cage immediately when we gain control of the ball."

This ability to change from defense to offense is exactly what coaches Hind and Anderson have been trying to get their team to do. It's the "constant movement" type of play that Coach Hind brought with him from San Jose State. "We're creating extra man situations when we play this style right," stated Hind.

San Francisco is still waiting for whistle

UPI—The San Francisco Forty-Niners, still depressed with their 20-20 tie against New Orleans, claim that the last Saints touchdown was the product of a trap catch and a fast whistle.

Many Prospectors swear teammate Dave Parks trapped a 22-yard Billy Kilmer toss that took the Saints down to the 12 and then said they never heard the ref's whistle.

"We were still waiting for the ref's whistle," said middle linebacker Frank Nunley, "when the Saints lined up." Kilmer, another ex-teammate, then hit Parks for the 12-yard touchdown and the Forty-Niners say the lack of whistle left them "standing around wondering what to do."

But Nunley added, "We should have been ready to play. Next time we will be."

Nunley said he also thought the defense played well and pointed out that the Saints only achieved 80-yard rushing. He added "The Saints got a bid lift when Kilmer came into the game."
